COUNCIL BLUFFS FARM BLOCKADE 100% PERFECT

Army of Pickets in Control of Roads.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Council Bluffs, Ia., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The blockade of Council Bluffs, gateway to the Omaha produce and live stock market, was 100 per cent effective tonight, with from 200 to 300 striking farmers, armed with clubs, stationed at the picket posts on each of the five converging highways and defying both Sheriff Percy A. Lainson and any truck drivers that came along.

Sheriff Lainson, who described the situation as "dangerous and acute," sat in his office surrounded by six machine guns, 100 baseball bats, 100 pick handles and 100 deputies, but was relying on the mosquitoes from Mosquito creek, which encircles the picket posts, to break up the strike.

"And there's something to that," said the sheriff as he swatted a mosquito on his right wrist.

The pickets, most of whom are remnants of the butter and egg expeditionary force, armed themselves with the clubs hewn from the trees on the bluffs when they heard of the sheriff's pick handles, and their cry became: "Just let him come out!"

Sheriff in Radio Warning.

The sheriff made it plain that he was not going out and warned the farmers in a radio address this afternoon of the "dangerous and acute" situation and asked them to keep their hogs and milk at home until "this thing works itself out."

Few trucks came along tonight, the farmers apparently having heeded the sheriff's warning, and none got by.

It was announced today that it was costing Pottawatamie county $392 a day to maintain its force of 100 deputy sheriffs.

Use Telephone Poles.

The pickets, striking farmers who are waging a nonselling campaign for higher prices, were working it out with telephone poles stretched across the roads at the approach of each truck capable of concealing a crate of eggs or a can of milk.

Most of the B. E. E. F., claiming to be 1,200 strong, withdrew today, having accomplished its objective of releasing a barber and piccolo player from prison, and the possibility of sending the national guard troops here was at least temporarily forestalled. About 1,000 of these went to their homes in the northwestern part of the state, Sioux City and Pierson being the principal cities, but 100 went by truck to Shenandoah to heckle Secretary Arthur M. Hyde of the department of agriculture and to picket the roads leading to Republican senatorial Nominee Henry Field's produce concentration center. The others joined the pickets already stationed on the various highways a mile or so out of town.

Two Setbacks for Sheriff.

Sheriff Lainson, a captain in the Rainbow division, who says his machines are there to "kill people if we must but we don't want to," was credited by the citizenry with one defeat last night and another today. He had threatened to meet all attempts to deliver 63 prisoners held in his jail with riot guns, but the prisoners were turned out on bond when the B. E. E. F. reached the outskirts of town.

The army of 1,200 had begun mobilization in Pierson, where it was reported that two Pierson farmers were held on charges of unlawful assemblage. When they arrived they learned that four Pierson citizens were held, but that one was a painter, one was a barber, one a dry goods clerk, and the other a piccolo player in the town band. Since they were arrested in an automobile on the main street, Justice of the Peace Jack Dewitt, a local police reported, let them go, but held the others in $100 bonds.

The second "defeat," charged up to the sheriff was the resumption of picketing, which he admits is neither peaceful nor lawful, at noon today, despite the agreement at the "peace conference" last night on the part of the farmers that they would not resort to force.

Pipe of Peace Smoulders.

The peace conference idea was first established here when Lewis and Clark smoked the pipe with the Omahas and Pottawatamies in council on the bluffs giving this town its name, and it has been popular since. At this meeting Jack Hamp, of Granville in Sioux county, spokesman for the farmers, agreed to stop all but "non-peaceful" picketing if the sheriff

Leaders Enlist to Battle Depression

INDUSTRY AND BANKS UNITED FOR CAMPAIGN

Six-Point Program Is Adopted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Three hundred of the country's financial, business, and industrial leaders, meeting here at the call of President Hoover today, adopted a six point program for promoting economic recovery.

The conference will work along these lines, to which they pledge full coöperation:

1. To spread employment by shortening the hours of each worker.
2. To stimulate capital expenditures by industry.
3. To expand employment and repair and replacement work on the railroads.
4. To stimulate home improvement and repair.
5. To assist home owners in carrying their mortgage burdens.
6. To make credit affirmatively useful by making it available to those entitled to it.

Appoint Central Committee.

To carry out the program the conferees appointed a central committee headed by Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker and friend of the President, and subcommittees to deal with the problems presented in the various industries.

Those who adopted the resolution were the members of the banking and industrial committees recently formed in the twelve federal reserve districts to stimulate business recovery and ease credit. The chairman of each district committee, together with Secretary of the Treasury Mills, Secretary of Commerce Chapin, and other government officials will make up the new central committee.

Leaders of Subcommittees.

Subcommittees were appointed to carry out each of the six points on the program. The chairmen are:

Owen D. Young, New York banker.

Sewell L. Avery, president of Montgomery Ward & Co. and the United States Gypsum company.

Sees Crisis Overcome.

"The reason for calling this conference at this particular moment," the President told the conferees, "is that we are convinced that we have overcome the major financial crisis—a crisis in severity unparalleled in the history of the world—and that with its relaxation confidence and hope have reappeared in the world.

"The great war against depression is being fought on many fronts in many parts of the world. One of the most stupendous actions on this great front has been the long battle of the last eighteen months to carry our financial structure safely through the world-wide collapse. The battle may be likened to the battle of Chateau-Thierry. That attack on our line has been stopped. But I warn you that the war is not yet over. We must now reform our forces for the battle of Soissons."

Cites Huge Withdrawals.

How great a tribute and a proof, he showed by describing in detail the long series of attacks and shocks which have assailed the country's economic soundness.

"The whole of this 18 months," the President went on, "has been a period of constant defense and counter-attack against these invading forces.

"As we look back over the depression now we find over two billion 400 million dollars was withdrawn from us by foreign nations and their citizens, and a total of one billion 600 million of currency was at one time withdrawn by our own citizens from our own banks. You know and I know that this foreign exchange, the gold shipped abroad, the currency and gold hoarded in our own country, is taken from the base of the inverted pyramid of our credit structure and translates itself into a strangulation of the volume of credit from two to

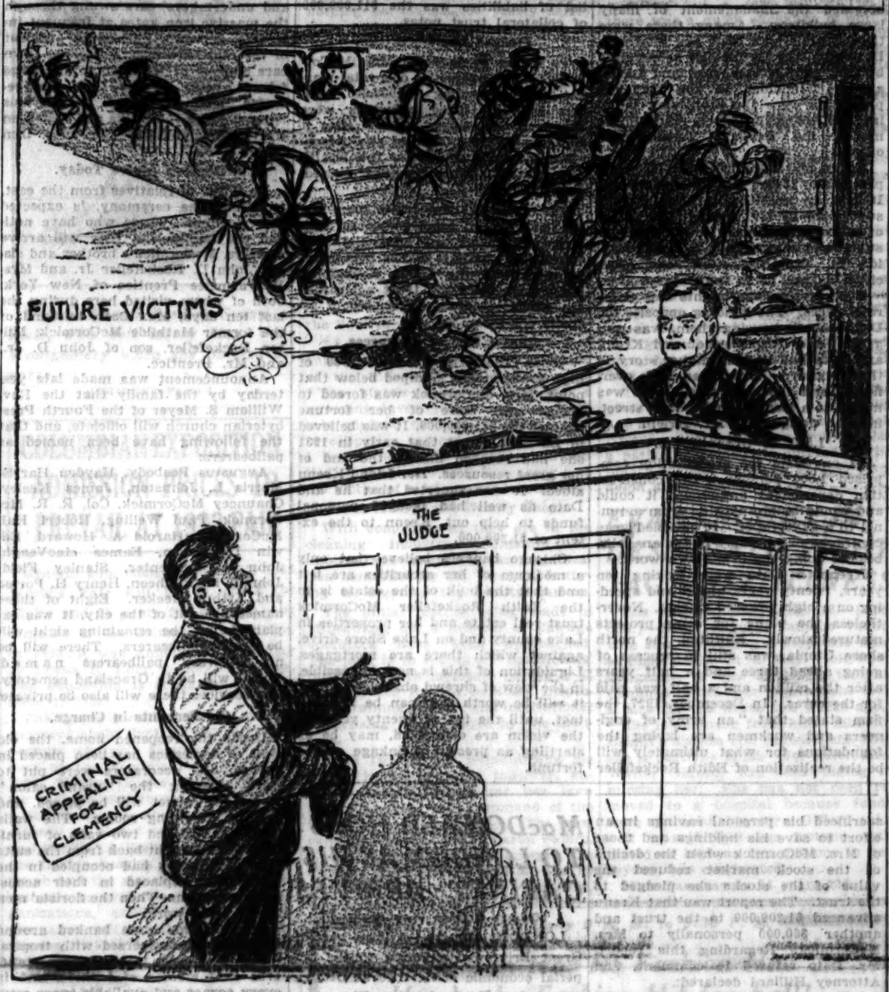
WHAT WE NEED IS A LITTLE LESS MERCY FOR THE CRIMINAL AND A LITTLE MORE MERCY FOR HIS VICTIMS



BABY KILLED IN FIRE; 4 OTHERS SAVED BY MOTHER

Little Ronald Dudley McClain had an opportunity to be a hero yesterday but, with tragic consequences, he overlooked the chance. Any one would excuse him, however; he was only 3½ years old.

It was late afternoon and he was playing in his home at 105 East School street, Libertyville. His mother, Mrs. Dorothy McClain, was in the kitchen; his twin sisters, Jean and Jane, 1 year old, and June, 2½, were asleep upstairs.

Suddenly Mrs. McClain screamed as flames burst out in the kitchen. She called to Ronald: "Go upstairs and get June." She then started upstairs herself to rescue the twins. Ronald hurried to the upper floor. His mother was already picking up the "sewing twins, and ready to start downstairs. But Ronald did not appear with his sister and the mother ran back into the house and rescued June. Then, as Fire Chief Edward Schneider and Fireman Jack Treptow arrived, she implored them to save her boy. They found him dead in bed of suffocation. Apparently the lure of the resting place had caused him to forget his mission.

POLICE QUESTION VICTIM OF FIRE ON KIDNAPING

George Alex of Niles Center, secretary of the Peppas & Alex Restaurant Supplies company at 165 West Lake street, was questioned by police last night about a brief kidnaping experience in which he was held captive for seven hours.

Thursday noon three men representing themselves as deputy fire marshals invited him outside, he said. They forced him into a car, blindfolded him and then kept him prisoner in a house on the north side for seven hours. Alex told police the men asked him about $48,000 insurance money which he received following a fire which burned out his concern last December. They released him, he said, when he told them the money had been spent.

Alex told police that he could not identify his kidnapers and would not prosecute them if they were arrested. He was held for questioning by fire department officials but later was released when Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan said he wasn't interested.

Child Heroine in So. Shore Rail Tragedy

A 12 year old girl risked her own life last night in a dramatic effort to save a younger friend from death under an electric train on the South Shore tracks at 47th street. She failed. The train struck both, killing the friend and injuring the young heroine.

A few minutes earlier the girls, Geraldine Court, 9 years old, of 4463 Woodlawn avenue, who was killed and June Lozanoff, 1832 Rice street, had left the 47th street beach with a third girl, Dorothy Morris, 17, of 4455 Woodlawn avenue. June had been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Nora Porter, of 4463 Woodlawn avenue.

Heroine "Afraid of Dark."

Their path homeward to Woodlawn avenue lay across a stretch of twelve railroad tracks. The tracks are divided into two sections of six each. Under the west section is an improvised subway, poorly illuminated. The three girls crossed the first half. Arriving at the second half, the Morris girl started through the subway. June and Geraldine refused to follow. "We're afraid," June protested. Less than three minutes later June proved herself brave enough to face a far greater peril than a dark subway.

As June and Geraldine reached the first rails a beam of light revealed a northbound express rounding the bend at 50th street. From their rear porch, William Irwin and J. C. Haggerty, 4721 Lake Park avenue, looked on. They saw Geraldine stumble, with June a few steps ahead. They saw June run back and help Geraldine to her feet.

Child Falls in Flight.

The two girls raced forward. Again Geraldine fell. The train roared nearer, Motorman H. A. Blackburn sounding warning shrieks. June heard and saw, but didn't hesitate. She picked up her fear stricken friend, and once more they hastened across the tracks.

The train was now only a short distance away, its headlight playing a shimmering beam on the tragic flight. For the third time little Geraldine tripped; the headlight shone full white upon her. June didn't stop to look. She stooped to drag her helpless friend to safety. Then the train hit them.

"It was the most heroic thing I ever saw," said Irwin.

Renew Subway Demands.

The girls were taken to Dr. Mandel Cohen's office at 1400 East 47th street, where Geraldine was pronounced dead and it was found that June had received a fracture of her left arm and bruises. It was said she will recover.

Today Mrs. Margaret J. Dahlman, 4727 Lake Park avenue, president of the Kenwood-South Shore Improvement association, will start a movement for a subway at 47th street. The city has a $300,000 bond issue, now dormant, for that work, she said.

NIGHT SCHOOLS CALLED CHEAPER THAN ILLITERACY

Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of adult education, yesterday cited comparative statistics on illiteracy in support of his contention that proposals to close the night schools to save money would be a false economy move.

According to Mr. Lunak there are 91,474 illiterates in Chicago whose earning and purchasing power could be increased by millions of dollars through education. The saving in costs of government through decrease in crime and delinquency, as the result of education in this group, would be even more important, he said.

These potential economies, according to Mr. Lunak, show clearly that the cost of lack of education greatly exceeds the cost of operating the schools.

Citing federal government figures, Mr. Lunak pointed that in the ten years from 1920 to 1930 Chicago reduced the percentage of illiteracy from 4.6 to 3.2 per cent. Fall River, Mass., has the worst record in the country with 10.2 per cent illiteracy, while Long Beach, Cal., has the best with only one-half of one per cent. Census officials class as an illiterate any person 10 years of age or older who cannot read or write in any language.

Ocean Flyers Feared Lost; Long Overdue

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 26.—Fears grew tonight that another tragedy had been added to the long list of those who have attempted to fly the Atlantic ocean and failed. Clyde Lee, 24 year old airman of Oshkosh, Wis., and John Bockhon of Brooklyn, his 23 year old co-pilot, who took off at 5:02 a. m. [Chicago daylight saving time] yesterday from Harbor Grace in an attempt to fly to Oslo were long overdue here late tonight. Neither had they been sighted since they took off at any other place, either over Europe or at sea, although they had planned to follow the northern ship lane across.

The flyers had estimated they would be in Oslo in about 30 hours after the takeoff, or at about 11 a. m. today [Chicago daylight saving time]. However, to guard against possible delays due to fog or storms, they carried fuel for 37 hours flying, or until 6 p. m. [Chicago time]. At midnight [Chicago time] they had not been heard of.

Weather Conditions Poor.

Weather conditions over the latter half of their flight over the ocean were reported to be exceedingly poor. Low lying clouds and heavy fog prevailed.

In case of a landing at sea, the flyers had prepared the plane to make a rescue possible. The doors of the machine were sealed and a hole had been cut in the roof as an emergency exit. If forced to land on the ocean they had planned to chop away the engine and empty the gasoline tanks, which would act as buoys to keep the plane afloat. The number of hours they could stay above water would depend on the weather conditions. In the way of food, the flyers carried concentrated food tablets.

Weather Delays Flying Family.

PORT MENIER, Anticosti Island, Que., Aug. 26.—(AP)—With no sign of improving weather conditions, the "Flying Hutchinsons," George, his wife, their two young daughters and crew of four, remained here today. They are attempting a flight to Europe by the northern route. Their next hop is to Labrador. The party arrived here Wednesday from St. John, N. B. The flight began in New York Tuesday.

Ship Aids Stranded Flyers.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Newfoundland government steamer Argyle called today at Merasheen island in Placentia bay to pick up Thor Solberg and Carl Petersen, who have dismantled their ill-fated airplane and abandoned for the present their plans for a trans-Atlantic flight. The steamer had orders to get the flyers at Darby's harbor, where their plane crashed Tuesday night while they were bound from New York to Harbor Grace to refuel for the ocean dash to Oslo. The plane was to be dropped at Argentia and brought to St. John's by rail for shipment to New York.

ONTARIO TO PUT PANHANDLERS ON SPECIAL FARMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26.—Establishment of special farms for panhandler, door-to-door beggars and all other transients who refuse to conform to regulations under Ontario's forthcoming policy of registering all people for direct relief, was announced today in a report on the unemployment situation. It was prepared by a special citizens' advisory committee headed by W. R. Campbell, head of Ford Motor Car company of Canada.

The Campbell committee minces no words on the present seriousness of the problem of transients in Ontario. It points to the frequency of hitchhiking accidents on highways, trouble with railway train crews, increased pan-handling and "meal hunting" in all the larger centers, a general restlessness on the part of the public at seeing so many strange men about, and mounting petty crime, as indications of the menace to society that transiency has become.

Adoption of a dominion-wide policy of registration is urged.

Actress Leaps 5 Stories; Suffers Broken Leg, Burns

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Annette Westby Scarborough, actress wife of George Scarborough, playwright and movie scenarioist, eluded her nurse and leaped five stories from their apartment today and suffered only a broken leg and burns. Clad only in a nightgown, she bounced through three layers of electric light wires and dropped 25 feet from the lower wires to the pavement. She apparently was temporarily delirious from high fever, police reported.

It is possible to make public this morning an approximation of the provisions of the last will and testament of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, concerning which there has been almost world-wide interest over the last few weeks.

Edwin Krenn, the young Austrian architect, who has been Mrs. McCormick's close business adviser, is bequeathed five-twelfths of the estate of his benefactress.

Waives His Share.

But Mr. Krenn has elected to waive his share of the estate, it was learned.

On Aug. 14, while Mrs. McCormick was dying in the Drake hotel, Mr. Krenn signed an agreement by which he renounced all claims to the estate and to the firm of Krenn & Dato and accepted in lieu thereof a guarantee of $2,000 a month income for the duration of his life from his partner, Edward A. Dato.

Mr. Dato, under the agreement with Mr. Krenn, became the owner of the real estate firm, the sole trustee of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust, and will also receive the five-twelfths of the estate which was to have gone to Mr. Krenn.

Other Heirs Named.

Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, the former Muriel McCormick, will receive four-twelfths of the estate.

Mrs. Max Oser, the former Mathilde McCormick, will benefit to the extent of two-twelfths.

Once 40 Millions.

The estate consists of property at one time calculated to have a value of some 40 million dollars. Included in this estimate is the Lake Forest estate of Mrs. McCormick, "Villa Turicum," which before the depression had been appraised as worth $7,000,000 and which is said to have cost that much.

Also included is the town house at 1000 Lake Shore. It has been said that this property once was regarded as worth $4,000,000 and that an offer of that sum was once made for it.

Shows Great Shrinkage.

In addition to these real properties Mrs. McCormick's jewels, long regarded as one of the celebrated collections of the country, are said to have had a normal value of $2,000,000.

Since these valuations, however, all figures have shrunk. The $7,000,000 Lake Forest property now stands without a purchaser. It is said by real estate men that it is doubtful if there is a person remaining in the Chicago neighborhood with the inclination or the means to possess and maintain such an establishment. The value, therefore, has become largly problematical.

In addition to the shrinkage in property values there is to be considered also in the appraisal of the estate the connection of Mrs. McCormick with the firm of Krenn & Dato. Edwin Krenn has been senior member of this firm since its establishment.

Under the title of Krenn &

Dato these two men were the associates of Mrs. McCormick in the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust which was formed in 1923. In the financing of that trust Mrs. McCormick stood back of $11,000,000 in notes issued through the Foreman National bank. Mrs. McCormick's determination to sustain this issue of notes caused her to lose heavily in her private fortune.

Public interest has been raised to a high pitch since the last illness of Mrs. McCormick in consideration of the vast development projects undertaken by her and her associates. Many questions have been asked covering the history of the trust and the firm of Krenn and Dato, its agents.

All of this was described in detail yesterday afternoon by Mr. Dato, who, with his attorney, Robert Hilliard, painstakingly prepared for the public an outline of the undertakings of the real estate firm and its vigorous defense against the oncoming depression, and sketching the origin of the firm in the youthful association, as schoolmates, of Edward Dato and Edwin Krenn.

Dato Tells of His Status.

Mr. Dato, a Russian Jew, hitherto very much in the background when the conduct of the business of Krenn and Dato was brought to public attention, yesterday received interviewers with marked regret. Angered by published reports that he had "assumed control" of the McCormick millions, he at first asserted testily that he had no comment to make. Later, under advice of Attorney Hilliard, he consented to discuss his new status as commander of the Rockefeller McCormick estate.

Mr. Dato was apparently anxious that reporters should not speak to Mr. Krenn. He declared that Mr. Krenn was out of town, that Mr. Krenn had "been advised" not to speak to the press.

"Were you the adviser who counseled Mr. Krenn not to see reporters?" he was asked.

Mr. Dato ran his fingers through his thinning hair.

"Mr. Krenn is almost hysterical over all these things," he declared. "He is an artist. I am the business man. He took a ride into the country. He is not around here. I will talk to you."

Describes Realty Firm.

Mr. Dato then described the history of the firm of Krenn and Dato. In doing so he spun a romantic story of an enterprise that has intrigued Chicagoans for years. The firm burst upon the business horizon in 1923 with no previous notice. Its startling promotions were soon the talk of the real estate world.

"Mr. Krenn and I went to high school together in Zurich, Switzerland," Mr. Dato said. "His family liked him to associate with me. I don't want to boast but I was a good example for him. I had high marks. I was a good student and my influence was good for him."

A marked accent made Mr. Dato sometimes difficult to understand. He has a habit of stopping in his speech suddenly and peering questioningly through his spectacles.

"Mr. Krenn and I did not see each other after high school for a long time," he said. "I was studying engineering. He was studying architecture. I studied under Prof. Einstein, the man who brought out the theory of relativity. I was quite a mathematician.

Came To This Country.

"Then I came to this country. I worked for the International Harvester company as a consulting engineer. One day, in the papers I read of Mrs. Edith McCormick's divorce. [Mrs. McCormick was divorced from Harold F. McCormick in December, 1921.] The papers mentioned the name of Krenn. I think: that is my school mate. I will look him up."

Once started upon his story, Mr. Dato rambled on despite the remonstrances of his attorney.

"I had made an invention," he continued. "I thought Mr. Krenn might be able to help me out. I looked him up. He introduced me to Mrs. McCormick. He interested her in me. Both of them wanted me to go in business with them but not in my invention. They were interested in real estate."

Reluctant to Join.

Mr. Dato was induced to join Mrs. McCormick and Krenn in their real estate venture despite his reluctance, he said.

"Mrs. McCormick wanted to do things," he said. "She wanted to put her money into civic projects which would be great things for the community. You understand? Of course, it was against my wishes that I was drawn into it. I thought—she is a woman of money—but why should she want to do anything? But she wanted to. She wanted to do big things. So I agreed."

At this description of his unwillingness to associate himself with one of the richest woman in Chicago, Mr. Dato hunched his shoulders and smiled.

"Start in a Small Way."

"We started in a small way," he resumed. "We bought a little property here and there. Then, one day, I got a call from Mrs. McCormick and Mr. Krenn. I went over. They said to me: 'Here is $5,000,000 to start with.'"

Mr. Dato shrugged off this mention of $5,000,000 and went on calmly:

"We formed a trust. The three of us, she and Mr. Krenn and I were the trustees. In the event of the death of any one of us, the trust would be executed by the two remaining trustees."

Mr. Dato and his lawyer declared that the trust agreement did not provide that the two remainging trustees, in case of the death of one, could elect a third trustee. He said, however, that because of Mrs. McCormick's death and the withdrawal of Mr. Krenn for the consideration of $2,000 a month, that other trustees would probably be chosen.

Why Krenn Withdrew.

"But why did Mr. Krenn withdraw?" Mr. Dato was asked.

"That is a delicate matter," said Mr. Dato, hesitatingly. "You see—Mr. Krenn was not friendly with the Rockefeller or the Harold F. McCormick families. As an heir to her estate and as a trustee of the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust, he would be constantly thrown in with the relatives. His elimination would make matters much easier."

When Mrs. McCormick's death was only a matter of days, Mrs. McCormick's family became concerned over Mr. Krenn's inheritance, Mr. Dato said. Negotiations leading toward his sale of all his interests in the estate were started on Aug. 12 and terminated two days later.

"It was for the good of the firm that Mr. Krenn was eliminated," said Mr. Dato with a smile. "All he wanted was a little annuity—something that would keep him comfortable for life.

"Mrs. McCormick was an idealist. I, too, am an idealist. But Mr. Krenn wasn't interested in carrying out all these idealistic projects of Mrs. McCormick. He has the soul of an artist. He wasn't interested in the real estate business. He carried on the social end of it—I carried on the practical end."

Tells of Krenn's Decision.

Sorrowfully Mr. Dato related Mr. Krenn's decision to sell out his interests in the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust and the real estate firm of Krenn & Dato and to give up his share in the estate as provided by the will, the provisions of which were known to all Mrs. McCormick's intimates. He continued:

"Krenn came to me and said: 'Should I do this? Should I withdraw from the firm, give up the inheritance and take an annuity?' I told him frankly that I wouldn't do it because I am a fighter. I like to be in the thick of things. I like to take a chance, I like to make decisions. Maybe I am like Mussolini."

Mr. Dato paused. He let this last statement sink in. His gaze traveled slowly about his office, which is crowded with heavy mahogany furniture, ornately carved. He fixed a piercing gaze upon his silent auditors.

"But Mr. Krenn is not like me," he said. "I told him so. I advised him to take the $2,000 a month. I told him I would take care of him. He went to other friends and they told him the same. So he signed the contract.

"He is out of the business now, but the firm name will be retained. After all, what place is there for him? He was the social partner and now the social end is gone. I will attend to the business."

Displays the Contract.

Mr. Dato displayed a contract which recited Mr. Krenn's renunciation of all claims to the estate and the trust in return for a $2,000 a month income as long as he lived.

"In addition to this contract, I have written a private letter to Mr. Krenn, assuring him that his share of the estate will never be sold to any one but a member of the Rockefeller or McCormick families," Mr. Dato said.

He said the contract did not specify what should become of the five-twelfths share of the estate given to Krenn in the event of Krenn's death. The letter, Mr. Dato asserted, made plain that Krenn's portion of the estate would descend to one of Mrs. McCormick's relatives.

Frowned Upon by Relatives.

Attorney Hilliard interrupted at this point to comment that the heritage to Mr. Krenn had been frowned upon by all Mrs. McCormick's relatives and friends.

"Every one, including the firm of Krenn & Dato, thought the whole estate should have been given to the children," he said. "But Mrs. McCormick had a strong mind. She had ideas of her own. She insisted upon giving Mr. Krenn a major portion of the estate. She was grateful to him for financial assistance he had given her."

Krenn, according to reports, had sacrificed his personal savings in an effort to save his holdings and those of Mrs. McCormick when the decline of the stock market reduced the value of the stocks she pledged to the trust. The report was that Krenn advanced $1,200,000 to the trust and another $60,000 personally to Mrs. McCormick. Regarding this report, Mr. Dato refused to comment, and Attorney Hilliard declared:

"That statement is correct so far as it goes."

The attorney refused to amplify this remark.

"That statement is ridiculous," he barked, nervously rubbing his high forehead. He meditated and then said solemnly:

"The only thing that prompted me in all this was to preserve the name and memory of Mrs. McCormick. And, of course, I was thinking of the firm, too."

Attorney Hilliard, silent during this long discourse, then declared:

"There is no mystery about this matter. Mr. Krenn was eliminated to avoid trouble. With him as an heir, there might have been lawsuits and trouble. Mr. Dato must not be pictured as putting anything over. He has acted for the good of all concerned."

Millions Invested in Grandiose Real Estate Developments by Krenn & Dato

The ambitious plans of the real estate firm of Krenn & Dato, which Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick aided with her name and with signed statements and talks to salesmen, included some of the most ambitious subdivision developments that ever were started in the vicinity of Chicago.

Some five years ago the firm was engaged in the dividing and selling of the Devonshire Manor tract, lying between Dempster street and Church street and east of the Niles Center road in Niles Center. Where had been a golf course there appeared concrete streets, electric lights, sewerage, and water systems.

Office Resembles Temple.

A high price was paid for the acreage, it was said. Then Edwin Krenn, ever the artist as well as the business man, established an administrative office on the tract. It stood on what had been the fourteenth green of the golf course and was built to reperesent a Greek temple, 28 by 42 feet and 35 feet high. The exterior was in the best classical tradition, but the interior was planned for company needs, with a lecture room and an observation pavilion.

The development was referred to then as a $5,000,000 affair. In its literature Krenn & Dato stated that this section of Niles Center "was destined to become as great a center of population as the present Wilson avenue-Broadway elevated terminal district."

Build Large Apartment.

One large apartment building, the Meadow Lane coöperative, was built in Devonshire Manor by the subdividers. Hundreds of lots were sold, and at good prices. Since the time of sale realty prices have undergone a great change, however, and there has been practically no building on the tract.

This was but an example of the vigor and unbounded optimism of the firm. In the spring of 1924 Krenn & Dato purchased a tract of 1,550 acres just north of the Wisconsin line on the lake for $1,550,000. There, it was announced, they intended to create a de luxe subdivision.

A year later a news story stated: "Work at last has started on Chicago's de luxe suburb just over the Wisconsin line—the pet project of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, which she is personally supervising, as it is being developed by Krenn & Dato for the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust."

Entire Town Laid Out.

Sites for hotels of the Atlantic City type, gigantic castles in Spain, were selected. A whole town was laid out. There was to be a municipal golf course, a schoolhouse with twenty-five acres of ground to itself. Mr. Krenn was to design business houses in the old English style. There was to be municipal supervision of all buildings, so that all the structures would harmonize and thus avoid any clashes of architectural styles.

Nearly a year later it was announced that plans for the "modern Utopia" had been completed, and that Mrs. McCormick had herself insisted that all the lake frontage should forever be dedicated to the public and made into a park three and a half miles long. An airplane line to Chicago was promised, and the principal hotel was to cost $6,000,000. Steam shovels went to work, but little progress was made.

Other Spectacular Deals.

There were still other spectacular purchases of acreage by the firm. The sum of $540,000 was paid by them for forty-three acres bounded by Lincoln, Peterson and California avenues, the old north shore polo grounds. In 1924 they were reported to have paid $900,000 for sixty-two acres in the vicinity of Crawford and Devon avenues.

Highland Park Highlands, south of Lake Forest, was another of the properties purchased, subdivided, improved and offered for sale by the firm. In Riverside and Berwyn there were other developments on a grand scale.

In the city the firm either built or obtained the management of many large buildings. Among these were the 3300 Sheridan road, the Sheridan-Brompton, the Devonshire coöperative building at Sheridan road and Devon avenue. Included in the managed properties were the State Oak building, the Rockefeller block, South Shore manor, the Eastlake Terrace and others.

Krenn and Dato had a building department. It had a bond department. It had an architectural department, supervised by Mr. Krenn. The latter organization designed buildings and supervised construction in Cedar Rapids, Ia., Cleveland, Ohio, and other cities, as well as in the Chicago area.

Each of the departments had elaborate offices. The building opposite the Drake hotel, housing them, was outgrown, and it was announced Krenn and Dato had to add another story to the structure. Even then they overflowed and the bond department was moved to a location in La Salle street, interior designs by Mr. Krenn.

1,500 in Organization.

At one time the organization comprised 1,500 persons. The construction department announced it could and would build anything from a tunnel to a skyscraper. It obtained large contracts, one notably in Indianapolis, besides doing the firm's own work.

Krenn & Dato were looking ten years, twenty years ahead and speeding on a high powered market. Nevertheless the plans for some projects matured slowly. Edithton, the north shore Utopia, was still in process of going ahead three and a half years after the million and a half was paid for the acres. In December, 1927, the firm stated that "an army of engineers and workmen are laying the foundations for what ultimately will be the realization of Edith Rockefeller McCormick's dream of an ideal city by the lake."

All these great visions required speculation, or at least investment, with millions of dollars. The Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust, created with a modest $2,000,000 of authorized indebtedness, furnished more and more capital as the years passed. In 1929 was floated $11,000,000 of notes, guaranteed by Mrs. McCormick personally. It was this guaranty, it is believed in La Salle street, which caused the shrinkage of her fortune of perhaps $40,000,000 to a mere fraction of that figure.

The vast operations of the trust and of Krenn & Dato may be discerned in their financial report of Dec. 31, 1930. At that time the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust had assets of $31,974,426, of which lands, buildings and leaseholds were reported at $12,135,005. Carried both as assets and liabilities were securities of Mrs. McCormick valued at $7,934,260, and securities of Mr. Krenn valued at $329,875.

There were in the assets also additional marketable securities of more than $5,500,000 and notes and accounts receivable that reached a total of more than $5,000,000. Most prominent in the list of liabilities was the $11,000,000 of collateral trust notes.

Pledges Her Securities.

To secure these notes Mrs. McCormick pledged securities of a total market value exceeding $18,000,000 then. The bulk of these securities were Standard Oil stocks. At the time it was also represented that she personally had assets, aside from this wealth and her real estate holdings, exceeding $10,000,000.

The end of the real estate boom and the collapse of security prices took Mrs. McCormick into financial difficulties. It was part of her agreement in regard to the Edith Rockefeller McCormick collateral trust notes that she would maintain $13,000,000 of security for them.

Almost End of Resources.

When the original $18,000,000 of high grade stocks slumped below that point, Mrs. McCormick was forced to pledge still more of her fortune against the $11,000,000. It was believed in La Salle street that early in 1931 she had reached almost the end of her great resources. Her friend Krenn aided. It was reported that he and Dato as well had pledged personal funds to help out, Krenn to the extent of $1,200,000.

Chicago bankers believe that only a modicum of her securities are left and that the bulk of the estate is in the Edith Rockefeller McCormick trust real estate and her properties in Lake county and on Lake Shore drive, against which there are mortgages. Liquidation of this is now impossible, in the view of shrewd observers. What it will be worth if it can be kept intact, until the ten or twenty years of the vision are completed, may be as startling as present shrinkage of her fortune.

20 CHICAGO DRY AGENTS CAPTURE RUM; ARREST 8

Kankakee, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Twenty prohibition agents from Chicago, Danville and East St. Louis swept into Kankakee county tonight and in a series of raids arrested eight persons and seized liquor and beer in ten resorts. The places visited were in Kankakee, Mankeno, Bourbonnais and Indian Oaks. The largest haul of liquor was made at Larry De Marah's café, the Spick and Span, on Route 49. The prisoners were all taken to Danville.

MacDONALD HOPS TO LONDON AS HIS CABINET ARRIVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A large part of Great Britain's delegation to the imperial economic conference at Ottawa returned to England today. The members were met at the railway station here by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who flew from Scotland in order to be on hand to greet them.

A long statement was issued before the S. S. Empress of Britain docked at Sauthampton by Sanley Baldwin, Neville Chamberlain, J. H. Thomas, and Sir John Gilmour on the success of the conference. Mr. Thomas announced that hopes for a renewal of the Irish discussions are brighter.

"It is quite true that under the guise of card parties I have been taking part in conversations with delegates from the Free State and I had hopes that the proposals I made would have resulted in a settlement of the difficulties," Thomas said. "But I am quite sure that they cleared the ground for further discussions."

RUSSIA BESTOWS HIGHEST HONOR ON U. S. ENGINEER

MOSCOW, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Col. Hugh L. Cooper, famous American engineer, today was awarded the order of the Red Star, the highest decoration bestowed by the soviet government, for designing and constructing Dnieprostroy, Russia's gigantic power development in the southern Ukraine. Col. Cooper is the first foreigner to receiver the honor, which is awarded only for "outstanding achievements in defense of the country."

The decorations were made known simultaneously with formal acceptance by the government of the giant power plant, the largest of its kind in the world, from the American builders.

RITES TODAY TO CLOSE CAREER OF EDITH McCORMICK

Mansion Is Reopened for Funeral Services.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Brief funeral rites at 3 o'clock this afternoon will close the earthly career of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, known as the most spectacular social leader in Chicago's history. Services will be private, with only the relatives and a few close friends admitted to the gray stone mansion at 1000 Lake Shore drive that stood bleakly empty for two months prior to her death on Thursday at the Drake hotel.

All day yesterday there was evidence about the grounds that the famous mansion was occupied once more—that its chatelaine was beneath its roof for the last time. Florists' wagons and undertakers' cars swung through the massive iron gates at frequent intervals; servants hurried in and out of the rear entrances; glistening town cars stopped at the curb to discharge friends, come to pay their last respects, and groups of the curious loitered along the walks and rested on the parking outside the lofty iron fence.

Relatives Arrive Today.

An influx of relatives from the east, to attend the ceremony, is expected this morning. Those who have notified the family that they will arrive are Mrs. McCormick's brother and sister, John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Mrs. E. Parmelee Prentice of New York, both of whom visited here during the last ten days; Max Oser, husband of the former Mathilde McCormick; Milton Rockefeller, son of John D. Jr., and Mr. Prentice.

Announcement was made late yesterday by the family that the Rev. William S. Meyer of the Fourth Presbyterian church will officiate, and that the following have been named as pallbearers:

Augustus Peabody, Hayden Harris, Morris L. Johnston, James Keeley, Chauncey McCormick, Col. R. R. McCormick, Paul Welling, Robert Hall McCormick, Harold A. Howard, Edwin D. Krenn, Eames MacVeagh, John A. Carpenter, Stanley Field, John T. McCutcheon, Henry H. Porter and Arthur Meeker. Eight of those named are out of the city, it was explained, but the remaining eight will be active pallbearers. There will be no honorary pallbearers named. Burial will be in Graceland cemetery. The services there will also be private.

Old Servants in Charge.

Inside the reopened home, the old staff of domestics has been placed in charge, and decorators were put to work cleaning the "grand salon" where the casket will be placed, and the two adjoining rooms. The walls were washed, and two vans of furniture were brought back from the suite Mrs. McCormick had occupied in the Drake and replaced in their accustomed positions. Then the florists' men began their work.

Large palms were banked around the rooms, interspersed with tropical ferns. Tall green vases in iron standards held masses of orchids, and in every corner and available space were placed baskets and vases of Pernet roses, the yellow blooms Mrs. McCormick preferred above all others.

It had been the intention of the family to request that flowers be omitted, but before the word could be given out floral pieces began to arrive and the plan was abandoned.

Sends Ten Dozen Roses.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. telegraphed an order to a local floral shop to have ten dozen of the roses she admired sent to the home. Five dozen American Beauties were ordered in the same way by Mrs. McCormick's aged father. Alexander Stillman, son of Mrs. Fowler McCormick, ordered a blanket of violets on behalf of his mother, but when it was discovered they could not be secured the order was changed to lilies of the valley.

From the Lake Forest estate, Villa Turicum, came a large box of gladioli, roses and other flowers, gathered and sent by the employés there. They were brought to the house by the caretaker, in Mrs. McCormick's service for many years, and his son.

Telegrams had been arriving ever since the death of Mrs. McCormick, which occurred at 4:40 p. m. Thursday after a long battle against cancer. They continued to stream in yesterday from all parts of the world, from business and personal friends who had learned the news by telegraph and cable.

Numerous callers came to the motor entrance off the driveway during the afternoon and evening, avoiding the main entrance where a large sheaf of Easter lilies and palm fronds testified to death inside. It was remarked that only the intimate friends progressed farther than the doorstep, one large group of more than half a dozen men and women being turned away at one time.

For the most part the family remained during the day at the home of Harold F. McCormick, at 675 Rush street, although they came and went to the Lake Shore drive home.

Gathered here was the same group that had watched at her bedside as Mrs. McCormick passed away. Her former husband, Harold F. McCormick; his daughters, Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard [Muriel] and Mrs. Max Oser [Mathilde]; her son, Fowler, and his wife; Maj. Hubbard, husband of Muriel, and Alexander Stillman.

Edwin Krenn, for years Mrs. McCormick's escort and business associate, did not go to the mansion during the day.

Von Papen Launches Drive to Cling to German Rule

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Chancellor Franz von Papen will leave Berlin Monday to call on President Paul von Hindenburg at his retreat near Neudeck, East Prussia, to ask him to sign an order to dissolve the newly elected reichstag. The chancellor's associates insist that the president has promised to sign the decree, thus making it possible for Von Papen and his cabinet of aristocrats to remain in power regardless of the wishes of the majority of Germany as represented in the reichstag.

Equipped with the traditional red portfolio reserved for dissolution orders, Von Papen plans to face the reichstag on Sept. 5 to outline his "Von Hindenburg program."

Hopes to Outwit Von Papen.

By threatening immediate dissolution and other dire measures, the chancellor secretly hopes to bring the reichstag under his control. Reichstag leaders themselves are debating the advisability of adjourning after the opening session next Tuesday without giving Von Papen an opportunity to dissolve the parliamentary body and thus gain time for further negotiations.

Aware of the possibility of an uprising of republican military organizations should he violate the constitution, Von Papen has ordered a nation-wide investigation of the republican reichsbanner men, according to the Berlin Volkszeitung. The investigation has been ordered to be completed by Sept. 5, the day that the chancellor plans to dissolve the reichstag. Republicans fear that Von Papen's cabinet plans to "persecute" republican organizations.

Business men of Germany are worried over the details of the chancellor's economic revival program. The old Hansa Association of Hamburg, popularly known as "respectable tradesmen," has warned the government against a foreign trade restrictions policy.

Plan to Create Jobs.

The government's program, as outlined semi-officially, includes the creation of new jobs and compulsory labor service through a forced loan of $500,000,000. The government is contemplating a 3 per cent forced loan from all persons possessing estates of more than $5,000 with the exception of landowners. To please the farmers the government is discussing a reduction of interest rates in Germany and far reaching embargoes on all foodstuffs. Industrialists have been promised wages will be reduced. The cabinet believes these measures will revive business.

Business leaders are warning Von Papen that further governmental restrictions and the state's administration of food imports will paralyze business. They have openly reminded him of his pledge to remove the government from private business in order to restore private initiative.

Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, vanished from his usual haunts today. The communist press circulated a rumor that he is in a sanitarium in south Germany. Hitler's headquarters insisted that the Nazi leader is at his villa at Berchtesgaden, surrounded by his lieutenants.

Farmer Cermak No Kin of Mayor, So He's 'Disorderly'

A squad of Des Plaines street policemen sped to Randolph and Carpenter streets this morning to quell what was reported as a small riot. They found an average sized man, stripped to the waist, in a pugilistic attitude, a half dozen other men standing at respectful distances away. The man, a farmer from Brookfield, faced the desk sergeant. "Your name?" asked the sergeant. "Tony Cermak," replied the farmer. "Any relation to the mayor?" he was asked. "No," was the answer. And so he was booked for disorderly conduct under his full name, Anthony Cermak.

BURGLAR, FREED BY KELLY, KILLS GUARD IN HOLDUP

Records Tell the Story of Bandit's Release.

How a woman's honor was bandied about by a burglar to save himself from a prison sentence and then to win a "commutation" from Judge James J. Kelly, which permitted him, while illegally at liberty, to commit a murder, was revealed yesterday by the records in the case of Donald Skene, 23 years old, who is held in the Kane county jail at Geneva.

Officials remarked the fact that Skene's capture was due to another woman. They pointed to the following dates and facts in the case:

Sept. 16, 1931—Skene sentenced to one year in the Cook county jail by Judge Kelly upon a plea of guilty to malicious mischief, a burglary charge being dropped.

June 6, 1932—Skene released from jail by order of Judge Kelly, without notice to the state's attorney, and upon the judge's quoted statement that reputable friends had vouched for Skene.

July 31, 1932—Herman Holtz, night watchman at a Borden Milk company plant at Elgin, mortally wounded in the back during a robbery which netted $300. The fatal holdup was traced to Skene and Henry Atkinson of Oak Park, whose pictures were identified as those of men who had committed two other robberies.

Trace Girl by Letter.

The first trace of them came from Madison, Wis. There Atkinson dropped a letter written to him by a Chicago girl and another girl turned it over to the police. Sergt. Michael McFadden of the Chicago force talked to this Chicago girl and she agreed to help trap the criminals.

Atkinson put in a long distance telephone call from Seattle, Wash., for the girl. Under police instructions she refused to accept the call at the time and notified the police. Seattle police were notified and after tracing the call they went to a rooming house where they found Atkinson and Skene as Atkinson was still trying to talk to the girl in Chicago.

Confesses Holdup Killing.

The pair were arrested in Seattle on Aug. 13. While being returned in the custody of Kane county officers Skene confessed that he had fired the shot which killed Holtz. He said the shooting was due to the fact that the gun used was old and not in good working order and he had to keep it cocked during the robbery. His drunken condition caused him to pull the trigger, he said. Louis Hartz, a witness, said Skene was enraged because the watchman had given him the wrong keys and that he had shot Holtz deliberately.

The prisoners were brought back to Elgin three days ago, and yesterday State's Attorney George Carbary turned them over to the sheriff, pending indictment and trial. The prosecutor said he would demand the death penalty. Carbary said the two had served reformatory sentences in Indiana in their youth, and Skene served a year in a federa prison on McNeil island for transporting a stolen automobile from one state to another.

Trace Skene's Record.

Reverting to the Chicago record of Skene, it was found to be as follows:

Arrested on the night of July 5, 1931, by policemen who went to a private garage as a result of a message that burglars were in it. Skene had been unable to open the doors of a large automobile in the garage, so he cut a hole in the roof of the car and unlatched one of the doors. The car had caught fire and he was extinguishing flames when police surprised him.

Assistant State's Attorney Homer Dodge said the burglar asserted that the wife of the owner of the car was his sweetheart and had given him permission to take the car. The owner and his wife, according to Mr. Dodge, were threatened with an attack on the woman's good name. The prosecutor said they agreed to drop the burglary charge because of the fear of such a scandal. Skene then pleaded guilty to the charge of malicious mischief and Judge Kelly sentenced him to one year.

After that, Mr. Dodge said, Skene wrote several letters to Judge Kelly putting himself in the light of one who had chosen imprisonment rather than let the name of a woman be sullied.

Petitions for Freedom.

On June 4, 1932, Attorney Wilbur Crowley of the public defender's staff filed a petition with Judge Kelly for a writ of habeas corpus for Skene. Assistant State's Attorney Euclid Taylor, who represents the state in such matters, said he was not notified of the petition and was not present at the hearing in which Judge Kelly freed Skene. Taylor said the action was illegal in that Judge Kelly had neither pardoning nor commuting power and had no jurisdiction over the prisoner after sentence.

Attorney Crowley admitted yesterday that he didn't consider the release of the prisoner on a habeas corpus writ strictly legal. Asked why he filed the petition, he said Skene had been doing good work as a clerk in the jail and "it was intended to reward him." Asked if he had filed the petition at the suggestion of Judge Kelly, he said he presumed Judge Kelly appointed him to file the petition, although ordinarily it is not within the province of the public defender to seek the release of prisoners.

Kelly Objects to Criticism.

Yesterday Judge Kelly said he did not recall the circumstances of the case and did not remember receiving letters from Skene. He declared there must have been a good reason for his action, adding that he objected to adverse criticism of his judicial decisions long after they have been made. Whatever was done was done in open court in the presence of lawyers, court reporters, policemen, and representatives of press and crime commission, and with no secrecy, he declared.

Judge Kelly notified State's Attorney Swanson yesterday that he would give his decision today on Swanson's petition that he vacate the order by which he admitted to probation St. Clair McInerny, Ralph Trimble, and George Dilly, who confessed several shotgun robberies and who have been indicted since Judge Kelly granted them clemency. McInerny and Dilly have been rearrested, but Trimble is still at large.

WOMAN WINS BRIDGE MARATHON CONTEST BY PLAYING 125 HOURS

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. J. Veer Camp, a 110 pound Los Angeles housewife, today claimed the title of the world's bridge marathon champion.

She achieved the distinction by playing bridge continuously for 125½ hours in the world's first bridge marathon, vanquishing a field of thirty-six original participants.

The contest, staged at the Elite Bridge club, came to an end early this morning when S. L. Barron fell asleep. Just a few minutes before Mrs. H. A. Smith and H. L. Lewellen, the other survivors, had withdrawn and gone home.

HIT AND RUN AUTO LEAVES BOY OF 16 DYING IN ROAD

Joseph Pajac, 16 years old, 4201 State Line road, Hammond, a schoolboy, was killed by an automobile yesterday at Sibley boulevard and Houston avenue, near Calumet City. The driver escaped and the body was found lying beside a wrecked bicycle. A coroner's jury found a "hit and run" driver had struck the boy and that he had died of a skull fracture. The inquest was held at the undertaking rooms at 248 155th street, Hammond.

This death and one other yesterday increased the 1932 motor toll in Cook county to 756. The other victim:

Robert Salisbury, 14 years old, 2626 West 36th street. Killed by an auto when he jumped from a truck upon which he had stolen a ride in front of 2415 West 35th street.

A coroner's jury yesterday ordered Mark Riley, 19 years old, 931 North Laramie avenue, an ice cream salesman, held for manslaughter in the death of John Larson, 25 years old, Addison, Ill., who was killed Aug. 15 in a collision at Mannheim road and Washington boulevard.

DIES WHILE AT WORK.

Joseph Pretscher, 29 years old, 6060 South La Salle street, collapsed and died yesterday, supposedly of heart disease aggravated by food poisoning, as he was working in the shops of the Rock Island railroad at 51st street and Wentworth avenue.

MYSTERY DEATH OF D. R. ETTINGER CALLED SUICIDE

Jury in New Orleans Returns Verdict.

David R. Ettinger of Chicago, head of the Riggs Optical company, who was found fatally poisoned in his hotel room in New Orleans on Thursday, committed suicide, a coroner's jury in the southern city decided yesterday. At the same time police said that they had cleared up several mysterious circumstances in the case.

Ettinger disappeared from Chicago on Monday, and was reported kidnaped. He flew to New Orleans from Cleveland, arriving Wednesday. At the hotel two names were registered for his room—A. N. Sanderson of St. Louis, for himself, and A. J. Blair of Cleveland, supposedly for a companion. Just before Ettinger was found dying some one called the hotel clerk from his room, asking for an antidote for poisoning.

Fail to Find "Mr. Blair."

Police working on the mystery failed to find a "Mr. Blair" on the airplane passenger list from Cleveland to New Orleans and no trace of him could be found in the city. Then police learned that the names Sanderson and Blair were both registered by Ettinger.

Later police said that the man Blair probably did not exist, and that it was Ettinger who asked the hotel clerk for the antidote possibly because, after taking poison, he wanted to live.

Widow Collapses.

Meanwhile, Chicago and Philadelphia relatives of Ettinger joined in the investigation to trace his movements during his four days' absence. In Chicago, Attorney Charles J. McFadden declared that Ettinger's business affairs were in excellent shape. Ettinger's widow was reported in a state of collapse at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Ettinger's body will be brought to Chicago for funeral services, which are to be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 2701 North Clark street.

Mayor Curley of Boston to Be Labor Day Speaker

Mayor James Michael Curley of Boston will be the principal speaker at the Labor day demonstration at Soldiers' field on Sept. 5, it was announced yesterday by Victor Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor. Following his address there will be a pageant and later the crowd will move to the World's Fair grounds for water sports, music and vaudeville.

COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION ADMISSION PRICES TO PREVAIL AT 1933 FAIR

General admission to Chicago's 1933 World's Fair will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, the same as to the Columbian exposition in 1893, it was announced yesterday by Lenox R. Lohr, general manager. The exposition is scheduled to open June 1, 1933.

The first 1½ million tickets will be delivered about Sept. 15, to the 125,000 persons who paid $5 to become members of the World's Fair Legion in 1928. Twelve tickets will be delivered for each $5 contribution.

Simultaneously about a million tickets will be placed on sale to the general public. A limited number of season tickets, bearing a passport, photograph and the signature of the holder will also be available. Companies, organizations, exhibitors and concessionnaires will be allowed to buy admission tickets in blocks of 500 or more at a discount of 10 per cent.

There will be no free tickets except for employes, exhibitors and concessionnaires.

UNWED WIFE ASKS JOBBER'S ESTATE OF TWO MILLIONS

Mrs. Mattie L. Kearns, 253 North Hamlin avenue, filed a petition in the Probate court yesterday asking that she be declared the sole heir to the estate of William H. Kearns, estimated to be worth 2 million dollars, on the grounds that she was his common law wife.

Kearns, a jobber and importer of bags and burlap, died on July 19, leaving no will. Shortly thereafter his sister, Mrs. Rose Fitzgerald, 3823 Gladys avenue, and brother, Daniel Kearns, 616 Waveland avenue, were granted letters of administration and named the heirs at law.

In her petition Mrs. Kearns states that she lived with Kearns as his common law wife for more than forty years, beginning before the Illinois law against common law marriages was passed, and that she is entitled to a widow's share of the estate. Since Kearns' estate consists almost wholly of personal property, she claims it all and asks that the letters of administration granted the brother and sister be revoked.

Mitchell D. Follansbee appeared on behalf of the present administrators to contest the petition, which was filed by Attorney Charles H. Soelke. The case was continued until Tuesday, when Judge Ray Sessler, sitting in place of Judge Horner, will hear formal motions on the matter.

SQUIRES GIVES UP HIS JOB AS CLEANERS' CZAR

Plans to Organize Beauty Parlors Now.

Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, University of Chicago economist, who became dictator of the Chicago cleaning and dyeing industry over two years ago, has virtually washed his hands of the job.

Dr. Squires revealed yesterday that he had stepped out as chairman of the Cleaners' and Dyers' institute, a self-appointed post, and added that the institute had been dissolved.

He still retains his title as "general sales manager" of the cleaners' association, a post under which he formerly exercised the right of setting prices and fixing wage scales, with the power of confiscating the plant of any refractory member. He has drawn nothing on his $20,000 yearly salary since a year ago in June, however, he disclosed.

Calls Industry "Chaotic."

"Conditions in the industry have again become chaotic," the economist conceded. "Cleaners have resorted to suicidal price cutting and bombs are being thrown. I don't know who is responsible for the bombs, but apparently the cleaners are going back to the old plan of using the union labor element in the industry as the disciplining power."

The present unsettled period dates back to last January when Benjamin Rosenberg, independent cleaner and pronounced foe of Dr. Squires' organization, was slain. His death brought the Squires organization under fire.

"I had hopes at the time that Rosenberg's death might be the salvation of the industry," Dr. Squires said. "The state's attorney promised a sweeping investigation and the institute pledged financial support. The investigation petered out and the last I heard the state's attorney had settled on the theory that Rosenberg was the victim of a triangular love affair."

Plans to Organize Beauty Shops.

With conditions as they are in the cleaning industry, Benjamin M. Squires and associates, an organization controlled by Dr. Squires, is trying to organize the beauty parlors.

The initial test is being made in Milwaukee, but a number of Chicago operators have been approached. The plan is to set up a "beauticians' institute," with members paying a $3 monthly fee for the sanitary inspection, training service, and institutional advertising to be offered by the institute.

With Dr. Squires relinquishing his power in the cleaning industry, another industrial organizer has been trying lately to take command of the industry, it was learned. The new candidate for the job is Aaron Sapiro, New York lawyer, who entered the Chicago field several months ago as arbitrator of the linen supply industry.

YANK ENDS LIFE IN PARIS CAFE IN JEALOUS QUARREL

Cuts Throat; Chicago Man's Sister Hurt.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Despite the efforts of a pretty Hollywood girl and her brother, a Chicagoan, to restrain him, Milton R. Harman, 44, who is in the oil business, committed suicide on the terrace of a fashionable Champs-Elysees café at midnight tonight. He slashed his throat with a pocket knife in full view of scores of horrified promenaders returning home from theaters and night clubs.

Harman was seated before a little table with Miss Cornelia Singer of Hollywood and her brother, Jack Sider, whose office is at 188 West Randolph street, Chicago. Miss Singer reproached her companion several times for eyeing another girl. A quarrel broke out, so violent that waiters rushed out in force, ready to eject the noisy clients.

Pulls Knife; Wounds Girl.

That calmed them down for a few minutes, but a few minutes later there was a quick exchange of words. Harman sprang to his feet and pulled a knife from his pocket. The girl caught his hand, but the knife cut her fingers to the bone.

With a scream, she let go and Harman drew the blade across his throat with so much force that he half decapitated himself.

Miss Singer said she had met Harman on the boat coming from New York three weeks ago.

Suicide Native of Canada.

Inquiries at the hotel, where the pair had occupied adjoining rooms since their arrival in France on Aug. 5, elicited information that Harman, who at first was believed to be a newspaper man since the only identifying paper he carried was a press card, had given his occupation as an oil man, born in Vancouver, B. C., in 1888, but recently living in New York.

The girl was born in Leipzig. She gives her name variously as Cornelia and Caroline and her residence as Hollywood. She is 33. Her brother, also a native of Leipzig, is entered in the hotel's register as living at 1080 Randolph street, Chicago.

EVA TANGUAY IN DESPERATE FIGHT AGAINST ILLNESS

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Eva Tanguay, famous vaudeville star, is waging a desperate fight against death in a tiny Hollywood bungalow, it was disclosed tonight. Confined to bed four months, she took a turn for the worse two weeks ago.

She is suffering from heart ailment, Bright's disease and rheumatism. Also she is partially blind. Her sister, Mrs. Walter Gifford, has been aiding in nursing her. She has not been removed to a hospital because funds were not available, Mrs. Gifford said.

It is said that her fortune, estimated as high as two millions in her heyday, has evaporated.

Miss Tanguay is 54 years old.

Bains to Be Tried by Jury on New Charges, Raber Says

Definite announcement by State's Attorney Swanson that John Bain, his sons and son-in-law will be placed on trial before a jury on the charge of receiving deposits while the Bain banks were insolvent followed close upon the action of prosecutors in dropping charges yesterday against Frank A. Mulholland and Dr. Walter H. Buhlig, indicted with the Bains in the original conspiracy case. They obtained severances and testified against the Bains and W. Merle Fisher, Bain's son-in-law.

Bain, his sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, and Fisher are already under indictment on charges of receiving deposits while their banks were insolvent. The offense charged is a felony, carrying a penalty of one to three years' imprisonment. In addition, a defendant who is found guilty may be fined double the amount of deposits he is convicted of receiving.

To Press Felony Charges.

State's Attorney Swanson announced his decision to press the felony charges after a talk with Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber, head of the prosecution staff which obtained convictions of the Bains and Fisher for the conspiracy which wrecked the Bain bank chain. They were tried before Judge John M. O'Connor. Previously Mr. Swanson had expressed disappointment that the younger Bains and Fisher were only fined. John Bain was sentenced to serve one to five years in the penitentiary. The sons and son-in-law were fined $1,000 each.

"After careful consideration of the outcome of the Bain trial," said Mr. Swanson, "and after conference with Mr. Raber and Harold M. Keele [first assistant in the Bain prosecution], I have decided to proceed immediately with prosecution of the Bains and Fisher for receiving deposits while their banks were insolvent.

"Mr. Raber has agreed to give any assistance that may be required to Mr. Keele, who will be in charge of preparing the case for trial. I shall do all in my power to see that the men responsible for defrauding thousands of depositors in Bain banks are adequately punished."

Prosecutor Lacks Auditors.

The prosecutor's office is short of auditors, whose work is vital in preparing the highly technical evidence necessary to prove a charge of receiving deposits while insolvent, Mr. Swanson said. He now has about 40 auditors working on various bank cases, but will be forced, because of a shortage of funds, to let all but seven or eight of them go. Regardless of other bank cases pending, the Bains will be prosecuted "to a finish," he said.

It will be impossible for Prosecutor Keele to ask that trial date be set in the new case before Sept. 19, the opening day of the September term of the Criminal court. The prosecution will insist that the evidence be heard by a jury, Mr. Raber stated. In the conspiracy trial, by agreement between defense and prosecution, Judge O'Connor sat without a jury. No such agreement will be entered into in the coming trial, Mr. Raber said.

Before his conference with Mr. Swanson, Prosecutor Raber entered nol prosses of the indictments against Mulholland and Dr. Buhlig before Judge O'Connor. Mulholland, a real estate man, participated in a number of syndicate real estate operations with John Bain, and at the time of closing owed the Bain banks in excess of $500,000, which he says he cannot pay. Dr. Buhlig was formerly Bain's personal physician, and likewise was a debtor of the banks. Both men were directors of Bain banks.

Raber Explains Action.

"Mulholland and Dr. Buhlig are less guilty than Merle Fisher and the younger Bains, who were fined only $1,000 each," Mr. Raber said. "That trio actually worked in the banks. This other pair were more or less on the outside, although they were all guilty.

"However, I can see no reason why the state should go through another eight weeks' trial of identically the same evidence, only to end up with $1,000 fines for the guilty."

Girl Tells of Kidnaping of Slain Beer Flat Owner

Some of the mystery surrounding the death of Nello Pellegrini, 27 years old, whose bullet riddled body was found Wednesday at 14th place and Clinton street, was lifted yesterday when police found Josephine Sanford, 21 years old. The girl said that she and Pellegrini had operated a beer flat at 1215 South Damen avenue. Josephine told the police that two men carrying revolvers kidnaped Pellegrini from the speakeasy on Tuesday night. She was held for further questioning.

MINE EXAMINER SHOT; STRIKERS PLAN NEW MARCH

Assailants Wound Man at His Home.

Zeigler, Ill., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Violence was resumed in the Franklin county mine wage controversy tonight, when Frank Moulin, examiner for one of the mines here, was wounded by shotgun fire. His left arm was torn by the charge.

The shot was fired from an automobile that passed as Moulin was standing in the yard at his home. The mine examiner was a supporter of the $5 wage contract recently adopted and which was protested by the strikers from central and northern Illinois who were repulsed Wednesday by deputy sheriffs when they attempted to invade Franklin county to picket the mines.

Moulin said there were two men in the car. Only one shot was fired. After treatment at a doctor's office he was able to return home.

UNION SUSPENDS STRIKERS

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Taylorville, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Smarting from their rebuff at Benton, where Franklin county authorities kept them from picketing the Zeigler pits, coal miners in central and southern Illinois, now on strike, were planning a new march today.

No date for the second invasion was set, but it was indicated that it would come within a few days, perhaps the first of next week. There was also talk of reducing the size of the auto fleet which strove by force of numbers—there were more than 10,000—to show how widespread was the sentiment of the protesting miners. Instead, a select group which can move rapidly was deemed the better plan.

Lewis Suspends Twenty Men.

Word of the new move was reported both at Benton and Taylorville. In the former town much of the talk today concerned the punitive action of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who fired twenty Zeigler miners from their unions. They were charged with leading the revolt there last week which resulted in picketing and the death of one man and wounding of seven others when deputy sheriffs interfered.

Mr. Lewis revoked the charters of the unions after this incident. The miners hurriedly reorganized, applied for and received new charters. This action against their leaders is regarded as only the first of a series of like moves Lewis is expected to make. It was reported in Benton that 103 miners would be similarly treated in Franklin county. Mr. Lewis favors work under the new $5 wage scale which the strikers say they will not accept.

Vote to Stay Out.

No movement of consequence to go back to work was noted among the miners in central Illinois today. It had been thought that numbers of the men would chose to return to the pits after the Benton episode, willing to accept the new scale. Instead, 1,100 Taylorville miners, who ordinarily work the four large Peabody company mines in this region, met at the Manners park pavilion and reaffirmed their determination to stay out.

Several men who went to Franklin county on the picketing march related their experiences and charged the special deputies under Sheriff Browning Robinson with assaulting a peaceful expedition with shotguns and pistols.

Resentment against the administration of John H. Walker, president of District 12 [the state of Illinois] United Mine Workers, was also expressed. A state convention to overthrow him for "misleading" the men to accept the new wage was suggested.

Two Peabody Mines Working.

Only two of the Peabody mines are working, and these with skeleton crews. Mine No. 9 at Langley operated with about 70 men and at mine No. 58 at Hewittville, on the Taylorville outskirts, about 50 diggers entered the pit. Peaceful picketing had been in progress for almost a week.

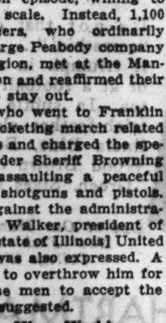
Thirty-two miners from Christian, Sangamon and Macoupin counties were indicted by the Christian county grand jury today on charges of rioting in connection with the picketing of the Peabody mines last week. A force of 10,000 strikers, many of whom later made the trip to Benton, invaded the county then and the great majority of the miners have not worked since.

The home of a Hewittville miner who served as a special deputy sheriff last week was bombed early today.

TWO OF POLICE FREED IN FATAL BEATING TRIAL

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Two of the five Nassau county policemen indicted for beating a prisoner to death were cleared of the charge today on the motion of the prosecution as it rested its case in the Supreme court at Mineola, L. I.

Justice John B. Johnston, presiding, dismissed the indictments against Acting Lieutenant Jesse Mayforth and Detective Charles Wesser when District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards admitted to the court that he had made no case against them.



FRANK J. TAPPAN.

Those still on trial are Deputy Chief Frank J. Tappan and Detectives Leslie W. Pearsall and Harry Zander.

Testimony that Hyman Stark, the prisoner who was allegedly beaten to death, could not have been killed by the pressure of a foot on his throat without breaking more bones than actually were broken was given by Dr. Otto Schultze, Nassau county medical examiner, earlier in the trial today.

COUNCIL BLUFFS WHOLLY SHUT OFF BY FARM PICKETS

Control Highways to Omaha Gateway.

"Those trucks will stop when they see a star, but they wont stop for us unless we make 'em," complained Hamp.

The sheriff said he would ask the attorney general's office about the legality of using deputies as pickets, and a truce was called. At noon he was informed by telephone that his deputies could not picket, whereupon the striking farmers declared they had been double crossed and began laying down the telephone pole blockade.

"I know it's illegal to stop those drivers when they don't want to be stopped," said the sheriff, "but we've got to have time to work this thing out."

Leader Disappears.

Another peace conference was scheduled for today, at which it was to be determined what form of picketing would be permitted in the event the attorney general ruled out the deputies. But the sheriff, city officials and leading business men waited in vain for Hamp, whose whereabouts could not be learned.

Clifton T. Savery, organizer for the Farmers Holiday association for southwestern Iowa and agitator of strikes throughout this territory, was here, but he declared, "the situation has got out of my control."

Mr. Savery said the policy of the Holiday association was still the same—stop marketing until the prices go up—but when asked what his price objectives were he excused himself and joined two "dispatch riders" who had come in from the picket posts. Wearing overalls pungent with the hay and other barnyard scents picked up in their makeshift lodgings last night, the messenger boys were obviously farm hands rather than farmers.

Trucks Go on Signal.

The principal picket post was on highway 34, where the tear gassing occurred. There all trucks were stopped started early in the year by Milo crew further down the road whether the telephone poles should be hauled out. They were hauled out for everything but empties, and the trucks were directed to one side and examined. If no produce was found they were sent on the way, but otherwise they were turned back.

A farmer and his wife who were taking a crate of eggs into town to trade for some groceries were forced to park the eggs at the picket post.

"You can have them on the way back," they were told.

Virtually all the pickets are from the northwestern part of the state, the Pottawatamie County Farm union having voted against the Holiday picketing. When asked what prices they are holding out for, they reply:

"We're holding out till Milo Reno tells us to stop."

Picketing was under way on several of the highways leading into Omaha from the west today, principally at Blair, 25 miles northwest, where Savery addressed the farmers at an organization meeting, and at Plattsmouth, 25 miles south, where there is a bridge crossing from Iowa. But the Nebraska picketers are not stopping the trucks, merely warning them that there will be no more deliveries after Sunday night.

Lift Sioux City Blockade.

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Sioux City's milk strike, which two weeks ago proved the spark touching off the present war of farmers for higher prices, was settled today when producers and distributors signed a contract. The agreement guarantees milk producers a flat price of $1.80 per hundredweight for fluid milk testing 3.5 per cent butterfat.

Murray Advises, Hold Cotton.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Telegrams have been received by both James C. Stone, chairman of the farm board, and Secretary Hyde from Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma suggesting that the farmers strike movement would be halted if the farm board would announce intention not to sell for the present its cotton holdings. No replies were sent, but it was indicated that the Oklahoma governor would receive the same answer as have other similar suggestions. The farm board's position has been that it would dispose of 650,000 bales during the current year to the extent possible without upsetting prices or harming the farmer.

South Dakota for It.

Huron, S. D., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Indorsing the anti-marketing plan to raise farm product prices, the South Dakota Farmers' Holiday association tonight tentatively agreed to start a nonselling program Sept. 5, provided other agricultural states agree on this date.

Collects $600 at County Fair; Robbed at Home

Miss Sarah Peters, 32 years old, secretary of Barnes-Carruthers Fair Booking agency, 119 North Clark street, went to La Porte, Ind., yesterday to make collections from a fair there. She started homeward with the money, between $600 and $700. As she stepped into the vestibule of her home at 6653 Stewart avenue last night two gunmen followed her. "We want the dough you got at the fair," they announced. They got the money and fled.

Bandit Compels His Kidnap Victim to Pay for "Gas"

A lazy bandit kidnaped a victim in Milwaukee last night and made him drive him to Stickney and pay for the gasoline consumed. The victim was Elmer Carl Johnson, 24 years old, of 3319 St. Paule avenue, Milwaukee. He was forced to step into the robber's car and sit at the wheel. Under the gunman's direction Johnson stopped for gasoline occasionally and footed the bill. In Stickney the robber took Johnson's money, $30, and kicked him out of the car.

CITY HAS A WAY TO TAKE LOAFERS OFF STREET JOBS

Private Contract Proviso Told by Aldermen.

Members of the city council pointed yesterday to a provision inserted by them in the city's 1932 budget as a remedy for the loafing of employés who are hired through political connections, but who are paid with taxpayers' funds to repair the streets.

This provision permits Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, to either use city labor or let the jobs out on private contract in street repair work, street and alley cleaning, garbage collection, and refuse disposal.

The interest of the aldermen was aroused by complaints that street repair employés are loafing on the job. One case was noted Thursday when a street repair gang of 21 men worked leisurely at the job of laying brick pavement in an alley in the block bounded by Michigan and Wabash avenues, Adams street and Jackson boulevard.

Nearly $10,000,000 a Year.

The annual appropriation for street repair work is $4,150,546, which comes out of the fees paid by Chicago automobile owners. The appropriation for garbage collection and refuse disposal is $5,647,790. This is a total of $9,798,335 for the two classes of work which might be done by private contract.

"It is true," said an alderman, a member of the finance committee who did not want his name used, "that there are political employés who do not work as hard as they would if privately employed. Their jobs are secured by political connections.

"Probably under private contract, properly supervised, the $9,798,335 appropriations would repair more streets and collect more garbage than under the present system, since a private employer would exact more work from his help. However, I remember the city's previous experience in repairing streets by private contract."

Richard W. Wolfe Recalled.

The alderman referred to the contract with the White Paving company in 1928, under a former administration, for repairs north of Madison street. The contract was tied up by a taxpayers' suit in which it was charged that the amounts paid to the contractor were "grossly excessive." Finally the council canceled the contract.

The commissioner of public works at that time was Richard W. Wolfe, whose office was investigated by the city council in connection with high profits paid contractors in the construction of the Wabash avenue bridge. At the meetings of the finance committee when the optional contract provision was inserted in the 1932 budget the aldermen expressed confidence in the administration of the public work's office by Col. Sprague.

HARDINGE OIL BURNER CO. LOSES TAX SUIT; ATTORNEY IS CHIDED

Judge Craig Hood of the Circuit court entered judgment yesterday for $1,092 delinquent 1930 personal property taxes against the Hardinge Oil Burner company. He added $19 court costs.

The burner concern was represented by Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston. At an earlier hearing Judge Hood chided Magistrate Porter on his rôle of attorney, and hinted his belief that the latter's participation in the tax matter was for political publicity.

Magistrate Porter complained yesterday against published references of that hearing, and said he believed that contempt existed somewhere. Judge Hood disagreed, and advised him that "young and ambitious lawyers mustn't be thin skinned, but must take the hard knocks with the soft."

SPANISH REVOLT LEADER TAKEN TO BLEAK PRISON

MADRID, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Gen. José Sanjurjo, whose brief rebellion against the Republican government ended in his conviction of treason, was taken today to prison at Santona, 250 miles from Madrid.

Santona is on the northeast coast, not far from Santander. The general's quarters are in the new Dueso penitentiary, still in the course of construction. It stands in a narrow gorge, jutting out like a peninsula, with sheer mountain on one side and the bleak sea on the others. Here, in a prison hitherto used only for the most desperate criminals, he is sentenced to spend the rest of his life.

JOB PRINTERS CALL PARLEY ON PAY REDUCTION

Notice of the intention of closed shop book and job printing employers to cut the wages of union printers arbitrarily beginning Sept. 1, was followed yesterday by the announcement of a meeting of the joint scale committees of the typographical union and the Franklin association, to be held Monday.

"We are hopeful," said Lawrence J. Corias, organizer for the union, "that an amicable settlement can be reached."

What that agreement may be, neither side was prepared to predict, but it was generally assumed that it would approximate $1.17 an hour, the figure offered by the employers last month.

An OPEN LETTER to The Honorable

ROY D. CHAPIN

Secretary of Commerce

SIR:

In answer to the appeal you have made to American business and business men for courage, foresight and faith in this Country and its future, I am happy to inform you of a decision which may help to "turn the tide in the right direction."

Our Company has, today, issued instructions to its Purchasing Department to buy immediately four million five hundred thousand dollars worth of raw material and supplies for use the balance of the year. And, in addition, wherever possible at present prices, contracts are to be placed covering all our requirements for the entire year of 1933, such contracts to be based upon an anticipated business increase of 25% over our 1932 requirements.

In taking this step we are motivated by the desire to sell our products by helping to increase general business activity; also, by the desire to take advantage of current prices of raw materials, many of which are the lowest in our 55 years of business history.

Coming in advance of the conference of business and industrial leaders whom the President has called to convene this Friday, it is my hope and that of my associates that this letter will help to show that American business is ready to prove by action instead of word that it has the courage, foresight and faith for which you appeal.

Respectfully,

ROOSEVELT RULE IN N. Y. WILL BE TARGET OF G. O. P.

Campaign Speakers Also Plan Attack on Garner.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The management by Gov. Roosevelt of the governmental affairs of the state and the conduct of John N. Garner, his running mate on the Democratic national ticket, as speaker of the house of representatives will be targets for attack by Republican campaign orators from the start of the G. O. P. active speaking campaign.

This announcement was made today at the headquarters of the Republican national committee by United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, chief aid to Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, who is in charge of the eastern campaign. The skyrocketing of state budgets during the Roosevelt régime and at a time when industrial and financial conditions called for utmost economy in governmental expeditures, and the lavish hand with which the lower house of congress was willing to spend the taxpayers' money will be focal points for the G. O. P. onslaught.

Mrs. Gann Slated to Speak.

The eastern speakers' bureau has scheduled an address for Mrs. Gann at an undetermined city in Iowa Sept. 1. On Sept. 17 she will speak in Buffalo.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke was added to the list of Republican orators by Representative John Q. Tilson, head of the eastern speakers' bureau.

Wood Lashes Democrats.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Congressman Will R. Wood of Indiana charged in an address today at a Republican rally that "any political party seeking to wreck the country could not do better than to emulate Democratic leadership as shown in the last seven months."

The Indiana congressman said Democratic leaders in congress during the last session "dedicated their best efforts toward plunging our common country into the abyss, through pork barrel proposals and grotesque financial schemes."

Among the items he listed which Democrats sought to pass were "a bond issue to construct 2,300 unneeded postoffices; issuance of two a half billions of fiat currency to pay the soldiers' bonus, and a futile effort to peg commodity prices by squandering millions of dollars."

"These grotesque proposals for relief failed to draw specific endorsement by the Democratic national convention," Wood said, "but they were given blanket approval by nominating as a candidate the man who sponsored the most vicious of them—John N. Garner."

"MA" FERGUSON'S FATE UP TO TEXAS VOTERS TODAY

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Another campaign charged with vituperation and personal animosity closed in Texas tonight between former Gov. Miriam A. [Ma] Ferguson and Gov. Ross S. Sterling, with Speaker John N. Garner refusing to take sides in tomorrow's Democratic gubernatorial runoff primary.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee said at his home in Uvalde he "did not care to comment" on a last minute plea of R. B. Crenger, Republican National committeeman, that Garner urge his friends to vote for Sterling.

"Ma" Ferguson, backed by her husband James E. Ferguson, impeached governor, led Sterling, serving his first term, by almost 105,000 votes in the first primary last month. She polled about 42 per cent of the nearly one million ballots cast. Sterling was favored by about one-third of the Democrats who voted.

ROOSEVELT PLEA FOR CASH BRINGS QUICK RESPONSE

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—There was immediate response today to the preceding night's radio appeal of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for small contributions to the Democratic national campaign fund. James A. Farley, national chairman, expressed satisfaction at the result.

When the headquarters staff arrived in the morning, several persons were waiting to hand in their contributions. By early afternoon 186 small contributions totaling $597.50 had been received. There also were some larger contributions, including one from William F. La Hiff, proprietor of The Tavern, who contributed a check for $500.

Couple Divorced; Will Get Children on Alternate Days

Judge Joseph B. David granted Mrs. Margaret Smrz, 2357 South Kedzie avenue, a divorce from Rudolph Smrz, a truck driver, yesterday in the Superior court. The decree provided that the husband and wife are to have custody of their children, Eileen, 9 years old, and Rudolph Jr., 5 years old, on alternate days. Last Thursday the two children created an uproar in the county building when, after Judge Ross C. Hall had awarded their custody to the mother, they clung to their father, weeping and refusing to go to their mother.

Fly to Arizona to Wed to Catch Honeymoon Ship

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The California three day registration required before marriage proved a barrier to plans for a honeymoon trip to China, so Edward Van Volgenbergh Sands, New York broker, and Mrs. Dorothy Power Hall of New York today chartered a plane for a wedding in Yuma, Ariz. Notice of intention to wed was filed here Tuesday, but plans to catch a steamer to the far east resulted in the decision to hasten the wedding.

200,000 TO HEAR ROOSEVELT AT SEAGIRT TODAY

Governor to Give His Views on Prohibition.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight resumed his campaign trail, motoring here to pass the night in his East 65th street home before going to Seagirt, N. J., tomorrow afternoon to speak on prohibition at the state Democratic rally. More than 200,000 persons are expected to attend.

The governor appeared happy to abandon his rôle as "judge" and leave the cares of the Walker ouster hearing behind.

The Democratic presidential nominee will deliver his address at 3 o'clock, eastern daylight time, and tomorrow night will go to West Hampton on Long Island, where he will be the guest of his law partner, D. Basil O'Connor.

The governor will drive to the New Jersey summer capital tomorrow morning and have luncheon at the home of Gov. Harry Moore before going to the rally.

Mr. Roosevelt will not be the first New York governor to appear as guest of honor at a Seagirt party. Four years ago former Gov. Alfred E. Smith went to Seagirt while the nominee for President. Mr. Smith, however, did not deliver an address.

The Seagirt rally has been a quadrennial political event since 1920.

Mrs. Roosevelt and two sons, John and Franklin Roosevelt Jr., will accompany the presidential nominee to Seagirt. The Seagirt speech is the second of four week-end addresses on the campaign schedule. There will be no radio hookup, but a monster crowd of more than 200,000 listeners will give him plenty of inspiration.

PENNSYLVANIA G. O. P. IGNORES PINCHOT'S DEMAND DAVIS QUIT

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Gov. Pinchot's demand for the resignation of Senator James J. Davis as a candidate to succeed himself for a full term was ignored today by the Philadelphia Republican city committee, which gave a blanket indorsement to the party's national and state tickets.

Members of the committee then heard Representative James M. Beck predict President Hoover's reëlection because of the "fundamental common sense of the American people." William S. Vare, leader of the Philadelphia Republican organization, sent a letter from his Atlantic City home praising the President's stand on the prohibition issue.

Gov. Roosevelt of New York, Democratic presidential nominee, was characterized as a "foghorn" by Representative Beck in his address.

"He announces a fog. He does nothing to disperse it. He merely blows his horn," the speaker declared.

LAY POSTOFFICE CORNER STONE AT AURORA TODAY

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The corner stone for a new $225,000 postoffice will be laid at Aurora tomorrow. The mayor, Conrad M. Bjorseth, and Postmaster James E. Harley will be the principal speakers. Postmaster Harley will review the community's postoffice history. It was in 1837 that the village of Aurora was named and was placed on a federal postal route. Mail was transported in those days by stage coach.

The founder of Aurora, Samuel McCarty, came from New York in 1834 and the settlement was called McCarty's Mills until 1837. At the time of the first postoffice there were thirty-four persons in the community.

GARNER ASSAILS BUREAUCRACY IN HIS ACCEPTANCE

Blames Republicans for Nation's Ills.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—A denunciation of the centralization of power in the federal government and of the Republican party as the initiator of that and other evils, furnished the chief topic of a letter published today in which Speaker John N. Garner accepted his nomination as the Democratic candidate for the vice presidency.

The letter, given out by the Democratic national committee was in answer to a letter of notification sent to Mr. Garner a week ago by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, keynoter at the Democratic convention and chairman of the notification committee.

Mr. Garner laid a majority of the country's civic troubles to the government's departure from its legitimate functions.

Dependence "Encouraged."

"Had it not been for the steady encroachment of federal government on the rights and duties reserved for the states," he said, "we perhaps would not have the present spectacle of the people rushing to Washington to set right whatever goes wrong. But successive administrations have encouraged this spirit of dependence of government either because of the lust for additional power on the part of federal officials or simply because of a blind insistence on the Hamiltonian principle of a strong centralized government as opposed to the Jeffersonian idea of giving to the administration at Washington only such functions as the states themselves cannot perform."

He then set out to list the failings of the Republican administration, to which, he said, must go a major share of the blame for the depression.

Attacks G. O. P. Policies.

Republican policy, said the speaker, had stagnated. It had built up the boom which preceded the crash. It erected the Smoot-Hawley tariff as a barrier to trade, and an incentive to foreign nations to erect similar commercial fences. Measures to meet the depression, he said, were inadequate and Democratic efforts to make them adequate were met with charges of demagoguery from the White House.

He denied that these Democratic efforts were meant to add to the government's financial burden and blamed the Republicans for having brought about an unbalanced budget.

Democrats for "Economy."

The Democrats in congress, Mr. Garner asserted, had worked for economy; the economy plank in the Democratic platform was clear and emphatic.

Likewise, he declared, in contrast to the Republican plank on prohibition the Democratic plank was forthright and unequivocally for repeal.

Mr. Garner opposed cancellation of the war debts and asserted that a tariff revision would provide the means of collection.

"The indicated imminence of victory brings with it Democracy's vast responsibility," the Democratic candidate concluded. "There is less elation at the prospect of success in November than awe that in our hands is about to be placed the destinies of our country; the happiness of our people."

CLOSE ARGUMENT FOR SIMPSON IN BALLOT CONTEST

Closing arguments for James Simpson Jr. were made yesterday in the Simpson-Church recount contest for the Republican nomination for congress in the Tenth district, now being heard in the court of Judge Thomas J. Lynch. This morning attorneys for Ralph E. Church will open their defense in the hearing.

At this stage of the contest Simpson has a recount lead of 25 votes. The validity of a considerable number of votes already counted in favor of Church is subject to rulings by Judge Lynch. It was indicated that more ballots would be questioned.

SWAIN PAYS FOR WEDDING RING WITH HIS TEETH

Cambridge, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Love found a way tonight and J. M. Clerc, Ambridge jeweler, handed over a wedding ring for a gold plate and artificial teeth.

"Five dollars," replied the dealer.

"Oh,—two dollars."

And Clerc wrapped up the ring.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE SPECIAL SESSION.

The legislature of Illinois is to be called in special session on Sept. 6 to consider emergency matters. Gov. Emmerson faces a somewhat difficult task in issuing the call. He will be under pressure to include a good many matters which can be left over, without great loss, until the regular session, which convenes in January; and, at the same time, he will be under pressure to exclude a number of items which ought not to be delayed.

There appears to be general agreement that the first duty of the session is to enact legislation which will assure Illinois an adequate quota of the funds for direct relief of the destitute, voted by the last congress. Congress made 300 million dollars available for this purpose throughout the country and Illinois has already received or been promised nine million. That sum will shortly be exhausted. The Reconstruction Finance corporation, which has the fund in charge, has indicated that no more will be advanced until the state has made it clear that it intends to exhaust its own resources in the effort to give relief before turning to the federal treasury. Judgment, of course, must be reserved on the specific proposals which may be submitted to accord with the finance corporation's views; but there can be little doubt that the legislature should take the matter in hand without delay.

There is grave danger, of course, that unwise legislation will be enacted, encouraging pauperism and discouraging men from earning their own bread. In enacting a relief law the legislature ought to spare no pains to prevent the creation in Illinois of a class of chronic loafers supported at public expense.

Congress enacted, also, a number of other measures which seem to require legislation in Illinois if this state is to derive any benefit from them. Possibly some additional legislation will be required if Illinois is to qualify under the home loan bank law, and, beyond all question, legislation will be required if Illinois is to obtain any of the money voted for housing and slum clearance. The law as enacted by congress permitted the Reconstruction corporation to lend more than a billion dollars for self-liquidating projects of various sorts. Among the sorts specified was urban housing. The act employs the following language:

"The Reconstruction Finance corporation is authorized and empowered . . . to make loans to corporations formed wholly for the purpose of providing housing for families of low income or for reconstruction of slum areas, which are regulated by state or municipal law as to rents, charges, capital structure, rate of return and areas and methods of operation, to aid in financing projects undertaken by such corporations which are self-sustaining in character. . . ."

New York has a housing commission and is said to have fourteen projects ready to release to provide employment for thousands of building mechanics. A number of other states, including Indiana, have already made efforts to qualify under the act. Doubts about the advisability of the federal government's entering on such a program can be raised, but the salient fact in this matter today is that the money has been voted and will be spent whether Illinois gets any of it or not. It will be spent in New York, Indianapolis, Newark, or somewhere else, providing employment for building labor in those cities, but not in Chicago, Peoria, and East St. Louis unless appropriate action is taken.

The act offers a means of getting a start on a reconstruction of Chicago's blighted areas. It offers a means of returning to this community a part, at least, of the enormous sums which have gone to the federal treasury from Illinois. Under the circumstances it is to be hoped that the governor will not fail to include the matter of urban housing in his call.

COMMUNICATION BY NEWSPAPERS.

Gov. Roosevelt, in asking his supporters for contributions to the national party campaign fund, mentioned the radio as one of the means of communication which cost a pretty high penny to use from coast to coast. It is an effective medium of sending a political message to the citizen in his home, but it takes money from the candidate who uses it. THE TRIBUNE writer reporting the speech interjected his own comment that this particular message was being presented to citizens all over the country free in their daily newspapers.

It cost Gov. Roosevelt nothing more than the effort to prepare and deliver the speech to bring it to the attention of millions of newspaper readers. Other means of communication are not free. They demand payments of one kind or another, for transportation, hall rent, postage, etc. Newspaper facilities are free when the message is of news value. Not every candidate will get what he regards as his due, but he is not a good judge of the relative importance of his activities in the world's news. The newspaper, in spite of the development of other means of communication, remains the chief dependability for the diffusion of information and opinion to the people waiting for it.

ALIMONY.

A man delinquent in the payment of alimony and told in court that he must pay or go to jail has committed suicide. The coroner's verdict was that he was temporarily insane. It must be apparent to nearly every one that an inequitable law has cruelty in its administration. Superficially it may seem to recognize the responsibility undertaken in marriage and parenthood, but it has in it ancient severities and injustices. Women of little conscience can take advantage of it and men can be made victims. The law lacks mutuality. There are no requirements which can be made of the woman. As her legal and political disabilities have been removed her legal privileges have been retained.

When she has obtained a divorce and an alimony settlement a special judicial process is at her disposal. She is not required to make her collections in case of default by civil procedure. The judge has a continued control over the man. In not paying the woman he is in contempt of court and can be jailed. A judge may take changing circumstances into account, but that depends upon his temperament. If he sentimentalizes the woman's case the man's equities may be ignored. The law is at the mercy of the human element in it. Its application can be frightfully unjust, arbitrary, and inhuman.

It can, in effect, indenture a man for the best part of his life to a woman wholly inconsiderate of the effects upon him and other persons dependent on him. Society in trying to give protection in one direction may impose unjustifiable hardship in another. The original mistake in marriage may have been distributed equally. The consequent failure may be equally attributed to twofold responsibility. The legal consequences are not divided. The woman is regarded legally as a charge upon the man.

If woman were still considered legally an inferior being and, once numbered among a man's possessions, forever chargeable to his care, society might hold him to the bill of sale to escape being taxed for his delinquencies. A woman leaves a divorce court a free citizen. She can remarry or work. There are no limitations upon her. She is the equal of the man she has put aside except as she is his superior before the law in privilege.

It is true that a man cannot expect to enter parenthood and then divest himself of responsibility for the children, although a woman may, but society in trying to protect these equities has created inequities. The alimony law has produced an alimony racket. It serves unscrupulous purposes. No one can be satisfied with its workings. The whole subject needs reëxamination. The law as it is and as it is administered does not meet the requirements. It is full of injustice.

ROOSEVELT ON HOOVER.

Gov. Roosevelt in Columbus looked over the wreck of the new era. Even as it is not often necessary to justify a success it is seldom easy to explain a failure. Mr. Hoover is one of the many Americans of high position in the affairs of life who can be quoted to his confusion. Roosevelt's attack upon his administration in the panic was skillful and in its onset convincing. It will not leave the Republican management speechless, but it presents that management with the hard terms of this campaign.

The clear vision of hindsight sees the things which Gov. Roosevelt implies were visible at all times to everybody except Mr. Hoover and his Republican associates. The ominous economic slant downward in commodity prices, employment, and many corporations' profits and upward in debts, costs, production, and world tariffs was there to be seen when America was in the ballroom and Waterloo was waiting for tomorrow. The dance was too alluring to abandon.

Gov. Roosevelt makes Mr. Hoover appear as a confused man facing the consequences of many mistakes and trying to avoid cause and consequence in dealing with them. It is a harder charge that he constantly deceived the people as to their prospects. The President was in a position where a man would think wishfully, hoping from month to month, even from year to year, that better, not worse, was around the corner. There were many who were sure that something could be done by pulling at the boot straps, and Mr. Hoover was unwilling to make concessions which would be regarded as confessions of impending disaster. There was an ebb tide and the human manipulations of it now appear tragically silly.

Politically Mr. Hoover must win, if he does, against such brilliant accusation as Gov. Roosevelt has begun. There will be more of it. But what of the governor himself? When he has revealed bureaucracy floundering on the tide flats where the receding welfare of the country had left it, what affirmative does he add to his criticism? Is it not more bureaucracy? He damns the ineptitudes of the government's operations, but he proposes an extension of its range. If he seems to recognize that socialistic theories applied to private enterprise had sterilized it he also reveals that he is himself government minded and that instinctively he believes that too much socialism needs more socialism.

This trend in Roosevelt himself, which takes on an altruistic mysticism in reference to the legendary forgotten man, is to be interpreted in terms of his political associations. He is the choice of some of the most dangerous men in congress, most dangerous to American principles and the American nation. The campaign is still vaporish. The governor is painting the picture of the President as he sees him. The country waits for the full picture of himself.

Editorial of the Day

ROADSIDE NAPS.

[Danville, Ill., Commercial News.]

Tourists from other states, motoring in Connecticut, are sending home a pleasant tale of service rendered in the course of duty by state police.

A driver rolling along in Connecticut late at night is likely to have an officer pull up beside his car and signal him to stop. Then the officer says:

"Do you feel sleepy?"

If the answer is "Yes," as it would be for many motorists late at night, the officer tells him to "Pull up at the side of the road and take an hour's nap. I'll call you." He does, and the motorist then continues on his way sufficiently refreshed to be a safer driver than he was in his sleepy state.

Many accidents have been caused by weary motorists falling asleep at the wheel. Wise drivers, feeling a drowsy spell overtaking them, usually pull up at the side of the road without being told, to await a wider awake feeling. Taking a nap with police protection and with a policeman acting as alarm clock is a good solution of a common problem.

REVERIE.

I'm sitting alone in the cool summer night,
Just dreaming alone in the soft moonlight
Of nights like this when I wasn't alone—
Dreaming of sweet summer evenings we've known,
When silvery moonbeams stole through poplars tall
To caress your sweet face where my kisses would fall;
And the shy summer breezes were whispering things
And we dreamed of the future—the joy that it brings:
With you always near me—how happy I'd be—
For I worshiped you—and you adored me.

Now I sit in the gloaming—as we used to do—
Just dreaming and sighing—and longing for you.

NIKKI.

THE SPELL OF THE GREAT LAKES.

Out on the Great Lakes where the moon sheds its soft silvery light across the water—out on Superior at midnight. As the huge ore freighter slips silently on through the deep dark water, you hear the ship's bell strike eight and the churning waves seem to whisper "all is well."

Far ahead the lights of sister ships pierce the black velvet horizon, and you feel awed by the vastness and the solitude. You think of the loved ones at homes, of the girl who is waiting. One remembers—it brings back fond memories, joyful memories, sad memories, and as you sit dreaming under the stars sliding swiftly on to silent shores you realize that you are under the spell of the Great Lakes.

IN THE OLD HOME STATE.

Dear Harve: Down in good old Indiana a fellow fishing on the banks of the Wabash far away had climbed out of his boat and perched himself on a floating sycamore log. Feeling a strong tug at his line, he became excited, and in trying to land his whopper too quickly rolled off into the river. Grasping a small twig he yelled "Help! Help." Another Hoosier strolling along in his Wake, hearing the cries, leaned over the bank and called: "Hello, pard, how'd you cum to fall in?" Indignantly roared our hero: "I didn't cum to fall in; I cum to fish."

WASHING THE NOSE.

RECENT experimental work has proved again what many have long known, and that is that the nose has an excellent automatic cleaning apparatus. When a man undertakes nose spraying and douching he upsets the normal working of this apparatus and the chance is strong he will do more harm than good. Except right at the entrance, all the chambers of the nose are lined by what is called ciliated epithelium. The microscopic whiskers on this kind of body cell wave as does a field of wheat when blown by the wind. There is no chance in this waving. On the other hand, there is in it a well organized plan and purpose. The waving processes and the mucus and fluid poured out in the nose maintain an even, washing flow that carries dust and smoke steadily from within to the outside. The outward flowing currents have been demonstrated. In different parts of the nose these currents flow at varying speeds and force. But the speed and the flow are adjusted to the need and the direction is always toward the outside, or some other dumping place. Nothing better than this steady, outward flowing stream has ever been devised for the purpose of washing out the nose.

If something unusually irritating gets on the nose membrane there is an outward gush of water—the key is turned and the hydrant is opened wide. To make the job more complete nature may pull off a violent air blast, known commonly as a sneeze.

Using all kinds of nose washes and douches is not the only mistake man makes in the care of his upper breathing apparatus. On occasions drugs are applied to the membranes of the nose to relieve some local trouble.

These are apt to be used as sprays, though sometimes they are painted on with a brush, or cotton soaked in drugs is plugged into the nose. Thinking to promote absorption of the drugs, many people mix them with liquid vaseline, or oils of different kinds. The natural lubricant of the nose membrane is a mixture of mucus and water. If any medicine is put in that membrane with a view to having it stay there and get in its action or absorb, it must be as much as possible like the fluids that are there naturally.

Oils and greases will not do, since they will not mix with mucus or with water. If a person has a nose disease and is to use any spray at all, he should not use a greasy one, or one containing any oil. The nearer what he uses comes to being water and salt, the better it will mix with local mucus and the greater the chance that it will have some effect.

NOT JUST "WORDS."

Mrs. P. L. writes: I read with much interest the letter in your column quoting Louisa M. Alcott's statement of seeing a mist arise from her sister's body at the time of her death. I, too, have had a like experience at the time that my dear father passed. I was holding his hands and, just before he breathed his last, a mist, exactly his image, arose slowly from the body. When it had risen about a foot it slowly went through the wall at the head of the bed. I have told several persons about it, but no one believed me. I felt that they thought me queer. There must be something to it and I know personally that it is not just "words," as you seem to think. Miss C. L. P. adds confirmation of Mrs. P. L.'s report. She wrote: When my only sister passed away some years ago both the nurse and I distinctly saw a white mist pass from her lips after her last breath. I quite agree with Miss Alcott's doctor that it was "the visible departure of life from the body." Please do not think I am interested in spiritualism, or anything of that sort, but what one has actually seen cannot be gainsaid just because others have not known like happenings.

TOO MUCH SUNBURN.

E. B. writes: Until this year I have been more or less normal about sunburn. With a little care there were no bad after-effects. This year, however, is awful. A few weeks ago, despite an umbrella and a big hat, and plenty of carron oil, I got quite a sunburn. My face and eyes were badly swollen, I was tired and achy for a few days, and had an upset stomach. Yesterday, again with an umbrella and a big hat, slacks, and a coat, I seem to have acquired another burn. I feel quite hot and my face is swollen. My head is splitting and I am so tired and miserable I can hardly tap the keys of my typewriter. My stomach revolted at the thought of lunch. As the day wears on I seem to feel worse. If I consume about two quarts of water, take a physic, and go to bed early, I will be all right tomorrow. But what causes all this?

REPLY.

You are sensitized to sunlight and, in consequence, develop symptoms after a very mild exposure. This state is paralleled by that of those who develop nettlerash after eating certain foods, and those who have hay fever after breathing certain pollens. The effects of exposure to sunlight are constitutional as well as local. Much of normal health and growth is due to the constitutional effects of sunlight. You illustrate some harmful constitutional effects. There are ointments for which the claim is made that they filter out the harmful ingredients of sunlight. Try some of these. If they fail you it may be necessary for you to forego the beach, which, it appears, would be a tragedy for you.

TALKING THROUGH NOSE.

R. W. T. writes: Will you discuss the reasons and remedy for one's talking through the nose? I think that affliction detracts tremendously from one's personality and makes what is being said very unimpressive.

REPLY.

So-called talking through the nose is partly the result of the shape of the nasopharynx and voice box and partly the result of lack of speech training. As a matter of fact, those who are said to talk through the nose use the nose least as a sounding board. There is no medical or surgical remedy. It can be remedied, in part at least, by training in voice placement. An experienced person can correct this and some other speech faults.

NOISY CHICKENS.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Friend of the People.]—The meat market located nearby is in the habit of keeping live chickens in the rear of the premises. These chickens cause quite a disturbance, starting at 4 o'clock every morning. It is impossible for my family to get the proper rest during these hours. What can be done to abate this nuisance? H. A. J.

Officers investigated this complaint and interviewed the owner of the meat market in question. He stated that he formerly had some live chickens in the yard in the rear of his shop, but has now discontinued this and has his chickens killed before they are delivered to his store, so that there will be no further cause for complaint.

MAY FORECLOSE.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I made a loan last year. A week later I was laid off. I was six months behind on interest and made no payment on principal. I started to work again and paid $48. They put it all on the interest. Now I have been laid off again. I have written them about it, but they will not give me a chance by reducing the interest or applying some of the payment on the principal. My payment of $48 still leaves a balance of $59 interest unpaid to Aug. 2. The principal is $250. Please let me know what I can do. R. S.

They are entitled to foreclose on any collateral that may have been pledged. If the interest increases to a point where your personal liability is the thing that you are afraid of, you could bar this by bankruptcy.

DEPENDS ON TRUST INDENTURE.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What percentage of bonds is necessary in order to foreclose on a building? 2. What can be done in the way of damages when a bondholders' committee sends out letters calling in bonds for the purpose of foreclosure when the interest and prepayments are paid up to date? H. L.

1. Depends on the wording of the trust indenture.

2. If you can prove damages it would be worth while placing your claim in the hands of an attorney.

LIABILITY ON NOTE.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About a year ago I signed a note for an assignment of salary or wages for a friend. He borrowed $300 from a loan company and after paying one-third of the amount loaned he left the city. Now I understand the loan company is after me to pay. 1. I did not know there was such a law making me responsible because I signed some papers. 2. The fellow I signed for did not tell me, but said I was only a witness and would not be responsible. 3. I am working now making $18 a week. I am married and have a baby. 4. Can they assign my furniture or hold my father who owns property? F. M.

1. We do not see how you could have failed to understand that the purpose of asking for your signature was to bind you to pay if the other party did not.

2. In such case the word "witness" should have been over your signature.

3. The exemption from garnishment is $20 per week.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 27, 1916.

WASHINGTON.—While 150 brotherhood leaders were leaving Washington tonight to prepare for the organization of the impending general railroad strike, President Wilson, facing a rejection of his demands by the railroads, postponed the showdown between the carriers and the unions until Monday, Aug. 28. Departing district chairmen of the brotherhoods carried with them plans for putting the nation-wide strike into effect and left with the union presidents power of attorney to order the walkout unless the railroads accept substantially the settlement plan proposed by Mr. Wilson.

CHICAGO.—Swift & Co.'s soaphouse No. 5 at 43d and Justine streets burned with a loss of $200,000.

CHICAGO.—Felix Auerbach, an exporter and importer of New York, met Miss Jeannette Adler, 455 Melrose street, a buyer in a State street store, for the first time at 11:40 a. m. yesterday. At 6:30 last evening they were married by Dr. Felix Levy at the Palmer house.

NOME, Alaska.—The Great Bear, the big schooner on which John Borden, Chicago millionaire explorer, set out on his latest arctic expedition, was pounded to pieces on Pinnacle rock, off St. Matthew's island in Bering sea, on Thursday, Aug. 10. Mr. Borden and all members of his crew managed to reach the desolate island, where for fifteen days they subsisted on scant provisions salvaged from the wreck. They were picked up by a United States coast guard cutter.

LONDON.—The Bulgars continue to overrun Greece. Driving back British cavalry patrols as they advance, they have seized more than 50 square miles of eastern Macedonia. They have pushed as far west as Orafano and have occupied the heights overlooking Kavala. The allies are reported to be planning new demands on Greece to check the Bulgars, for occupation of eastern Macedonia threatens the flank of Gen. Sarrail's army striving to advance up the Vardar valley.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE.—The doom of Thiepval seems near at hand. By a series of small, sharp attacks after enormous shellfire the British troops have forced their way across the tangled web of trenches and redoubts to the south end of the village.

BERLIN.—Attacks by the British in the Thiepval and Fourneaux wood sectors on the Somme front and by the French near Maurepas were repulsed, the war office announced.

PETROGRAD.—In the foothills of the Carpathians, in Galicia, the Russians have pressed back the Austrians and have made considerable advances, it was officially announced. They occupied the village of Guta and reached the sources of the rivers Bystritza and Bystritza-Nadworna in the region of Rafalov.

ROME.—Italian troops have won new successes in the Alpine regions along the northern part of the Austro-Italian front. The war statement says: "In the Posina valley we repulsed an attack against our positions on Monte Seluggio. In the Fassa Alps our Alpine troops progressed toward the ridge of Monte Cauriol."

CHICAGO.—George Sill Welles, one of the oldest members of the Park Ridge Country club, died at his favorite game of golf of heart disease just after making a long drive. He was 64 years old.

THE EXPEDITION TO THE MINES.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—I have been an interested observer of a recent expedition for relief of miners and investigation of mining conditions in southern Illinois and have read more or less about it in your columns, including a signed communication dated Aug. 22, 1932. I express the hope that your readers will not take these young folks too seriously; also that they will recognize the fact that the group in question constitutes less than 1 per cent of the total connected in some way or other with the institutions whose names are incidentally used.

I must admit, of course, that it was unnecessary to assemble a number of persons from several institutions in three or four states in order to distribute a ton of food among the miners. I must admit that the persons participating are not qualified to make an impartial investigation of the situation and that the method adopted could not have had that result were they qualified. It may be added that perhaps the main objective was propaganda and publicity rather than relief or investigation. By crowding in without any particular qualifications they could accomplish little good and might do considerable harm to the communities visited and to the several institutions some of them were connected with and whose names were freely used. I hope, however, that these young folks will not be taken more seriously than they merit, and that persons who do not like their behavior will not regard them as representing any significant number of those connected with the institutions from which some of these young people set forth.

CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—On Aug. 22 an article appeared in the Voice of the People signed by Frederick L. Schuman, University of Chicago, department of political science, which concludes with the statement that THE TRIBUNE should "urge a cessation of official terrorism in southern Illinois and the discontinuance of blockade measures contrary to constitutional guarantees of civil rights and to every consideration of equity and justice."

It seems strange to me that in every case which involves unionism our so-called educators are aroused when the forces of law and order attempt to preserve the public peace. No protest, however, is heard from these parlor pinks when 500 or 25,000 union miners congregate, and by force compel those who desire to feed their families to leave their employment. No sympathy is expressed for the nonunion man who desires to labor and keep his family from starvation. Apparently he has no "constitutional guarantees of civil rights" which need protection, and he does not deserve any "consideration of equity and justice." And why? Just because he believes in justice and the right to live for all and not only for those who pay dues to a self-constituted super power which says that all without its pale shall not eat.

As long as terrorism is created by unionists it is all right, even if workmen are clubbed or killed. But just as soon as the officers of the law step in to protect a nonunion man [who has the same constitutional right to be protected in his labor, property and life as any union man that ever lived] a hue and cry is raised in "academic circles" about the terrorism of the police. It has even gone so far that students who have not even reached the age of majority presume to tell our duly constituted officers of the peace what to do. It seems that the man who will not be bossed by a union official—a dictator—has no right to earn or eat his daily bread in peace.

The peculiar part of the whole situation is that the union man expects to make, and does make, his living by working for people who do not belong to any union, and yet the unionists deny to these same people the right to make a living. If the union theory of employment were carried to a logical conclusion the nonunion people would soon have no means with which to hire the union men, and they, too, would starve.

JASPER F. ROMMEL.

THE NEED FOR LARGER HOSE.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—In reply to J. J. M., I wish to call his attention to the fact that when flaming combustion reaches the proportion of a conflagration, as the Omaha fire did, sufficient water must be directed on the fire to reduce the temperature below the ignition point before it becomes controllable. It is utterly impossible to bring about this condition with the insufficient amount of water delivered by a single 2½ inch line. In my experience fires are either small, medium or large; consequently strategy is used and 1½ inch hose, 2½ inch hose, or 3 inch or 3½ inch hose and Siamesed lines are employed accordingly.

It is obvious that a small amount of water turns to steam in a case like this and loses its effectiveness or does not travel to the seat of the fire at all. As for the half hour mentioned for one company to get to work, his idea of time is poor, as 25 companies are put in operation in less time. Fires which in former years when 2½ inch hose was used would have burned for several days are now extinguished in a few hours, due to larger hose and modern equipment.

E. C. ROTH,
Lieutenant, H. and L. 2, C. F. D.

WHY THE FIRE SPREAD.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—J. J. M. in today's TRIBUNE criticizes the Chicago fire department regarding the fire at the Omaha Packing company and the grain elevator a few weeks ago.

Any one can find fault with something after it has happened, but, if it takes one-half hour to Siamese a line at a fire, J. J. M.'s watch must run fast. I don't believe there has ever been a time where it took one-half hour to make a connection to Siamese. If J. J. M. really wants to say something worth while and offer constructive criticism, why doesn't he say this particular loss could have been much less if the fireboat at the Throop street slip was in service? This particular fire was ideally located for fireboat action, as land companies were hampered on approach. If criticism is necessary, it should be directed towards city officials who withdrew fireboat company No. 41 and not to the fire department doing a darn good job under existing conditions.

HAROLD E. SMITH.

TAXES ON ESTATES.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Your columns have carried an appeal almost daily to the citizens to pay their taxes and relieve the chaotic condition which exists at the present time in Cook county. In connection therewith I should like to call your attention to the fact that even though the various departments and offices are crying for funds, it is impossible at the present time to close an estate in probate and obtain and pay the taxes due thereon.

Inquiry at the office of the board of assessors meets with the answer to go to the new board of appeals, and inquiry at that office brings the information that the board is not yet functioning and therefore taxes may not be adjusted or paid.

Surely in this crying hour of need some system, even though it be only a temporary one, should be adopted so that estates may be closed, the county receive its taxes, and the beneficiaries of estates obtain their legacies. I am sure a little publicity on this matter will remedy the situation.

A READER.

FORT ST. LOUIS.

Utica, Ill., Aug. 20.—I have wondered why the attention of tourists has not been called to a historic spot in Illinois called Fort St. Louis, located on state route 7A, one mile east of Starved Rock entrance. Visiting this spot recently I find that two men are working there steadily excavating the site of what is claimed to be old Fort St. Louis. A most interesting collection of Indian, French, and early settler relics are on exhibition.

ten times even these huge amounts. Let no man believe that these are questions which are of interest solely to big business. They are origins of millions of human tragedies of losses, unemployment and distress.

Strength Equal to Shock.

"Today that picture has greatly changed. We can look with assurance upon the cessation of foreign withdrawals from our country simply because they have substantially removed their holdings and we have successfully accommodated ourselves to it. Our strength has proved equal to the shock although with many casualties. Confidence is returning. A return flow of gold from abroad has begun. Europeans are again investing in our markets. With the large prevention of bank failures and with relief from foreign pressure and its constantly renewed fears, the domestic hoarding of currency has ceased and is now returning at the rate of nearly $20,000,000 a week. The demands for banking assistance from the Reconstruction corporation have diminished by $170,000,000 from the previous month.

"That our financial foundations are unimpaired is indicated by the fact that measured in amount of their trusts, 98 per cent of our banking and fiduciary obligations to the public are intact. Seventy million insurance policies and twenty-five million depositors have been saved from jeopardy.

Other Nations Gaining.

"It is not alone our country that is making a successful fight for the return of stability. Foreign countries have not been idle in placing their own houses in order. The Lausanne agreement has contributed to return of confidence. But while we thus see growing improvement in the financial sector, we must continue the battle upon the industrial and agricultural fronts.

"There is, however, a new setting of the depression, which offers opportunity through this confidence to set up machinery for wider-spread cooperation of private forces and to coordinate them with our government agencies for aid and action in industrial and agricultural fields

"It is not proposed to engage in artificialities. Nor is it proposed that you attempt to settle here in a day great economic problems of the future. It is simply proposed that you organize for action in the problems immediately before us.

"I should like to suggest to you some general directions of thought.

Better Spread of Credit.

"We need a better distribution of credit. Credit is available, but in many sections it is flowing inadequately in directions which would stimulate consumption of goods and employment. It needs resolution to use our banking and coördination to make them effective.

"There can be no question that there are in certain sections large numbers of businesses, particularly small business, which have been unable to find the credit facilities to buy raw material and to employ labor on goods which they can sell. There are difficulties in live stock and farm credits. There are foreclosures of home and farm mortgages because of inability to secure renewals. Yet credit is available if it be properly directed."

Urges Shorter Hours.

The President then discussed the spreading of employment through shortening working hours.

"In the furtherance of business recovery it is clearly necessary that there be coördination of effort in hastening the return of unemployed to employment in the natural industries," he said. "It is doubtful whether any action we could take at this time would so greatly accelerate our progress, serve the welfare of our unemployed millions, or so quickly give us as a nation the benefit of widespread spending power as further spread of equitable plans of sharing the available work. As a matter of national policy the shortening of hours is necessary not alone to meet the need of the moment, but it may be necessary to take up the slack in the future from the vast and sudden advance in labor saving devices."

Talks of Farm Problem.

Speaking of the farm problem, he said: "I do not need to remind you that the distressing problems of agriculture are not alone the problems of the farmer and the government. Its relief is one of the primary foundations of all progress in our country, and upon it does the progress of your business depend. It is as much your problem as it is the problem of the farmer, and coöperation of your committees with the leaders of agriculture and the agencies which affect their welfare cannot but be helpful."

Other Speakers Optimistic.

All of the other speakers adopted an optimistic view of the changing situation. A most cheerful attitude was taken by Mr. Robertson.

He asserted that the economic portents of today indicate that business has turned the corner.

"I believe," he said, "that the turn financially has been made. I believe that the situation today is one which justifies a more active move on the part of business generally to put their houses in order for a business revival. We have today 200 industries in the Pittsburgh area to which we would give credit if they desired to purchase new goods.

Prepare for Revival.

"When I look into my own bailiwick I find we are still in the red. What are we to do? Shall we close down more and cut expenses again? Or are we to say that the business turn is here and begin to get ready for business expansion? I want you to answer these questions.

"Have we arrived at the period where we should put our houses in order for a business revival? The answer should be 'Yes.' We can spend better now. Labor and materials are cheaper.

"My second question is this: Is the situation at present one which would justify a more active procedure toward building up our plants and getting ready to take advantage of the new business when it comes? The answer is 'Yes.'"

Pomerene Is Cheerful.

Atlee Pomerene, Democratic chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, announced equally cheering news.

"I am one of those who have supreme confidence," Mr. Pomerene said, "that this turn for the better is here to stay. If I had the powers of a Mussolini I would compel every supply house and merchant to buy one-third more merchandise this year than they did last year. I would make sellers give 90 day credit instead of 30 day credit. I would urge all financial institutions to be generous in making loans. If such things as these are done, men will be called back to the shops, their earning power will be increased, and we shall be on the road to recovery."

If the citizens of the United States "have the faith of a grain of a mustard seed, we will move mountains," he said.

Mr. Pomerene denied that the corporation had aided large banks and corporations only and had not helped small business and individuals. He said the corporation's loans already had assisted 37 per cent of the nation's bank depositors, adding that 69.8 per cent of the corporation's loans to banks had been made in towns having populations of 5,000 or less.

If he had the power, he said, he would compel merchants and manufacturers to purchase one-third more of goods than they did last year and at the same time require overliquid banks to be more generous in their loans.

Young Gives Serious Counsel.

In a vein of serious counsel Mr. Young, Democrat, upheld the Republican President.

"If we succeed even in small measure in this undertaking and can do it before the winter comes," said Mr. Young, "then, I think, these committees will have rendered a very great service to business in the United States. And not only to business because that is secondary, but to men and women who need food and shelter, and most of all who need to retain their own self-confidence and self-respect. And indeed not only their self-confidence and self-respect, but what is even more important than all, to enable them and us to retain the confidence of the children who are coming on. A father's job lost does more than humiliate the parent. It does more than weaken the respect of the child. It threatens that stability and so that opportunity for the future which is the basis of our hopes and the impulse for our accomplishments.

Not Political Problem.

"That is our problem here. It is not one of partisan politics. It is a problem of the perfection for the future of a social and economic system which is the only one having back of it the human experience of thousands of years, and however faulty, it is the one into which is welded the evolutionary backgrounds of the peoples of the world."

Banker Young told his business friends to cheer up; told them with this little story of two men who were discussing hard times.

"And what would you do," the first questioned, "if you had all the money in the world?" And the other replied, "O, I'd apply it to my debts, as far as it would go."

Mr. Young urged against making use of the federal loaning organizations except as a last resort.

"What we want to do," asserted Mr. Young, "is to make certain that all who are fairly entitled to credit and all who can use it advantageously are given an opportunity to obtain funds. The small business units which in many instances have hard work obtaining funds should be given credit if they can use it to advantage. Our job as members of the federal reserve committees is to see that deserving firms and individuals get the cash they need to keep their businesses going. I believe, however, that in helping out business firms we should not draw on public credit before we have drawn on every available local credit channel. Let us first see if we cannot meet our needs from private reservoirs of credit and only go to the big government reservoirs like the Reconstruction Finance corporation when absolutely necessary."

Roads May Employ More.

Mr. Willard told the conference that a large reconstruction program for railroads had been proposed by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

"We talked the matter over with the President and with the finance corporation officials," he said. "No definite decision was reached but each road agreed to look over the situation and do what it could.

"I figure that if business picked up it might be a good investment for us to borrow money and fix up our equipment in anticipation of better times. I urged the other officials to spend every cent for new equipment or repairs that they felt could be justified. I feel that the country is facing a human as well as an economic problem.

"The railroads today employ 1,000,000 men. Three years ago we employed 1,600,000. This means that something around 600,000 are expecting to come back to the roads some day. At present there are from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 unemployed in the country. The nation cannot go on permanently with that many people unemployed. For that reason we of the Baltimore and Ohio felt that we ought to spend every cent we could. We finally decided to spend $3,000,000 at once. If other roads follow our example 50,000 men might be put to work. Another 50,000 would find work indirectly through the purchase of material."

Avery Sees Better Spirit.

Mr. Avery said improvement was noticible in the Chicago district. He believed the recent rise in security and commodity prices to be on the whole, justified.

"While improvement remains to be felt in many places," he said, "there are increasing evidences of improvement to be felt in many places," he said, "there are increasing evidences of improvement in the general level of business conditions. The sentiment of the public has shown a turn toward increased confidence."

D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair, and a member of the Chicago committee, said he had been extremely interested in the activities of the conference and said he was sure that the members of the Chicago group would support the carrying out of the program decided on.

Expects Rails to Lead.

George H. Houston of the Baldwin Locomotive works of Philadelphia expressed confidence that the roads would go ahead and purchase new equipment as soon as car loading justified such action. The government through the Reconstruction Finance corporation will loan up to 80 per cent of the value of the new equipment, he said, to the roads.

"The rails have always led the country out of the depression," said Mr. Houston, "and there is no reason to believe they will not do it again. The railroads can help through anticipation of their future needs. If the roads spend to fix up their equipment now it will help employment and speed business recovery. Under the plan through which loans can be obtained from the finance corporation, the roads may obtain 80 per cent of the purchase price of the new equipment."

Urge Shorter Hours.

The oil men urged that employés in all lines of work shorten hours and split up labor so as to employ more men. Mr. Teagle said:

"It is up to the members of the banking and industrial committees of each district to see that the work load is shared. If every one will get down to work success is assured. This would mean more jobs and less unemployment."

K. R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Company of California advised the conference that a considerable increase in employment could be effected by Jan. 1 if business men, bankers and industrialists throughout the country would split up the available work load. He told of the work done by the federal reserve banking and industrial committee in the 12th district, asserting that even the banks in some instances were adopting the five day week. Mr. Kingsbury said that his committee would begin a drive for shorter working hours, which would take on the character of a liberty loan drive.

Urges End of Slums.

In urging the adoption of a larger home building program, Clarence Wooley, chairman of the board of American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation, stated that houses constitute the nation's largest mass of obsolete equipment.

"Now is the time to get rid of the cancerous slums," he said. "Most of the people in this country live in poor homes. The type of housing in New York and many other cities is a disgrace to the nation."

Mr. Wooley expressed the opinion that production of homes on a large scale might end the current depression. He asserted that house construction would benefit hundreds of industries and furnish work for many people. Work for 250,000 persons would be provided, he said, if suitable housing was begun for New York City alone.

FALL KILLS HOMELESS MAN.

Ernest Lindall, 48 years old, who lived at the relief shelter at 500 North Union avenue, died at the county hospital yesterday of a skull fracture suffered in a fall Thursday night.

HIGH LIGHTS FROM SPEECHES AT HOOVER ECONOMIC PARLEY

BY PRESIDENT HOOVER.

The reason for calling this conference is that we are convinced that we have overcome the major financial crisis—a crisis in severity unparalleled in the history of the world—and that confidence and hope have reappeared in the world.

Confidence is returning. A return flow of gold from abroad has begun. Europeans are again investing in our markets. The domestic hoarding of currency has ceased.

The demands for banking assistance from the Reconstruction corporation have diminished by $170,000,000 from the previous month.

Seventy million insurance policies and twenty-five million depositors have been saved from jeopardy.

While we see growing improvement in the financial sector, we must continue the battle upon the industrial and agricultural fronts.

BY OWEN D. YOUNG.

A father's job lost does more than humiliate the parent. It threatens that stability and that opportunity for the future which is the basis of our hopes and the impulse of our accomplishments.

BY SECRETARY MILLS.

We are creating a central organization for the purpose of contact and cooperation in the task to be performed by the federal banking organizations and such voluntary groups as may associate themselves with them with a view to gradual economic rehabilitation and more immediately an increase in employment.

BY FRANKLIN FORT.

Foreclosures of mortgages must stop until the home loan banks are functioning. Real estate repairs to preserve the value of property will be the first help the building industry can get. The funds must be found.

BY EUGENE MEYER.

The federal reserve board stands ready to meet the needs of American commerce, industry, and agriculture.

BY ATLEE POMERENE.

If the bankers, business men, and citizens have the faith of a grain of mustard seed we will move mountains.

URGES 60 DAY RESPITE FOR HOME OWNERS

Asks Bank Receivers Not to Foreclose.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Foreclosure proceedings on all mortgages in closed banks are expected to be suspended sixty days under a move of wide effect instituted by the Home Loan Bank board today to protect real estate owners until the new home banks begin to function, about Oct. 15.

National bank receivers were instructed by J. W. Pole, controller of the currency, to hold up proceedings, and Chairman Franklin W. Fort of the Home Loan board requested all state banking commissioners to order liquidators of state institutions to forego foreclosures for two months.

Told at Hoover Session.

Fort announced the moratorium in addressing President Hoover's national conference of business and industrial committees. He said the foreclosures must stop until the home loan banks begin putting money into the mortgage 'nvestment field to ease the pressure on mortgagors.

Fort said hundreds of millions of dollars would be saved to home buyers and other real estate owners whose mortgages are held by hundreds of banks in the hands of receivers.

"Many of the receivers in their proper effort to pay dividends to depositors and creditors have been demanding payment of mortgages and bringing foreclosure proceedings," Fort said. "The Reconstruction corporation can loan to these receivers against the mortgages funds with which to pay out depositors."

Calls for Delay.

Pole's instructions called for the deferment of foreclosures on "first mortgages covering the homes of debtors," but he explained that the broad policy of the home loan board against all foreclosures on real estate mortgages would be followed unless the interest of a trust is jeopardized.

In his telegram to state banking authorities, Fort said the board hoped to have the "home loan banks open and doing business on or before Oct. 15, after which date substantial relaxation in the mortgage loan market should develop speedily."

"In the meantime," the message continued, "we feel that foreclosures should be prevented wherever possible. We therefore request you to instruct the receivers or other liquidators of closed institutions under your jurisdiction to withhold or delay foreclosure proceedings for at least sixty days thus offering chance of preserving equity of owner of real estate."

Secretary Mills approved the move, explaining it would permit many real estate owners to retain their equity until money returns to the mortgage market.

ILLINOIS TO HELP

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday said Illinois would be glad "to cooperate to the fullest extent possible" with the Federal Home Loan bank board in its suggestion for a 60-day moratorium on home foreclosures.

Nelson said Illinois already was pursuing a policy of non-forclosure except in cases necessary to conserve assets for bondholders.

"In all the cases before us," he said, "we have pushed only about 2 per cent. No foreclosures are being made unless absolutely necessary."

The United States controller's action was regarded in financial circles here as an attempt to delay foreclosure on small homes until the newly formed home loan bank system begins to function. The move was generally regarded favorably in banking circles, although most bankers declined to make any comment until more details of the plan were known.

J. Soule Warterfield, president of the Chicago real estate board, said the order was a highly constructive step and should enable small home owners to work out of their difficulties.

DIVORCEE HELD ON WORTHLESS CHECK CHARGES

Mrs. Jane Watt Adams, 34 years old, 7219 Eberhardt avenue, a divorcée and mother of a 6 year old girl, was locked up at the detective bureau yesterday on the charge of passing two bad checks for a total of $20 at the Brevoort hotel.

She expressed surprise to police that Parke Simmons, 73 year old Evanston lawyer, had not appeared to make her checks good, asserting that he had done so on previous occasions. Simmons, reached at his home at 1746 Hinman avenue, Evanston, charged that Mrs. Adams was "an adventuress." He said he had known her for some time, but was not interested in her present plight.

"As far as I am concerned, they can give her the maximum penalty," said Simmons. "I've never put up money for her account in the bank, and I am never going to."

Simmons was divorced last spring by Mrs. Mary D. Wright Simmons after he had filed a bill for annulment charging that she had tricked him into marriage by pretending that she was to become a mother.

Ellen Glasgow Writes Novel of Old South

Studies Social Theory in 'Sheltered Life.'

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Sheltered Life," by Ellen Glasgow. [Doubleday Doran.] Published Aug. 24.

THE foremost feminine protagonist of the old régime [in its present form] in the old south, Ellen Glasgow, has just given us another of her memorable pictures of a social order which is, like Boston, more of a state of mind than a geographical section.

ELLEN GLASGOW.

"The Sheltered Life" portrays the old south—in its post-bellum manifestation—and has as its chief characters two men and two women whose lives have been "sheltered," the women's by the care of their men folk, the men's by force of circumstances and by a tacit acceptance of a man's right to his private life.

The two women are a young girl—a child for the first third of the book—and an older woman who, as the greatest beauty in Virginia, gave up what might have been a great operatic career [according to her admirers] to marry for love and who had spent, and tragically to the end of the book, continues to spend her days and nights being her husband's "ideal."

The two men are her husband and the young girl's grandfather. The pattern of each of those four lives is minutely detailed, although the actual day by day actions which have made up that pattern are not gone into too minutely.

Ellen Glasgow has a genius for a certain gentle satire. There is nothing swashbuckling about it, nothing bitter, but there is, undeniably, a barb in the lightest of her humor. "The Sheltered Life" is as rich in satirical humor as anything she has ever written, although the book is, when the delicious petals of the artichoke are peeled away, bristly with tragedy at its core, a tragedy which only protects the more delectable core of the book—that love is, perhaps, despite its disappointments, its agonies, its bitterness, a living, vital force in some lives.

How living and how vital a force is apparent first in the character of the grandfather who had known a long, comfortable, sheltered life, but to whom love, as such, had come but once and then without fulfillment, in his youth. Married for thirty years to a woman whom he barely knew—because they had been snowed out all night on a sleigh ride alone—the devoted husband, the devoted father, and—when he asked only after his wife's death for the comfort of an old age with another companionable wife and was again defeated in his yearnings by the weight of feminine dependence on him—a devoted grandfather.

The story of Gen. Archbald is an epic of "the sheltered life." A southern gentleman, always living up to the ideals imposed upon a southern gentleman, he retained, in some magic fashion, his belief in love. His own love had been but for a brief time and, so far as the world might have judged it, futile, with death closing the hymn of love before he had heard more than the first few bars of the paean, but in the chapters in which as an old man he reviews his life Miss Glasgow has made of him an epic.

The book, as a novel, has a very casual structure. It begins with the childhood of Jenny Blair Archbald and it ends with the tragic opening of her eyes to the world. But it is not so much the story of Jenny Blair and her adolescent love as it is of Gen. Archbald's life (all seen in retrospect) and Eva Birdsong's life (lived before the reader's eyes) with George, whom she adores and "inspires," but who is unable to deny himself the delights of women who are less supremely angelic. It is the story of surging currents under the calm surface of "the sheltered life."

Miss Glasgow could very easily have made her novel more of an entity technically, giving it the fluid quality which the greatest of fiction always has, a quality which makes the reader so conscious of the inevitability of its telling [in manner as well as in fact] that he is entirely unconscious of the author's method. "The Sheltered Life" is not so blessed. The reader hears the creaking of the technical machinery. But even occasional creaks cannot do more than momentarily divert the reader from the fact that "The Sheltered Life" is a memorable record of a social scheme—and a social psychology—most of it only a memory, and that, so far as intriguing stories go, it was like Eva Birdsong, beauty and undeniable allure.

Denies Single Novel Can Tell Story of West

Writer Says Life Has Too Much Variety.

BY BESS STREETER ALDRICH.
[Author of "A White Bird Flying" (Appleton).]

THERE was once a current idea that some day the great American novel would appear. A book was to be written which would be so typically American that all men could point to it as to a star and say: "This is the Story of America." There were those who named the author giving the greatest promise of performing the task. This easterner was to do it. That southerner was to write it. A man from Sauk Center was hailed as the prophet. The idea is obsolete.

BESS STREETER ALDRICH.

Thinking people agree that America, with its varying communities, its divergent activities, never can be represented by a single book. There must be many volumes to cover the ground. One shall possibly represent the old southern aristocracy and another New England life. One might stand for the small inland town and one for the big industrial center. One could possibly present to its readers American college life as it is, and one the atmosphere of the desert country. But nothing less than a shelf of books shall represent the many-sided nation.

In lesser numbers, naturally, but in relative proportion, not one, but several books, must represent our middle west. There can never be a single volume with the compliment introduction: "This is the story of the midwest." For the story of the early days in Chicago is not the story of the settling of a Bohemian village in Nebraska. The story of the beet fields is not the story of the social development of a midwestern university town.

The tale of the river villages is not the tale of the cattle ranches.

It follows then, if this premise be true, that there should be no quarrel over the various pictures of the midwest thrown upon the literary screen. "It is too sordid" is said of one volume. But life is sordid in the midwest—some one's life. "It is too gay and joyful" is said of another. But life is gay and joyful in the midwest—some one's life. After all, a story is but a mirror reflecting life in all its lights and shadows as the writer sees it, fiction characters but the reassembling of human characteristics the writer has known.

In my own case, before doing "A Lantern in Her Hand," I had read practically everything that had been written concerning pioneer mothers. Greater writers than I had pictured the midwest women of the soil. Who was I to attempt to follow in the footsteps of these artists? But there was one thing I could not erase from my mind. All the artistry of these writers aside, they seemed never to have portrayed my kind of mother.

So often they had drawn the women of the soil as gaunt, hopeless, despairing creatures—browbeaten women—women whom life seemed to defeat in the end. That was not my mother nor the mothers of many of my friends.

My mother was a rare woman, high-minded, a lover of good literature, even though her own schooling had ended in a log house. She was a woman who found joy in little things—to whom a fleecy cloud floating across the blue was a poem—to whom the twilight chirp of robins was a prayer. In those early days of hard work she must have been torn between her love for the finer things of life and the menial task her hands were obliged to do.

And being torn so, she did what many another pioneer mother did—she lifted up her eyes unto the hills while her hands performed their humble labors. It was such a woman that I tried to portray in Abbie Deal.

After much perusing of modern fiction one evolves the idea that the modern girl is only a single type. And yet she is still as many-sided as femininity has always been.

In "A White Bird Flying" I have attempted to show that she may still be of fine caliber, guided by unseen forces, influenced by the heritage that is hers. Not a true picture of a middle western girl? Just as true as the sordid story of flaming youth. It is merely of the latter that one reads the most. For, after all, there can be no middle western novel that accurately portrays all that is here. Only the shelf of books may do that. There are dozens of unwritten novels with midwestern backgrounds, as varied as the lives of the people. Only the surface of the mine of material has been scratched. And in addition to the writers of established reputation, I believe there is to come from this section of the country a group of young people who will tell simply and clearly the various stories of the land that is neither east nor west.

James Hanley Has New Style in Short Story

Swinnerton Sees Author Finding Himself.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special correspondence.]—Nobody can tell you why some authors are "collected" and others ignored by collectors; but there can be no doubt that among newer prose writers the one who has most attracted those who deal in literary "futures" is James Hanley. Mr. Hanley's new bock, "Aria and Finale," is just published in London. It consists of three short stories or episodes, all of them connected with the sea. Two of these have made previous appearances in expensive limited editions, but the first of them, which gives its title to the volume, is new. It shows that the author is abandoning a number of his former mannerisms of style [which are exemplified in the two others] and has some affinity with a fine story of Conrad's called "The End of the Tether." Only as affinity.

JAMES HANLEY.

It is about an old sea captain who is being retired after one more voyage, and it relates the conversations and feelings of his last days before the voyage and in a fog at sea. It is very simple, very sincere, a little sentimental [as is also the second story, which deals with similar circumstances in the life of an old sailor of another rank], and very interesting. It is interesting as showing a turn from eccentricity.

I think Mr. Hanley is gradually finding himself, and if he continues in this vein its admirers will certainly become more numerous, for there is an absence of strong language, and a greater sympathy with the normal than he has hitherto shown. Those who have collected Mr. Hanley in the past will be glad of the book, and those to whom he has been hardly intelligible will be able to see something of the quality in his work which has caused it to be so greatly admired by earlier enthusiasts.

This book is published by the young and enterprising firm of Boriswood, and so is another novel, very different in style, which will attract attention when it reaches the hands of critics. This book, which is named after a public house, or London drinking saloon, is called "Ye Drunken Damozel."

The author's name is given as Simon Jesty. His literary manner is extraordinary. He seems to have modeled his dialogue on the dialogue of George Meredith. He jumps from thought to thought with immense rapidity, so that the reader can hardly follow what he is saying. His heroine is a remarkable creature who seems to be an embodiment of all the arts as well as a very precocious amorist. She plays and sings and dances and lives in a wild melodrama of action with astonishing fluency. Yet she has charm.

One does not in the least believe in her reality, and yet she has a reality of her own. Amid much that is commonplace dressed as epigram, the book offers gleams of gold and considerable amusement.

Garbo's Plans Are Disclosed by Her Studio

Film Will Be Made in England, Sweden.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 26.—All speculations as to what Greta Garbo is going to do next can be set at rest, according to reports from her home studio. These reports say that "Christina," the story about the Swedish queen, daughter of Gustavus Adolphus, which was written by Mrs. Margaret Levino and Mrs. Berthold Viertel, is to be made shortly. The picture will be made abroad, interiors in England and exteriors in Garbo's [and Christina's] native Sweden.

Mrs. Viertel goes with the company to see that the making of the film will not warp the main character, to be played, of course, by Garbo, too far from the story as approved by Garbo herself.

Meanwhile, Berthold Viertel, famous German director, has returned to Europe to visit his father, who has been seriously ill in Germany, but who seemed to get a new lease on life with the visit from his famous son.

Mrs. Adeline Lobdell Atwater Is Bride of Harold C. Pynchon

Married at Home of Her Parents in Colorado; Surprise to Friends of Both.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE business of seeking society news these dull summer days was considerably enlivened yesterday by the arrival of a wire from Colorado announcing the marriage of these two popular Chicagoans, Mrs. Adeline Lobdell Atwater and Harold C. Pynchon. The news comes as a surprise to most of Mrs. Atwater's wide circle of acquaintances, for despite the fact that she has known Mr. Pynchon for many years, none but her most intimate friends had any inkling of her intention to marry.

The wedding took place on Thursday at the summer residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, in Estes Park, Colo., where Mrs. Atwater and her daughter Edith, have been vacationing since late June.

The bride and bridegroom are expected to return to Chicago some time in September.

Mrs. Atwater is well known in both Chicago and New York for her artistic and literary endeavors. She is the author of two novels, and I believe, is preparing a third book for fall publication. She has been prominent in the promotion of interest in the works of modern artists and has been a director in New York art galleries.

She was one of the chief instigators of the outdoor picture mart which flourished in Grant park recently. Her older daughter, Barbara, has resided in New York since her marriage last fall to James A. Drain Jr. Edith, who was a debutante last season, is studying for a theatrical career and played in the Goodman theater productions for children last winter.

Mrs. Atwater spends part of every year in New York but when she is in Chicago she resides with her parents in the old Lobdell mansion at 2716 Prairie avenue. Mr. Pynchon has been residing at 2130 Lincoln Park West. When they return from the west they are to settle in Barrington, but they probably will maintain a town apartment also. Mr. Pynchon's three children have been spending the summer in Barrington with their nurse.

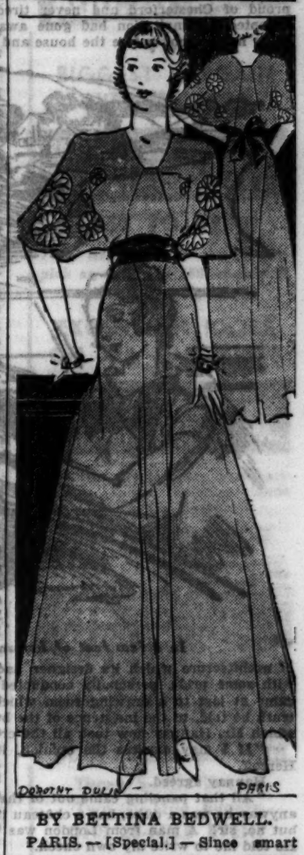
First Debut Tea Today.

Unless the weather man is capricious this afternoon, Miss Ellen Truax, the first debutante of the season of 1932-'33, will receive her family's friends in the superbly beautiful gardens of Egandale, the Highland Park estate of her grandmother, Mrs. William C. Egan. The debutante is to be presented by her grandmother and her mother, Mrs. Sewall Truax, at a tea and reception from 4 until 6:30 o'clock. She will be assisted by 10 of her contemporaries.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Earling Fitch, whose friends were hoping they would spend several weeks in Chicago before they sail for France in the fall, returned to Oconomowoc yesterday after a stay of only a few days in the former Jane Wright Anderton's native city.

Dr. O. E. Van Alyea gave a dinner party for them on Thursday night at the Saddle and Cycle. Mrs. Charles C. Youngreen of 1443 Lake Shore drive had planned to give a little tea for the visitors but it had to be canceled when their sojourn here was cut short.

Bertha Fashions Bodice on Frock for the Debutante



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Since smart women have given up low cut décolletés, even the most daring of the young debutantes are using modesty as their slogan for evening frocks. If there are not honest to goodness sleeves of some length, then they wear miniature jackets, capelets, etc.

At the gala night of the ambassadeurs, which closed the gay social season of Paris, there were very few of the Famous Forty with back and arms entirely exposed. Many smart women wore shoulder capelets or bell hop length jackets in bright velvet, which they donned after removing their ermine wraps.

One very chic woman wore an abbreviated jacket with puff sleeves in white broderie anglaise over her black faille frock. Another had a cerise velvet sash hanging from the left shoulder, one end of which could be draped around the neck as a baby capelet. And there were countless smart women whose frocks had short, puffed sleeves, or ones that came just below the shoulder.

I have had sketched for you today one of the very newest sleeved evening dresses that is particularly appropriate for the young debutante. It is in the palest of pinks and has a full floor length skirt which stands out from the body, by reason of being in starched chiffon. It has a modest décolleté and the wide shoulder line effect is obtained by the elbow length bertha that makes the bodice. The bertha is trimmed with insets of dark blue velvet flowers.

Knitted Clothes in Spotlight of Fall Fashions

Colors Get Attention of Smart Shoppers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THE knitting people must be dropping and adding stitches in shifts, for the smartest and most distinctive sports clothes of the summer season were fascinating knitted dresses and suits.

And the knitted things for fall are still spotlighted in all the busiest and smartest sports shops. Good looking new things, with all the intriguing new patterns and colors, are hanging casually around to tempt the early bird shopper.

Designing knitters continue the modest method of knitting the skirt of the fall dresses in the same practical, solid formation of last season. . . . but they certainly knit the sleeves with a large and nonchalant abandon. The new sleeves must have been copied from the first amateur efforts of certain wartime numbers, for the patterns are as loose and open as any careless knitter ever lost count over, but the lacy effect is tremendously effective and fashionable.

The colors are complete knockouts . . . until you have seen the one piece affairs with long sleeves tightly fitted from the shoulder to about four inches above the elbow, then puffed, and then tight from there to the wrist, you have seen nothing.

These new puffed sleeved models use the loose wide lacy pattern for the bodice and the puffed portion of the sleeve. The neck lines are either round or surplice style.

This dress comes in all good bold autumn tones, forest green, tobacco brown, wine red, and the special new color that is a find . . . an oxford gray or gun metal shade that is almost too good to be true. Shoppers with a flair for finding the unusual things will be excited over this color . . . there is nothing drab or dull about it . . . it looks as crisp and chic and as distinguished as any flawlessly tailored English street costume. You can wear it for a shopping trip, with a fur piece . . . under a tweed coat for traveling and to any sports event where smart, well dressed spectators receive more attention and notice than the players.

Other stripes and solid get-togethers feature brown, green, and a rich red shade for skirts and a mad conglomeration of stripes for the bodice. These screamingly cheerful things ought to do much for local color.

Some of the simple little things that stun the busy little shoppers are the various trinkets and trifles that are invented for the sole purpose of hanging around the feminine wrist . . . some woolly wag and wit has, in an odd half hour, devised the knitted wool bracelet as an appropriate and harmonizing accessory for the knitted dresses. Five of these oddities can be yours for a very modest young assortment of dimes . . . you can combine such colors as red, green, deep blue, white, beige, and brown as you will.

Five, or more, or less, of these bracelets in assorted colors are what you will see on all the "knowing" wrists around the town, for they are new, nice, neat, and just sawdy enough to be chic!

Evening Apart Won't Ruin a Young Romance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

He thinks seeing her three evenings a week the right way to keep in love. She says if he loved her he would want to spend every evening with her.

He says, "Gosh, we'll get to know each other so well, we'll get tired of each other." She retorts that his must be a funny kind of love or he wouldn't talk that way; that people in love do not get bored with each other, even though they have to stay at home and spend the evening there.

Well, "Mabel" [that's her name] must be reading some of the old fashioned novels. Certainly, she isn't up on modern literature as it analyzes modern emotions. It would be just grand if we could assure a sentimental young woman that where the ingredient of love entered, there could be no bored evenings, no getting tired of each other. But the plain truth is that folk in love can get tired of each other and they can get on each other's nerves and they can quarrel over the silliest things, and they can do all manner of incredible things.

To keep interesting a person has to have interests, make contacts, learn those somethings new you pick up from a varied acquaintance. And couples in love require the interest element just as they seem to require the endearments.

There is such a thing as expecting too much of emotion. It has to be fed, as it were. And it needs a vacation now and then to recuperate from too much pressure put on it. Men, anyway, require a little variety in their evenings. They want to play cards, get out with the boys, read, maybe, or study. Anyway, they're better at finding ways of amusing themselves than girls who demand every evening of a beloved's time. And they're wiser not taking the chance on smothering the feeling they have for a girl with too dogged attendance.

Yes, "Mabel," we think you'd better realize that love isn't ownership. It isn't complete monopoly. It's something, when it is the real thing, that stands well the strain of an evening's separation.

Sculptors Finish Figures for Fair Electrical Group

Sculptured figures of heroic size for the walls of the World's Fair electrical group on Northerly island were completed yesterday at the McNulty Brothers' studio at 1028 West Van Buren street. Workmen began moving the pylons, which will be 60 feet in height when assembled, to the exposition grounds. The figures are of modernistic design and will represent fire, light, darkness, and power. They were designed by Leo Friedlander of New York.

The work was done under the direction of Leo Lawrie, assisted by B. F. Hawkins, both of New York.

Mother Counts Patience as Best Quality

It's Needed Every Day with the Children.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

If a mother had to choose one quality to possess out of the whole range of qualities needed to bring up a family I wonder which one she would choose.

Of course, we'll not count love—for every mother has that. An even temper, perhaps, or patience, or courage to let the children make mistakes, calm nerves—there are so many qualities we wish to possess. Perhaps the best choice might be patience. It will sometimes do the trick even when understanding is not always possible. And here are two mothers who agree on the choice. I will let you read their letters—or parts of them.

"It certainly takes a world of patience with children. And the smaller the child the more the patience required.

"My little boy has been behaving badly. We have tried all methods of correction, even to punishing him. But I know that my impatience is at the root or all his misbehavior.

"It is most difficult at times when one is in such a hurry, with so much to do, to check oneself. . . . Sometimes having literature to read, such as your booklets, helps us so much to remember ourselves when we turn to the quickest way."

And: "I am the mother of three, and have so many problems! And the biggest of them all is myself. I show lack of patience and am too anxious I read your articles and am trying to train myself. Will you please send me the booklets listed below, but especially the one on 'Patience'?"

So let's tie a string around our little fingers again to remind us not to lose this priceless possession—patience. If you need definite help in this particular direction send for the booklet, "Make Patience Your Hand maiden," and inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bishop Visits Gymnasuim of Catholic Youth

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The boxing ring which is to be used to teach 200,000 Catholic youth how to "take it on the chin," was inspected by Bishop Bernard J. Sheil upon its completion yesterday in the new athletic center of the Catholic Youth organization in the Congress Bank building, Congress street and Wabash avenue.

Early next month the new center will be opened at the first step in combating "false standards of soft living in the present age." It will be available to the youth in all parishes of the city and is intended to prepare Catholic youth to face the knocks of the world with self-assurance. The center is a part of the greater athletic program undertaken for those reasons by Cardinal Mundelein.

Bishop Sheil visited each of the four floors where the athletic equipment is nearing completion and expressed satisfaction and pleasure as to the manner Cardinal Mundelein's plans are being executed. He pronounced the great green steel ring a fine piece of equipment. He visualized the gymnasium, with a seating capacity of 800 in an elevated stadium, and explained that the seats toward the center will be removable so that women's organizations may hold social functions there.

The showers, rubbing rooms and hot rooms are almost ready for use. On the third and fourth floors and also in the basement are fifty-two bowling alleys, which will be used for city-wide competitions. There are billiard tables in the basement, and in the gymnasium punching bags and pulley weights in addition to the boxing ring.

Bowling leagues have already been formed. The fifty-two bowling alleys will allow 3,000 boys and 1,500 women to play during the week, and as many as 520 in any one evening.

"We look upon this project as a civic duty," Bishop Sheil said. "In these troubled times the development of a greater appreciation of athletics will keep the youth occupied and give them a place to spend their leisure hours profitably to themselves."

Jack Elder, former Notre Dame athlete, athletic director of the Catholic Youth organization, is as proud as any one of the new center.

"The bowling alleys, the most numerous facilities of this kind under one room in the United States, are in perfect shape," he said. "We expect to turn out an aggregation of athletes that will be an honor to the city."

Bowling will be directed by James C. Archer, president of the Illinois Bowlers' association, assisted by Tim Timmons, secretary of the Holy Name Bowling association. Patrick F. McFarland, former lightweight champion of the world, will head the boxing activities.

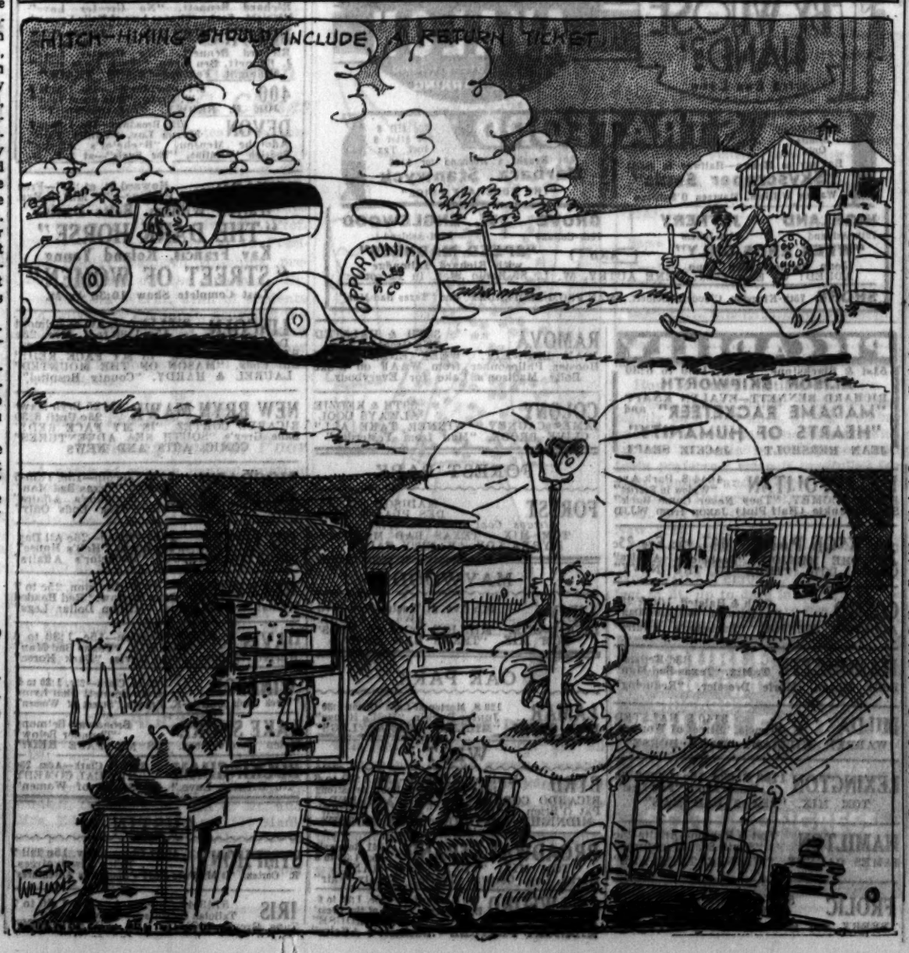
SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



Chicagoans at Hot Springs.

Chicagoans are figuring prominently in the colony of vacationers at Hot Springs, Va., where the beauties of late summer and early autumn combine to make the surrounding country delightful at this time of the year. Mrs. Joseph Leiter, with her daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter, and her niece, Miss Audrey Campbell, spent last week at the homestead after having gone to New York to see Tommy Leiter off to Ireland.

The Ballard Moores have just concluded a fortnight's stay in Hot Springs and were daily competitors in doubles tennis matches on the Casino courts. Felix Notz and his sister, Mrs. Charles M. Hines of Evanston, arrived at the homestead on Wednesday and plan to remain for several weeks.

Mrs. David Peck is to depart today to spend a month in Mexico City.

Mrs. Farley Hopkins, who went east a few weeks ago for a round of visits before rejoining Mr. Hopkins at their Phoenix residence, is now a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury at Pittsfield, Mass.

Noise of French Streets.

"All around is the hurly-burly of color and noise characteristic of the streets of Paris in fête time—woman newspaper vendors, wandering singers, trained bears, gendarmes, bicyclists trailing those long loaves of bread, grisettes, midinettes, darting Paris taxicabs with their tooting horns.

"Wandering down the boulevard in the midst of all this excitement, the visitor will pass cafés whose names are familiar to all the world, until suddenly turning into a quiet open square he will see ahead of him the beauty of a French sunken garden, and beyond it the placid Seine and the twinkling lights of Paris at night.

"The garden will occupy the entire floor space of the main dining room, which is on a lower level than the Avenue of Palms. It will be decorated with typical French garden shrubbery, and will be filled with benches and tables where the visitor may sit and watch the dancers in the center of the garden. The shimmering Paris beyond will be the work of the artist, John Norton, who will transform a canvass back drop 250 feet in length into a living picture of one of the most romantic sections of Paris which will wring the hearts of those who could not go to Europe this year."

The Fort Sheridan polo team, which was defeated last Sunday by Onwentsia, will meet the Oak Brook players tomorrow afternoon on the Army field. There will be jumping events before the game by some of the Army men who are to appear in the Fort Sheridan horse show on Sept. 16, 17, and 18. At the same time, 3:30 o'clock, a second Army team will meet a second Oak Brook team at the latter's field.

The Death Watch

By Edgar Wallace

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Dunn of Scotland Yard is in pursuit of a band of thieves who some years before had robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce in London. The robbers spent nine years in jail for the theft, but the loot was never found trace of. Peter's buddy, Inspector Sam Allerway, was dismissed in disgrace, accused of taking a bribe from the head thief, and killed himself. Peter, the only baronet in the service, kept right on working after he came into his title and fortune. It was his form of fun and he wanted to vindicate Allerway. The year after the robbers were released Peter, on a vacation, cruising on the Thames, recognizes a servant in a supposedly haunted house as one of the robbers. Peter stays in a nearby town and investigates. The house is owned by Mr. Hannay, who has one daughter, Patricia, and is one of two identical villas lying side by side. Hannay's has been improved, while the other is unoccupied and in a state of decay. Neither Pat nor her father believe the ghost stories, but the servants leave one by one.

INSTALLMENT VI.

QUEER HAPPENINGS.

It was not the first time Mr. Hannay had evaded the big issue. Always tomorrow something would be done. Pat sighed.

"I want a new cook to the situation," she said. "That's the third servant we've lost in a fortnight. After all, these people have seen things."

"I don't believe it," said Mr. Hannay irritably. "It's all imagination. Ghosts—bah! Death watches—rubbish!"

She held up her finger to enjoin silence. From somewhere near at hand the death watch was tapping rhythmically, noisily, ominously.

Mr. Herzoff—when he was called "professor" he generally protested—was a man of middle height, spare of frame, delicately featured. His hair was gray; his long, rather sensitive face almost colorless. Behind his horn-rimmed glasses were a pair of dark eyes, and the stare of these could be very disconcerting.

It was generally believed at the Mansion Golf club that he was wealthy. He used to speak disparagingly of his little house at Weisseldorf, but from what he said once they gathered that his little house was a respectable sized castle.

His appearances at the club were of a fugitive character. He had been a member for many years, but when he made his last appearance the staff had almost entirely changed. He played a good game of golf, was quiet, unassuming, and an authority on almost every kind of subject from economics to wild game hunting.

Mr. Hannay found him singularly sympathetic when, a little shamefacedly and with understandable hesitation, he broached this question of the supernatural.

The professor must come over and see his house. Mr. Hannay was very proud of Chesterford and never tired of exhibiting it. Most people who accepted his invitation had gone away unimpressed. Mr. Herzoff, on the other hand, stood before the house and pointed out certain admirable features of architecture which its designer had never noticed before. Mr. Hannay, with some pride, personally conducted his guest through the house. They came at last to a drawing room which owed much of its loveliness, if the truth be told, to the insistence of the builder upon certain characteristics, for which Mr. Hannay now took all the credit.

"If I may express the opinion, it's a very beautiful home," said Mr. Herzoff.

Hannay agreed.

"All that paneling came out of the duke of—well, I forget his name, but anyway he was a duke; has a château in France. I've had big offers to let it, but no, sir! A man from London was up here a month ago trying to get it. He told me to write my own check."

"I can understand your reluctance," said Herzoff politely, and waited for the story which had been promised him. "You say something happened here last night?"

Mr. Hannay took a deep breath.

"I am going to tell you," he said. "There have been some queer things happening here. At least, these servants say so. I tell 'em that the death watch is all nonsense. It's a little beetle that gets into the wood and starts knocking to attract the attention of the female beetle."

Mr. Herzoff smiled. He knew the insect.

"That is what it has all grown out of," said Hannay. "They think the tapping means somebody's going to die. That is the superstition. You get one or two hysterical girls around the place and they'll imagine anything."

Mr. Herzoff appeared thoroughly interested.

"What have they heard or what have they seen?" he asked.

Mr. Hannay explained.

"I don't believe in it—understand that. They must have left the wireless on one night. They heard voices talking—people quarreling. Then the old cook saw a man walking on the lawn. Some down and out looking around for a place to sleep, I imagine. Last night the maid saw him again."

Mr. Herzoff frowned. His dark eyes focused upon his host. Evidently he was impressed.

"They heard people quarreling—a man and a woman? That's queer," he said. "That's very queer!"

"Why, what do you mean?" asked Hannay, alarmed.

The professor did not attempt to explain what he meant. He asked one or two questions. What time was it at night when this quarreling was heard? When he was told eleven he started.

"Is there any significance in that?" asked Mr. Hannay anxiously.

"No," said the other slowly. "Only I would rather like to be here at eleven o'clock one night."

"Would you?" asked Hannay eagerly. "I was hoping you would offer to do that. I'll have your things brought over from the hotel."

Mr. Herzoff hesitated for the fraction of a second.

"You'd be doing me a favor," Hannay went on. "I'll tell you the truth, Mr. Herzoff, all this talk about ghosts and voices is getting me—er—rather worried."

Herzoff looked at him thoughtfully.

"I don't want you to believe for one moment that I am an authority on the occult. I have dabbled in it just a little, as every scientist must. Generally speaking, all this ghost business has a very simple explanation. Either somebody is trying to fool you or somebody is lying to you. If you see it yourself, that is quite another matter, but it is not conclusive. If you think your daughter won't object to my staying——"

"She'll be delighted," said Hannay with great heartiness.

Pat had been into Marlow, shopping, and was approaching Quarry Hill when there shot out of the Henley road a businesslike little racing car. She swerved violently to the left and jammed on her brakes, hot with annoyance, not unconscious of the fact that she herself had been traveling at a very good speed.

Peter Dunn, who drove the offending car, stopped within a few inches of her running board and eyed her reproachfully.

"There is a notice telling you to go slow," said Pat indignantly. "Can't you read?"

Peter shook his head.

"No. I can do almost everything but read," he said calmly.

She was breathless, still angry, yet mindful of the fact that here within a few feet of her sat the mysterious young man whose constant appearances near the house had excited her interest.

"You might have killed me," she said.

"I might have killed myself, which is also important."

"Very charmingly put," she said, maintaining her politeness with difficulty.

"I'm very sorry to have frightened you," he said, and that was exasperating.

"I'm not frightened! Do you mind backing your car so that I can go on?"

He made no attempt to move.

"Can't you go on unless I back my car?" he asked innocently.

"Can't you see?"

She was furious with him.

He nodded.

"Well, do something, please!"

And then he asked a surprising question.

"Aren't you Miss Patricia Hannay?"

"That is my name, yes," she said coldly.

"Good Lord! What a bit of luck! You're the one person in the world I wanted to meet. My name is——"

Youth Vanishes with a Second Edition of Chin

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Fashion has brought in so many features the last few months that we haven't had time to look the chin line over thoroughly, and maybe it's begun to droop, or go creepy, or wabble.

This line is just the one you can't keep your eye off for long if you have celebrated more birthdays than are needed for voting day. Those new bonnets, my sisters, sure do show up the chin line in all its glory, if it is glory it has to offer. If not, then you've got to start operations at once to get in line before the fall hat is bought.

Don't ask what the relation is between chapeau, china and jaw line. Just try the hat on with a mirror in your hand and take a side look. Or, just believe me that the face, chin and throat line are in for a publicity they haven't had for quite a few seasons. These bonnets call for chic, and loads of it. And youth, or its second best, made over youth.

Now, don't go on in your nightly ritual of creaming the face and considering the day's work well done with a pause at the chin and jaw line. Go over the border with creamed palm or a patter. Go right down to the base of the throat in your nightly operation. Just be sure that the jaw and chin line do not escape attention.

If there's sign of youth fleeing in drooping jaw line or under chin thickening put your head through its forward and back on the chest movement and turn it to right and left to make those muscles along the line we speak of pliant and flesh supporting. It's because they've lost their old grip that the jowls begin to appear along the side lines. Put some new pep back into them with these vigorous neck stretching movements.

Massage a good skin food into the parts. But don't think you're through yet. The best neck rejuvenating measure is yet to come in the astringent you pat on along that telling line of chin and jaw. Ice for those who can take it; a good astringent product for those who can't.

Concert Band Pays Tribute to Noted Sousa

Grabel Directs Group in Good Concert.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Victor Grabel, last Saturday night the general musical director of the Chicagoland Music Festival, was last night the conductor of the Chicago Concert band in a program played from the shell in Grant park. His efforts last night also met with success.

The Chicago Concert band is an uncommonly capable organization, full toned, sonorous, and at the same time flexible. It was able to put into Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" march everything that the name implies. It reproduced Wagner's "Tannhäuser" overture with dramatic brilliancy. It played Chabrier's "Espana" with expert dance feeling.

These major works were varied with others of lighter character, both programmed numbers and encores. Mr. Grabel permitted his name to appear twice as composer on this section of the program, once in the encore march, "Glory of the Marines," and once on the program in "American Maid Caprice." Incidentally he proved in both that he is capable of dashing off a sprightly, atractive melody with the best of them and giving it a charming instrumentation as well.

The second part of the program was a memorial to the late John Philip Sousa, a famous bandmaster and a personal friend of Mr. Grabel. It contained selections from the composers greatly admired by Mr. Sousa, a movement from one of the Beethoven symphonies, the prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin," and Liszt's symphonic poem, "Les Preludes," also a number of Sousa compositions. Among these were one of the first of his marches, "The Gladiator," one of his last, "The Century of Progress," and one of his finest suites, "The Last Days of Pompeii." It was a tribute both graceful and artistic, and one which those who knew the bandmaster can believe would have been approved by him.

A dozen special trains, one from as far away as Cedar Rapids, Ia., are announced to come into Chicago tomorrow bearing patrons for the performance of "Aida" in Soldiers' field in the evening. The stage is pronounced in readiness, and everything prepared for Chicago's first open air operatic spectacle.

Sally to Announce Party Winners in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Can you bear the suspense of waiting for that list of winners scheduled to appear in tomorrow's SUNDAY TRIBUNE, boys and girls? And, what's probably harder, can you bear the suspense of waiting to see that thrilling movie, "Seventy Thousand Witnesses," now appearing at the Publix-Balaban & Katz Oriental?

Well, tomorrow you'll know whether you'll be seeing it with me on next Thursday and then you'll have to summon up all your patience to wait until the party day arrives.

There's to be a grand stage show there in addition to the picture. It includes Peggy Bernier, who was so popular in Chicago a few years back when she appeared in the Oriental theater programs with Paul Ash. There are other numbers scheduled for this bill, but I'll tell you about them later.

In the meantime, if you find your name in that list of lucky boys and girls tomorrow, you may expect to receive an invitation to the party some time Thursday.

Children Bid Sad Farewell to Algonquin

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Seventy-eight sun tanned youngsters glowing with health sadly packed their bags and boxes yesterday, climbed into the waiting trucks and bade farewell to the hills and vales of Camp Algonquin.

It had been their home for two months. They had come pale and thin, their lack luster eyes indifferent to the beauties of the camp. The tenements had been their home—tenements filled with too many people and not enough food. They weren't exactly sick children when they came, but a few more hard knocks might have made them so.

Even the nurses and the staff of teachers and play directors would scarcely have known the children who departed for the same ones who came early in the summer. The nurses and the teachers helped fasten the last traveling bag and reminded Johnny and Mary to remember to eat cereal and vegetables and drink lots of milk and continue getting plenty of sleep. Every last youngster was on his way to health, and undernourishment had been routed.

The return of the "all summer" children to the city will release the space they occupied for the use of additional mothers and children who will be given two week vacations until the camp closes late in September.

While readers have been kind to the ice fund, the Camp Algonquin fund has suffered this summer. Money is needed to send these additional mothers and their children to the Fox river haven. Ten dollars pays for a vacation of two weeks. This provides food, recreation, a bed, and material for some of the sewing clubs or children's handiwork classes.

31—G. F., Joy Y. Lichtenwalner, Dr. Lie Kian Wie.

Total	$ 17.00
Previously acknowledged	2,116.69
Grand total	$2,133.69

It should be noted that two of these contributions came from other parts of the world. Dr. Lie Kian Wie sent his gift from the Dutch East Indies and Joy Y. Lichtenwalner from San Diego, Cal.

Gifts to both funds should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Sweden to Arrange Many Parties for Prince of Wales

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 26.—Plans for the visit in October of the prince of Wales and Prince George were announced today. This will be the first royal British visit to Sweden since 1906.

The princes will arrive in their own plane from Copenhagen, Oct. 1, and will stay for four days as guests of King Gustaf V. at the royal palace. The princes then will go to the British legation for another four days.

A big round of festivities have been arranged including a gala dinner at the palace. Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf also will give a family supper for the princes. There will be dances and other functions by the British colony and Wales will golf daily at Stockholm stadium.

(The princes will attend the British exhibition at Copenhagen, Sept. 24. After the visit to Stockholm they will attend the wedding of the Swedish crown prince's son, Gustaf Adolf, to Princess Sibylle of Saxe-Coburg at Coburg, Oct. 20. When the tour was announced, Swedish editors were asked not to mention a current rumor which said that the engagement of Princess Ingrid of Sweden to Wales would be announced this fall.)

Women Hold Another Canning Bee for Poor

A party of women canned another 200 cans of foodstuffs at the St. James community house yesterday to be added to the pantry stores of food for the poor this winter. Approximately 2,500 cans of vegetables have been put up at the center. Mrs. John Harris, director of the canning work, said that if the response of the women continues several thousand cans will be available for the poor. St. Paul's parish house, Riverside, is also the center of a canning bee once a week.

Good Morning!

"Give a man a horse he can ride" and Marion Davies a suitable rôle—and the results are most satisfactory, thank you.

This gay, blonde comedienne who is not always fortunate in her releases, has the sort of thing she does best in "Blondie of the Follies." A veteran of the musical comedy stage, she knows her life behind the footlights and gives a breezy, believable, and atmospheric portrayal as a Follies girl recruited from the tenements of New York's east side.

Miss Davies' generosity is a sort of a saga of Hollywood and so one is not so much surprised at the generous spot lighting she accords Billie Dove as one is at the delightful manner in which Miss Dove proves herself worthy of the prominence accorded her. The two render a whirlwind duo as devoted, scrapping girl friends who have the misfortune to covet the same man. [Robert Montgomery, darlings! Could you blame 'em?] He does a nice job as Larry, millionaire playboy and bone of contention.

"Blondie of the Follies" is speedy, colorful, eventful, and brilliantly directed. It has pat dialogue, suspense. Money has been lavished on staging and costumes and the supporting cast know their p's and q's from the ground up. I can't think of any reason at all why this live and sophisticated offering shouldn't garner rich returns at the box office window.

See you tomorrow!

Pupils of Dancing School Present 68 Numbers in Review

Pupils in the dancing school conducted this week by the Chicago Dancing Masters' association got out their fanciest costumes and went through their favorite steps last night at the annual review of the very latest in dancing held in the gold room of the Congress hotel.

There were 68 numbers on the printed program not including the special numbers squeezed in between. The ballroom was packed and the profession and guests applauded every number and seemed not to tire as the dancing went on endlessly toward midnight.

"Ins't that sweet," "that's good," and "perfect technique" were heard as peppy taps, acrobatic numbers, military drills, oriental dances, high kicking, and other specialty numbers came into the spotlight. While the program consisted chiefly of tap and specialty numbers for the stage, a few ballroom numbers were exhibited, including the waltz moderne and waltz Espagnole presented by Malone-Gavlas.

There were dancers from Gary, Ind.; Oak Park, New Orleans, Oshkosh, Terre Haute, Decatur, Ill.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Clinton, Ia.; St. Louis, Cincinnati, Danville, Ill.; Bellevue, Ky., and Little Rock, Ark. The dancing school will continue through tomorrow.

"Ask me another" ought to be our official column title on Saturdays, since it's then we clean house and round up answers for all the questions which haven't been attended to in the mail during the week. The "whys" have been a bit more puzzling and therefore that much more interesting this week. I have chosen these to print, as they are questions a great many of you raise—but don't always quite get around to ask.

Question [Mrs. N. H. F.]: "What is the difference between the bakers' bread they call 'whole wheat' and that called 'graham'? Why is it that some whole wheat breads are so much darker than others? And is whole wheat bread really better nutritionally than white?"

Answer: While different parts of the country seem to give different names to breads and offer for sale different kinds of flour under the same name, in most localities graham and whole wheat flours are now actually the same. They consist of the whole wheat kernel ground without any refining. Graham flour used to be ground more coarsely, but this is now very seldom the case. The term "whole wheat bread" does not, however, necessarily mean that all the flour in the bread is whole wheat flour. The proportions of whole wheat and added white flour vary, though the baker is required to indicate the proportion on the label. This variance may determine the color of the bread, but it is more often influenced by the addition of molasses, which gives flavor as well as color and richness. When flour is milled and the fiber removed a certain percentage of the mineral and vitamin content in which the fiber is high is lost. The action of the indigestible part of the fiber as a gentle laxative also is done away with. On the other hand, white bread retains much of its value as a source of energy and can be supplemented with sufficient whole grains cereals in other forms.

Question [Mrs. G. D.]: "What makes my egg omelettes turn black on the bottom? It isn't a burn, but rather of a discoloration."

Answer: This comes from using an iron frying pan. The black material is harmless but rather unpleasant in appearance. It is formed as the result of the action of the sulphur in the eggs on the iron in the pan. An aluminum frying pan will not produce this result.

Question [Mrs. F. F.]: "Why does my tomato soup sometimes curdle and sometimes not? Should soda be used?"

Answer: There are various ways of successfully mixing tomato soup without the use of soda if the condition of the milk and the tomatoes is right. The reason for occasional curdling is that at those times either the tomato used is too sour or else there is too much acidity already in the milk. The combination of them sometimes coagulates certain substances in the milk. Longer slow cooking also tends to curdle milk. While the following method is not invulnerable if too much acid is involved, it usually works most satisfactorily. If there is any sign of curdling, sprinkle in a little soda. Fresh milk should make this unnecessary, however.

SAVORY CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP.
2 cups tomato juice and pulp
2 cups milk
¼ cup butter, melted
¼ cup flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash of nutmeg
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 bay leaf

Add the seasonings to the tomatoes and simmer ten minutes. Press through a strainer. Blend the flour and fat and mix with a little of the warm tomato juice, stirring to avoid lumps. Stir the mixture slowly into the rest of the tomato juice and simmer till thickened. Add slowly to the cold milk, stirring constantly, and heat to the boiling point.

Question [Mrs. D. A. F.]: "What makes cheese rarebit stringy?"

Answer: Cooking at too high temperature or for too long a time tends to harden the protein materials in cheese and to cause it to cling together or rope. Use of good fresh cheese, cut in small pieces or put through a grinder and then crumbled, together with gentle cooking only until the rarebit is well blended and thickened, should do away with this trouble.

SHERWOOD'S AID TELLS HOW SHE BANKED CHECKS

Funds of Walker Agent in Her Own Account.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—A graphic picture of Russell T. Sherwood as "the man of a million duties" was drawn today by two witnesses at the Walker hearing before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Miss Mildred K. Day, a clerk in Mayor Walker's former law office, told how she had taken care of the missing man's income from various stock and bond investments by indorsing the checks and putting them in her private account in a New Jersey bank, where they were safe from prying eyes.

"Million Things to Do."

"He was more or less of a student type," said Mr. MacIntyre, "and was intensely interested in matters connected with accountancy and in its related subject of taxation. He was the busiest person that you could possibly imagine. He continually seemed to have a million different things to do, and even his Sundays were occupied. He was hard working."

Miss Day's description of the vanished accountant was even more flattering. She had occupied the same office, used the same telephone, and was his trusted aid.

"Mr. Sherwood was a very high type of gentleman," the young woman testified. "He was a man who could keep his own counsel, and for that reason was relied upon by every one who came in contact with him. People in the office had the greatest confidence in him in every way. He was reserved, of course; his honesty was beyond question."

Mr. Seabury fingered his white hair reflectively at this new picture of the man he terms the "key witness" to the entire Walker case.

Letters for Sherwood.

Mr. MacIntyre had told of four letters coming to his office from Sherwood since his disappearance. They were brought to his place of business by Sherwood's sister, he testified. Miss Day also told of the letters, but their contents were not read into the record.

Miss Day was asked:

"Did some checks come to the office addressed to Mr. Sherwood?"

She replied:

"They did, and I put them in my own account in the East Orange Trust company."

At this point Gov. Roosevelt inquired of Mr. Curtin whether he was trying to impeach his own witness. Mr. Curtin said, "Certainly not." The young woman then swung into her story of Sherwood and his big business methods.

Mr. Seabury has made out a case against Sherwood as an undercover banker for Mayor Walker. Mayor Walker has denied this, insisting Sherwood handled only his "private affairs," such as cashing salary checks.

Testifies About Banking.

The high spots in Miss Day's testimony concerned her banking arrangement. The following interrogation was made by Mr. Seabury:

Q.—Miss Day, since you last saw Sherwood, you have received certain moneys that came to the office that belonged to Sherwood? A.—Checks.

Q.—And what checks did you receive? A.—I can't tell you them all, exactly.

Q.—Do the best you can, if you will. A.—Dividend checks from several companies.

Q.—Do you know what companies? A.—Syracuse and Power.

Q.—Syracuse and Power? A.—Yes; American Brake Shoe.

Q.—American Brake Shoe? A.—Kennecott Copper.

Q.—Kennecott Copper? A.—Yes; Mohawk something—I don't know.

Q.—And what did you do with them? A.—Put them all in my account.

Q.—That is what you did with all the others? A.—All of them.

Q.—Did any one suggest that you should deposit those funds in your own name? A.—No.

Her Own Idea.

Q.—That was simply your own idea? A.—Yes.

Q.—Is this the first time you have ever mentioned the fact? A.—No; I was examined by Mr. Schurman. I told him,—

Q.—You never had any power of attorney from Sherwood, did you? A.—No.

Q.—About how much do these checks that you deposited for Sherwood in your own account aggregate? A.—I would say, roughly, I would say a couple of thousand dollars, maybe a little more.

Q.—Now, when Sherwood last visited the office, so far as you know, and had a conversation with you, did he say anything to you about his contemplating being away for a while? A.—No; only that I urged him to take a vacation because he looked so miserable.

Q.—For his health? A.—And he answered that "I might."

Q.—In response to your suggestion—did he say he was going away for that purpose? A.—He just said he might.

Q.—That was what date in August? A.—Some time early in August.

Q.—Did he gather up any of his papers at the office? A.—I never saw him.

Q.—And take them away with him, did you? A.—No.

Sees Sherwood Year Ago.

Mr. MacIntyre said that he had last seen Sherwood on Aug. 7 last year. Sherwood, he said, dropped into the office for a chat, but said nothing about going away. Mr. MacIntyre said Mayor Walker had made inquires as to whether the law office had heard anything about Sherwood after he vanished. He testified that his firm paid Sherwood a retainer of $3,500 a year, but that Sherwood had many outside clients and that after Mr. Blauvelt's death Sherwood loocked after Mr. Blauvelt's aged mother's business.

State Senator Samuel Hofstadter, head of the legislative committee which investigated Mayor Walker's affairs, testified briefly that the committee had made no attempt to have Mayor Walker subpenaed as a witness at the time of his last European tour.

"We had no intention of calling the mayor until after he was back from his vacation," said the senator.

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney was recalled to testify regarding police efforts to locate the missing Sherwood. He gave the following account of the "search."

"It was in November, 1931—that Mayor Walker spoke to me about Russell T. Sherwood. He asked me what the department could do in an endeavor to locate him. I gave as my opinion that in all probablity he would be out of the jurisdiction of the state court with which he was involved at that time; that we couldn't proceed against him with an alarm or a circular, being that there was no warrant lodged against him, nor had he been reported to us as a missing person. but I could, however, make some confidential inquiries among some confidential sources that were nation-wide, asking them if they heard or received any information concerning Sherwood that they communicate it to me.

"I never did receive such information, and I know of nothing that was done up to that time, except as to what Mr. Schurman testified about a king for a detective, and a subpoena being given to him to serve.

No Information Received.

"The next development was these letters that I believe were referred to this morning. I again called the Pinkertons and asked them to investigate. I think they sent one of their operatives out to Kansas City, Mo., and sent me two reports, I think—as late as last week I saw in the Herald Tribune where Sherwood again had appeared in Grand Rapids and followed the same procedure of going to a bank and asking to be referred to a reputable firm of attorneys, etc."

2 Men and Woman Held in Slaying of Switchman

Two men and a woman were held yesterday by the Stockyards police in connection with the death of James H. Carroll, 62 years old, 4336 Emerald avenue, a switchman who was found beaten and stabbed to death in the basement of his home earlier in the day. Those held on orders of Capt. Michael Delaney are Mrs. Irene Schartz, 38 years old, step-daughter of the victim; Jesse Chasteen, 35 years old, of Lexington, Ky., and Louis Haley, 26 years old, who had been rooming with Carroll. Police learned that a drinking party had been held in the flat.

MORELAND, COUCH REACH WESTERN AMATEUR FINAL

Semi-Finals Provide Brilliant Golf.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 26.—It will be Ira vs. Gus tomorrow in the 36 hole match for the 33d annual western amateur golf championship at the Rockford Country club—Ira Couch, 28 year old Chicago business man, against 21 year old Gus Moreland, the pride of Dallas, Tex.

Couch, runnerup to Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields in the 1930 tournament, evened the score of that match today by defeating Lehman, 3 and 2, in one of the semi-final matches. Moreland, present holder of the trans-Mississippi title, fought his way into the finals by defeating another 21 year old, Charley Seaver of Los Angeles, 1 up, on the 36th green.

Worthy of Title Matches.

The semi-finals today, both of which might have been championship battles, considering the golf all four contestants played, were a perfect climax to one of the greatest tournaments in the history of the western association. It saw Lehman win the qualifying medal with a record score of 137 by shooting a 66 in the second day of the trials; it saw Dick Martin turn in a 68 to almost match that on the same day, and it saw Seaver win his quarter-final match from the veteran, Arthur Bartlett, with a medal score of 66 on one round.

The Moreland-Seaver duel was one of the most bitterly fought that any match play tournament has ever offered. It might have been the wires that some of the home folks back in Dallas, who think that Moreland is the greatest amateur now playing, kept sending here which inspired him to play as he did. He was 1 down at the end of the first nine in the morning, but fought back all the way through the incoming nine till he had evened the match at the intermission which ended with both Seaver and himself turning in medal cards of 73, two over par.

Fight Seesaw Battle.

The afternoon round was a seesaw affair throughout. They turned the 27th all even again. Moreland was 2 up at the 32d, but Seaver, the Stanford university football player, took the 33d. They halved the next two holes and then Seaver, with a chance to square the match on the last green, after having boosted his second over the trees and struck the pin, missed a five foot putt for a birdie, and the match was over.

Couch's appearance in the final signalizes a comeback after almost a year's absence from golf. Winner of the western junior title in 1923 and the Chicago district amateur in 1932, Couch has been a competitive golfer for more than a dozen years. He gave most of his time since the 1930 final to business, but marked his return with one of the lowest scores in the Chicago district trials for the national amateur at Bryn Mawr recently.

Couch, who learned his game as a child at Glen View, was all even with Lehman at the end of the morning 18 after having been 1 down at the conclusion of the first nine. They finished the morning round with medal 78s. It was on the first nine in the afternoon that Couch got down to business, particularly on the greens. He was 3 up at the 27th, lost the 28th, took it back on the 29th, and halved the remaining holes to the 34th, where the match ended.

Lehman Wins First Two.

Lehman won the first two holes in his battle with Couch merely by sticking to par. He chipped on 15 feet from the first pin and got down in 2 for a par 5. Couch's third shot was short, and his fourth left him 25 feet from the cup. Thus he had to be content with 6. On the second Lehman took par to 5 for Couch.

Couch halved the third hole in par 4 when he ran down a 12 footer. He won the fourth hole when Lehman found a trap to the left with his second shot, and exploded 25 feet past the pin. Ira's approach was more

American Born Golfers Win Match, 10 to 8

American born professionals won five and tied three individual matches to defeat a team of foreign born professionals, 10 to 8, in the final of their two day contest at the Oak Park Country club yesterday.

The Yankee contingent accumulated 6½ points in yesterday's play, which added to their point total of 3½ of the previous day, gave them a two point margin over the foreign born. The latter won four matches yesterday and tied three for a total of 5½.

Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., continued to show the way to his fellow professionals by turning in the low medal score of 35—32—67, five under par. His score tied the course record held by Horton Smith. Results:

Harry Cooper [F] defeated Al Espinosa [A], 5 and 4.
Denny Shute [A] tied with Laurie Ayton [F].

BY PROF. WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—Many persons at this time are interested in the eclipse of the sun, which takes place on Wednesday afternoon, and it is my hope to explain this phenomenon of the chromosphere in terms which will elucidate for the lay intelligence the quotient of electron pressure and the increase of density with depth in comparison to the theoretical discrepancy between the frequency encountered among the metallic atoms and ions as described in the familiar Einstein hypothesis.

The topic is one of fascinating simplicity when shorn of scientific tergiversation and established on the standard ratio to the common denominator of the afterphysical norm. With this fundamental principle understood, the contemplation of the flash spectra is easily accomplished, for the student acquires a working appreciation of the distinction which establishes the scientific importance of the sun spot type of Corona, or, if one prefers, Underwood or Remington.

Here's to Tommy O'Connor.

The most effective way to study these phenomena in the home is to take an ordinary sheet of paper and a pencil or fountain pen, and describe upon the observe plane a diagonal line running from the northeast to a point about midway between points A and B, which represent the accepted chromospheric reactions in the field of the solar reversing layer. With this done, an arc will be drawn traversing the base of the angle at points C, D, and E, which gives us a clear picture of the moon coming over the mountains, according to the discovery of Prof. Kate Smith of Columbia, whose contribution to the sum of knowledge in this field of science has been of inestimable value. When the moon comes over the mountain tya-de-da-tya-de-da, tya-de-dum.

With a ruler, several lines will now be drawn running this way and that way and this way and that way and Asch Du Lieber Augustine what have we now? It looks like a house, doesn't it? Let us now draw some fuzz above the roof of the house, representing a maple tree on the other side and now, at the apex of the axis, where the extremities of the line V-D stand equidistant from the intercoastal sphere, immune to the influences of the cosmic nebulosity with which we are all, I am sure, too familiar, to need any instructions at this time, there will be room for another intersection.

It Looks Like Thursday.

This is a very dangerous intersection and there should be a stop light there but it seems impossible to get anything done for the protection of the tax-payers nowadays, what with graft, graft, graft, all the time and nothing but wise-cracking and tinboxes and rotten decisions when you do get a couple of those big, moist bums into the ring for half an hour. Then when they do win the title, what do they do? Go and hide for a year or so and pick some sucker to defend the championship against. I wouldn't pay 50 cents to watch a whole ringful of them fight it out with meataxes and anyway, how do you know that half of them aren't fakes?

In any discussion of eclipse phenomena, however, it is essential to allocate a proper scientific importance to a horse by the name of Eclipse—an English horse, I think—which won

WINNERS

BARNEY ROSS. NICK SCIALABA.

Ross Floors Ray Miller; Wins Decision

Barney Ross defeated Ray Miller, who once climbed near the top rung of the lightweight championship ladder, in a ten round bout before 3,500 at the Sparta stadium last night. Barney, a graduate of the Golden Gloves ranks, was awarded the unanimous decision of the judges.

Ross floored the veteran Miller with a left hook in the first round. Miller, however, was up before Referee Dave Barry could start a count.

Miller's blows finally began to find their mark after the fourth round, and in the fifth a hard right cross to the head had Ross near a knockout. Ross almost sent Miller down again in the sixth.

During the seventh round Miller landed a low left hook and the bout was halted by Referee Barry. Ross was allowed a rest of two minutes. He showed no ill effects from the blow and the bout was continued.

The Cheek brothers of Milwaukee, Franklin and Jimmy, divided their five round bouts in the preliminaries. Franklin stopped Roy Peters of Chicago in the fourth round, while Jimmy lost to Nick Scialaba, former International Golden Gloves bantamweight champion.

FAIRENO, AT 8-5, IS FAVORITE IN GOLD CUP TODAY

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Hawthorne Gold Cup—one of the most eagerly sought turf prizes in America—will be renewed for the fifth time at Hawthorne before an anticipated crowd of 30,000 this afternoon.

If all those named in the overnight entries go to the post, ten will break away from the starting gate several minutes after 5 o'clock. The Gold cup is at a mile and a quarter and besides the costly trophy it carries a prize of $25,000 in added money.

On the eve of the Gold Cup, which for four years has determined the turf championship of the country, Faireno, brilliant 3 year old from the east, owned by William Woodward, the New York banker, ruled as the favorite at 8 to 5. Another 3 year old, Gusto, the property of Morton L. Schwartz of New York, was the second choice at 5 to 2. After these the most highly fancied were the older stars, Mate and Plucky Play. Those rounding out the field on which long odds were offered were Prince Hotspur, Sidney Grant, Mad Pursuit, Charleigh, Evergold and Minton.

It's 3 Year Olds' Turn.

Never in the history of the Gold Cup have the 3 year olds figured so prominently in its running. Display was the first winner. Sun Beau won the next three renewals and the 3 year olds had to take a back seat while these old fellows were racing.

But when Faireno and Gusto come together today their bitter feud for this year's 3 year old championship may come up for a final decision. Last night owners of both colts were claiming the title. Gusto's claims rested on his victories in the American Derby and the Arlington Classic.

Faireno's championship claims are recognized because he has rolled up a notable list of victories, including the Belmont, Dwyer and Shevlin stakes, and the Saratoga and Hawthorne handicaps. Yet in the amount of money earned Gusto is leading him. His total is $132,550. Faireno has gathered in $107,615.

Mate Has Chance.

The Gold Cup marks their third meeting this year. In the Belmont stakes Faireno gave Gusto a sound beating. In the Arlington Classic Gusto turned the tables on the son of Chatterton and fairly ran away from him when he started his drive down the stretch. Gusto twice had tried to defeat older horses this year and on each occasion has failed, but Equipoise was the fellow to beat him. Faireno has gone against the older horses twice and beat them both times in the Saratoga handicap and the Hawthorne handicap.

Mate, a great horse a year ago and second in the Gold Cup last autumn, is the mystery horse in today's race. His races this year have not been within many pounds of his brilliant performances of last season. He has been beaten by ordinary horses at times.

Four Chicago Entries.

There are four Chicago representatives in the race. Evergold and Minton are from the Nash Brothers' Shandon farm stable. Charleigh is the colorbearer of William Schmidt, and Sidney Grant will carry the silks of Abraham Bartelstein. Evergold is a 3 year old. The others are older horses.

Faireno is expected to be the early leader, unless Charleigh takes the track away from him in the run down to the clubhouse turn. Gusto will have to come from behind, but that shouldn't be such a hard job. In a field of this size it should be a truly run race all the way.

Boston 'Walks' Over Our Sox Again, 11-8

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 26.—The White Sox today reached a new low in their season's performances. They lost to the eighth place Red Sox, which was nothing unusual, but the manner in which they lost was singular. Fourteen bases on balls were surrendered by a quartet of Chicago pitchers. Mix fourteen walks with 13 hits and you don't have to shake it much to stir up an 11 to 8 triumph for the tailenders.

The happenings of the day were further aggravated by the Chicago bats. Ordinarily the White Sox are not terrors on attack, but on this occasion they staged revolts against three home pitchers which noted eighteen safe hits, two of them being homers by Charley Berry and Luke Appling. But even with all this power, they could make no appreciable headway. The reason was that Boston assumed a comfortable lead by assaulting Milt Gaston for six runs in the second inning, after which the Chicagoans never could catch up.

But tomorrow is another day, and the Sox may not allow Boston to get so far ahead in the series final.

Sox Get Usual Lead.

The Chicagoans began operations as soon as Durham pitched the first ball Funk slapped it to center for a single and stole second. Hayes fanned but Seeds singled to left, scoring Funk. Sullivan popped to Tate and Appling died swinging. Another run seeped over in the second, making it 2 to 0. Kress doubled against the left field fence and scored on Berry's double to center. Gaston did nothing, but Funk singled to left and Berry headed for home only to be cut down by Jolley's bullet like throw. If Berry had slid he would have been safe.

A pass to Jolley marked the opening of the home second and the big blowoff followed. Oliver singled to right. The two runners advanced on Warstler's infield out. Tate was walked with the idea that Durham might hit into a double play. Instead he singled to short left to score Jolley. Olson singled to center, scoring Oliver and Tate. On McManus' fly to right Durham scored and Olson took second. Gaston then filled up the bases again on walks to Stumpf and Alexander. Jolley's single scored Olson and Stumpf and Gallivan rushed out to restore order.

Then Comes the Riot.

The Chicagoans started the third inning as if they planned on blowing Durham to bits, but they quited down in a hurry. Hayes led off with a walk and scored on Seeds' double to left. The next three men were helpless. Then the Red Sox became active. After two were out Gallivan walked Olson and McManus singled. Stumpf walked, filling the bases. Alexander singled, scoring Olson and McManus, and giving Boston an 8 to 3 lead.

After what happened in the first half of the fourth, Fonseca was about ready to start for the river. Only one run came out of four successive hits. The first of the four was Berry's

CLINCH NO. 19 FOR WARNEKE WITH 9 IN THIRD

Giants Here Today for Double Header.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The sizzling hot Cubs yesterday tortured the second place Brooklyn Dodgers, 10 to 4, to sweep the three game series and increase their winning streak to seven straight. It was their tenth victory out of eleven for the current home stand, and gave the Cubs a ten to nine advantage in the season series. After being humiliated before 35,000 ladies' day spectators the suffering Brooklyn band went away to St. Louis 6½ games behind the Cubs in what recently was called the National league pennant race.

Lon Warneke pitched all the way to get his nineteenth victory of the season and to register his 22d full time performance of the year. Moreover, Lon, offended because Thurston knocked a triple off him in the first half of the third, was the main batsman in getting under way the rally in which the Cubs scored nine of their ten runs in the latter half of the third inning. With the Cubs trailing, 1 to 0, Lon, in that wicked third, lined a double against the left field wall to drive in the first two Cub runs. Then he scored the third one himself.

Almost Annihilate Vance.

With this start, the Cubs went on to knock out Thurston. Then they almost annihilated Dazzy Vance and weren't so nice to Jack Quinn, who finally brought the third inning to a close. In that third every man in the starting lineup except Moore scored, but it was Johnny who bobbed up with run No. 10 in the fifth inning.

Appreciating that there were many in the ladies' day assemblage who still admire those Cub ex-patriates—Danny Taylor and Hack Wilson, Lon showed his good nature by allowing the two boys to sock homers after the verdict had been placed on ice.

Hack's was his 21st of the year and rivaled the longest he ever made in the good old days. It was accomplished in the eighth with Lefty O'Doul on base.

Big Day for Hack.

Incidentally, perspiring little Hack during the afternoon did more batting than he had done in all his ten previous appearances at Wrigley field this year. Up till yesterday he had made only two scratch singles in Chicago. Besides the homer, he had two singles, neither of which was the least bit scratchy.

During the series, the second successive one to be swept by the rampant Chicagoans, the Cubs were vastly superior to the Dodgers in every department, save the lone matter of batting homers. The Dodgers had three homers and the Cubs none, but in every other caliber of hits the Cubs led by a wide margin. The difference in fielding was also notable. The Dodgers made eight errors in three games and a dropped throw by Koenig yesterday was the only Chicago misplay in the set.

The Cubs last night expressed themselves after the game as being determined to play the same kind of baseball in the series with the Giants, which opens this afternoon with a double header. The Giants aren't going anywhere, but they have been much better recently. The Cubs choose to bear down in the hope of clinching the pennant at the earliest date possible, bearing in mind past misfortunes that have overtaken them on belated eastern trips.

Halted by Double Plays.

Double plays blighted both teams in the first inning. The game started with a pass to Danny Taylor. Then Stripp hit into a double play, Koenig to Herman to Grimm. O'Doul was thrown out by Herman. In the Cubs' half, English doubled past third with one down. Then Cuyler lined to Cuccinello and English was doubled off second.

Wilson led off the second inning

Nine Runs in One Inning! How the Cubs Got Them

Here's how the Cubs scored nine runs in the third inning against Brooklyn yesterday to clinch a 10 to 4 victory and sweep the series:

THIRD INNING.

CHICAGO.—Hartnett walked. Koenig singled over Cuccinello's head sending Hartnett to third. Warneke hit the left field fence for a double, scoring Hartnett and Koenig. Herman bunted to Thurston, whose throw to Stripp was too late to get Warneke at third. It was a sacrifice and a fielder's choice. English singled to right scoring Warneke and sending Herman to third. Stripp muffed Wilson's throw to third base and English reached second. Vance relieved Thurston. Cuyler singled to center scoring Herman and English. Cuyler stole second. Stephenson tripled over Taylor's head scoring Cuyler. Moore grounded out to Clancy, Stephenson holding third. Grimm singled to right center scoring Stephenson. Vance was replaced by Quinn. Hartnett doubled to left scoring Grimm. Koenig singled to left for his second hit of the inning and Hartnett scored. Warneke filed to Taylor. Koenig was out stealing, Lopez to Cuccinello. Nine runs; eight hits; one error.

THREE WHITNEY HORSES WIN ON SARATOGA CARD

Clotho, Spar, St. Brideaux Speed to Victories.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The Whitney family swept the important races on the card today. The 30th running of the Mohawk handicap went to C. V. Whitney's Clotho, while Spar scored for Mrs. John Hay Whitney in the Bounding Brook steeplechase, and Mrs. Payne Whitney's St. Brideaux won in the Dandelion handicap.

The Mohawk had a value of $2,850 to the winner and saw the first disqualification of a place horse at the meeting when J. H. Louchheim's Uncanny, which finished second, was set back for having interfered with Masked Knight at the start. Uncanny was the 3 to 2 favorite, but at the end of the mile he was two lengths back of Clotho and eight before Marciana. The field was completed by Masked Knight, owned and ridden by G. H. [Pete] Bostwick.

The winner was held at 5 to 2 and his mile was the fastest of the meeting until St. Brideaux, also a son of St. Germains, came along and dashed off the mile of the Dandelion in 1:37 3-5. It was St. Brideaux's first race since he broke down in the Riggs handicap at Pimlico last fall.

He came back to the races in top-notch shape, to judge by his appearance and way of going, but there was little or no support for him in the betting ring. He receded from 5 to 2 to 7 to 2, while Bostwick's Blind Bow Boy, which he rode himself, was heavily backed from 4 to 5 down to 7 to 10. Blind Bow Boy led for almost seven furlongs, but was overtaken and passed in the stretch by St. Brideaux.

Jockey Badly Hurt in Spill at Bainbridge

Cleveland, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Jockey Joe Sylvester of Brooklyn, was seriously injured today when his horse, Itso, collided with Jockey Bill Boganowski's mount, Mike Carey, at Bainbridge track. Sylvester suffered a possible skull fracture. Boganowski and Jockey Elmer Sylvia, riding Don Pablo, also were thrown but less seriously hurt.

Boganowski, however, suffered a broken nose in a mixup in the jockey's room when Jockey Joe Cavens struck him after accusing him of mishandling Mike Carey. Cavens said Boganowski interfered with his horse, Hard Luck, which finished fifth.

Cavens was indefinitely suspended by the stewards.

Gallant Sir Finally Agrees to Run; Wins

Gallant Sir made his first start since his disastrous trip in the Kentucky Derby in the Rolling Green purse, a dash of six furlongs, at Hawthorne yesterday. He pulled out into the lead heading into the stretch and won handily from the favorite, Stock Market, and Sobieha. In the mutuels he paid $7.80 for a two dollar ticket.

At about the time he was getting ready for the Derby he developed a nasty disposition. Wouldn't run a lick when they took him out for a training gallop. And he didn't run much in the Derby, landing back about eighth in the big field.

O. L. Foster made a pretty good buy when he purchased the 2 year old Get Ready from the Hertz stable. He slammed him over in the third race yesterday and the mutuels for a two dollar ticket were $48.56. Get Ready is a son of Stefan the Great and Foster is reported to have bought him for about $1,000.

Englewood has been trying to win a race at Hawthorne ever since the meeting started. He found a band he could conquer in the sixth race and got up in the last strides to trim Board Walker. Come On was another frequent Hawthorne failure to win yesterday. He beat the heavily backed Islam after a hard fought stretch battle.

Charles T. Fisher of Detroit, whose Dixiana stable horses are racing at Hawthorne, was an arrival yesterday. So was Col. Phil T. Chinn, David Harum of Kentucky. Daniel E. O'Sullivan came in from Churchill Downs to see the running of the Gold Cup today and will remain over to help Col. M. J. Winn and C. Bruce Head get ready for the opening of the Lincoln Fields season.

T. P. Martin, recently suspended for the duration of the meeting for rough riding, will have his suspension lifted for one day to permit him to ride Minton in the Gold Cup.

Jockey Melvin Lewis cut loose with more brilliant riding yesterday and rolled home on three winners. They were Gallant Sir, Come On and Englewood. He was second on Ben Blair in the seventh race.

CHAGNON HOLDS PHILS TO 7 HITS; PIRATES WIN, 8-0

Pittsburgh Only 4 Points Back of Brooklyn.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates turned on the Phillies today and, with Leon Chagnon pitching brilliant ball, shut out the Quakers, 8 to 0. Chagnon held the visitors to seven hits, while the Pirates gathered 12 hits off Collins and Liska, six of them for extra bases. Only one Phil reached third.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Dizzy Dean, who beat the New York Giants with five hits Wednesday, returned to do it again today, and the Cardinals won the series final, 4 to 2.

The only runs off Dean were homers by Carl Hubbell and Mel Ott, the latter hitting his 28th of the season. Hubbell pitched well, but an error by English in the sixth paved the way for two unearned runs and the decision.

Ott completed a clever fielding play in the first. He came in and covered first base when Terry left it during a rundown off third, and made good a double play when Hogan's throw caught Watkins off the base. Score:

No Eclipse Can Eclipse 5c Bus Fare

the English Oaks or the Derby or some big race a long time ago and he was so good the bookmakers wouldn't lay a price on him at all. The proper data on this phase of the subject will be discovered in the English stud book and some of my readers doubtless will have seen scientific plates hanging on the walls of refreshment parlors showing an old English squire running along the horse-track and yelling and yelling "Eclipse against the field."

Boy, that must have been some steed, but if we are to start hanging around saloons in this discussion we will probably all get plastered and wind up in an argument about prohibition.

Don't the House Ever Pop?

The next step in our solar chart will be a man, but for the benefit of my readers who cannot draw a whole man we will describe a square window with just the man's head sticking out, looking for the eclipse. But he hasn't got a piece of smoked glass. You have got to have smoked glass to see the eclipse. He will never get a look at it that way and there won't be another eclipse along until the year 2517, so he probably won't ever see it, although you never can tell about some of these scratchy old hicks who live way out in the country and never take a bath and eat fried stuff all the time and yet they seem to live forever. Or maybe they just look old because they never take care of their teeth or shave or anything and we think they are 108 when they aren't much over 60.

But even if a person doesn't see it, what of it? You can get the same effect just by turning off the light in a room and I don't see why I should go to the trouble of trying to explain a topic like this if you aren't going to pay any attention, drawing off hicks poking their necks out of houses.

VINES, GLEDHILL TO FACE ALLISON, VAN RYN TODAY

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, California, will meet Wilmer Allison, Texas, and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia in the finals of the 51st annual United States doubles tennis championship tournament on the Longwood Cricket club courts tomorrow.

Vines, who recently retained his national singles title, and Gledhill advanced to the final round by defeating France's star team, Henri Cochet and Marcel Bernard. The scores were 16-14, 3-6, 4-6, 9-7, 6-2.

In the final of the Longwood women's invitation team play Helen Jacobs and Sarah Palfrey, who won the national doubles title, defeated Mrs. Marjorie Morrill Painter and Mrs. John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-3. Eight teams entered the competition, which was held in conjunction with the national doubles play.

A's Break Tie in 9th; Beat Browns, 5 to 4

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 26.—(AP)—A ninth inning finish today gave Lefty Grove his 20th victory of the season, as the Athletics nosed out the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4. Simmons' single to deep short with Cochrane on third and two out won the game after the Browns had tied it at 4 to 4 in their half of the ninth.

Grove contributed heavily to the victory when his fourth home run of the season, and his second in five days, accounted for two runs in the second inning. Jimmy Foxx hit his 47th homer and Al Simmons his 28th. Stewart was charged with the defeat. Score:

YANKS BEAT INDIANS.

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—For the second day in succession the Yankees took the home run route to a victory over the Cleveland Indians, winning, 4 to 2, today. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig provided the necessary hits.

Three of the four Yankee runs came from circuit drives by their home run twins, but the youthful Johnny Allen also was an important figure in the victory.

Allen allowed only four hits and struck out six as he outpitched Wesley Ferrell. He won his eighth straight victory and his fourteenth of the season. He has lost only two decisions. Gehrig's homer was his 29th and Ruth's his 37th. Score:

homer over the left field fence with one out. Gallivan and Funk singled to right. Hayes singled to center, but there was some chance Oliver would catch the ball, so Gallivan stopped at third. Then Goerner replaced Durham and Seeds cracked one squarely on the nose, but Warstler smothered it for a double play.

More Carnival.

The thumping continued in Boston's fifth. Gallivan lost control after two were out and walked Stumpf, Alexander, and Jolley. Oliver drove in stumpf and Alexander by doubling past third. That was the end of Gallivan. Then the Chicagoans took another crack at the free for all hitting in the sixth. Kress' double, singles by Berry and Hayes, and a two bagger by Seeds' bat scored two runs. Another was added in the seventh, when Appling hoisted his homer over the left field wall. This surprised Boerner so that he lost control and Kline had to dash to the rescue.

The Red Hose picked on Faber for a run in the seventh. He fumbled Stumpf's slow roller and the young man scored on a couple of hits. The Chicago Sox duplicated this feat in the eighth. Seeds beat out a bunt, took third on Sullivan's double, and scored on Appling's infield out. That completed the suffering for the day.

Jones Recovers; Opposes Boston in Series Final

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 26.—Sam Jones, who has recovered from his cold, will try to get an even break on the series for the White Sox by pitching the final game tomorrow against Boston. The Red Sox will employ either Johnny Welch, the ex-Cub, or Paul Andrews, the ex-Yankee.

The program, while the Sox are in New York for five games, has been altered. Because of the eclipse of the sun next Wednesday afternoon, the game for that day will be played as part of a double header Monday. A twin bill also is scheduled for Sunday. A single game Tuesday will close the series so the Sox will go back to Chicago for a rest before proceeding to St. Louis.

Fonseca was informed this morning that he will not have the services of Pitcher Ed Walsh and Infielder Gregory Mulleavy at his disposal when the Sox resume play at Comiskey Park on Labor day. The Oakland Coast league club refuses to surrender them until later.

The Sox, after a thorough study of the situation, have concluded that there is little chance left to collect a few dollars in a city series with the Cubs. They're talking now of prospective hunting trips.

The Boston fans apparently didn't know that the Cubs and Dodgers were involved in an important fight in Chicago. When the score board showed nine runs for the Cubs in the third inning you could hear nothing but silence.

SHEFFIELD, DIXON MAIL CLERK, WINS TRAPSHOOT PRIZE

Arthur E. Sheffield, a railway postal clerk from Dixon, Ill., unperturbed by a heavy rain, outclassed a field of 722 marksmen to capture the grand American handicap, and its purse of $11,000. Sheffield fired from the 21 yard line and cracked 98 targets out of a possible 100.

One target back of him, six tied for runner-up position. They were L. W. Becker, of Canton, O., 22 yards; F. A. Rogers of Mount Sterling, Ky., 23 yards; A. H. Conkey of Cleveland, 18 yards; Billy Brimmer of Omaha, Neb., 18 yards; Dr. W. E. Wiylarch of Lancaster, O., 18 yards, and R. C. Coffee of Prairie City, Ia., 20 yards.

In the shoot off, Rogers outlasted Wiylarch to win second position. Fourth place went to Becker. Brimmer, an 18 year old boy, won fifth place, defeating Conkey. Coffee finished seventh.

Sheffield started shooting in 1912. In 1917 he "gave up in disgust." In 1928 the lure of the traps was too strong and he started shooting again after an 11 year layoff. He won the 1931 Illinois state handicap tournament, his only victory before today.

Columbus, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Gene Baumgarten, giant Ohio State university football tackle, will not be eligible for varsity athletics this fall because of scholastic deficiencies, university authorities announced tonight. Baumgarten, former star athlete at Male High school, Louisville, Ky., has played two years on the Buckeye varsity.

Cubs' 9 Run Blast Sweeps Dodger Series

with his third hit in 11 games at Wrigley field, a liner to center. Cuccinello forced Hack and Slade flied to Cuyler. Cuccinello tried a delayed steal while Warneke was holding the ball and was safe when Koenig dropped the ball after tagging the runner. Clancy followed with a single to center which scored Cuccinello. Lopez flied to Cuyler.

Another double play nicked the Cubs in the second. Stephenson opened with a single to left and went down with Moore in the double slaying. Cuccinello threw out Grimm.

Thurston's Triple Wasted.

Though it seems trivial in the light of later happenings, the triple with which Thurston opened the third seemed a grave thing and at the time it was smacked there was great bearing down, D. Taylor being called out on strikes, Stripp being thrown out by English and O'Doul fouling to English.

The incident of the Thurston triple led to a conference in the Cubs' dugout, in which it was decided that no further time should be lost in the enterprise of shearing off Mr. Thurston's ears.

Vance Called In.

At this point Vance, who had succeeded in ducking the last two Cub series, entered the scene and was welcomed by Cuyler's single to center, scoring Herman and English. Cuyler stole second and Stephenson scored him with a triple to center. Moore furnished the first out with a bouncer to Clancy, but Grimm singled to center, scoring Stephenson.

At this point Manager Carey decided the Cubs had made enough of a spectacle of Dazzy and when Jack Quinn was summoned from the bull pen, for the third time in the three game series, Vance almost ran to the dugout in effecting his retreat. Hartnett, up the second time, let Quinn in on a double to left which scored Grimm. Gabby took third on the threw in and scored on Koenig's second hit of the inning, a single to left. Warneke flied to Taylor and Koenig was out trying to steal second.

Rest Is Casual Entertainment.

What happened the rest of the way after that nine run barrage was, of course, filed under the head of casual entertainment. The Cubs' tenth run was scored in the fifth on singles by Moore and Grimm and a double play.

Taylor made his homer to start the sixth and Wilson got his in the course of a little fun which Warneke let the poor Brooklyn lads have in the eighth. Stripp singled with one down and was forced by O'Doul. Then Hack hit his No. 21 into the bleachers, a few feet to the right of the score board.

55,000 Apply for Tickets to Cubs' Next Ladies' Day

More than 55,000 applications have been received for ladies' day admissions to Wrigley field for the Cubs-Cardinals game next Friday. The first 20,000 requests were honored. Many others will be provided for through the unannounced special ladies' days which recently have proved almost as popular as the regular Friday functions.

No one would call the lady fans fickle, but the big boom in applications is said to indicate indulgence in the perfectly human desire to string along with a winner. When the Cubs came home from their first eastern trip with a record that wasn't so rosy, and set out upon their July home stand, the women got their 20,000 admissions apparently on the something for nothing urge, but on several occasions there was evidence that the ticket holders had stayed home by the hundreds, actually permitting their free tickets to go to waste.

It is said the ladies' day guests each week show deeper understanding of the intricacies of the game of baseball, but that there still are too many who stand under the clubhouse runway and gape at the perspiring athletes as they rush to and from their baths.

Grimes, Smith Face Giants in Twin Bill

The Cubs have to win six more to tie their best high run of recent years. In 1928 they won 13 straight from eastern teams before Bob Smith, then with Boston, stopped them on the last day of their home stand.

Prior to Thursday, Lefty O'Doul, the major's leading hitter, had hit safely in 21 straight games. He was stopped Thursday and he was stopped again yesterday.

Wilson's homer got him lusty cheers. The fellow had suffered untold miseries through ten games at Wrigley field this season. He rated the big day he had yesterday, even though his splurge did not mean anything.

Old Jack Quinn worked in all three games and seemed to be the only Brooklyn pitcher who could cope with the aroused Cubs. The only run made off Jack in his personally conducted innings was batted in by a double play.

Everybody in the Cubs' starting lineup yesterday made at least one run and one hit. In the big third Hartnett scored two runs and Koenig made two hits. Stephenson was the most persistent slugger with a triple and two singles. Woody English made a double and a single.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26.—(AP)—For the third time in as many years, Margaret Ravior, husky Philadelphia girl, won the women's 10 mile professional marathon swim in Lake Ontario today.

Running into the lead before the first mile had been covered, Miss Ravior increased her advantage steadily on each lap of the six lap course and won first prize money of $3,000 by nearly 15 minutes and 1,500 yards from Evelyn Armstrong of Detroit, the runner-up. Miss Armstrong's share of the prize money was $1,500.

Third place and $700 went to May Looney of Warren, O.; fourth and $500 to Dorothy Nalevaiko, Glen Cove, N. Y.; fifth and $200 to Ruth Tower Corsan of Toronto; sixth and $100 to Ruth Downing of Toronto.

Miss Ravior's time today, five hours 22 minutes 18 seconds, was far slower than last year when she won in 4:56:44 4-10. Times for the other leaders were: Miss Armstrong, 5:37:05; Miss Looney, 5:42:39; Miss Nalevaiko, 5:59:39; Mrs. Corsan, 6:03:21, and Miss Downing, 6:08:29.

GEORGE WISNER, ENGINEER, DIES SUDDENLY AT 62

George Monroe Wisner, consulting engineer, died yesterday in his home at 4731 Greenwood avenue. Death was due to an infection which followed an operation for a carbuncular growth on his neck less than a week ago. He was 62 years old.

Mr. Wisner gradually lost his sight during the latter years of his life and for the last two years he had been almost totally blind. Despite his blindness he designed many engineering projects and was retained by both the city and sanitary district as a consulting engineer. He served the sanitary district for forty years and for many years was chief engineer.

Joins Canal Staff in 1892.

Mr. Wisner was born in Detroit Feb. 9, 1870. His father, George Y. Wisner, was a hydraulic engineer and served on the interstate waterways commission. The son attended the University of Michigan. On his graduation in 1892 he came to Chicago and joined the staff of the sanitary district July 7, 1892, two years after the district was created.

From 1897 to 1901 he served as assistant engineer in charge of the Chicago river improvement. From 1901 to 1907 he was assistant chief engineer of the district. In 1902 he married Edith K. Young of Chicago, daughter of Caryl Young, prominent real estate man and capitalist, whose family home was at 4723 Woodlawn avenue.

In 1907 Mr. Wisner was named chief engineer of the district. He served in that capacity until 1920, when he retired to enter private practice, being retained by the board in a consulting capacity at the salary of chief engineer. He was succeeded by his assistant, Edward J. Kelly.

Wins Over Politicians.

In 1921 he was dropped from the rolls after 29 years of service by the political machine of the former city administration. Previous to his discharge he had offered his resignation but it was refused. He then refused to be discharged, holding his contract provided for his retention until 1923. His protest was upheld, and he was reinstated. The contract was renewed.

Mr. Wisner was appointed advisory engineer by the city subway commission early in 1929. In spite of the handicap of his practical blindness, he took an active part in the planning. The progress of the plans was halted by business conditions and the city's financial difficulties, but Mr. Wisner's work was effective.

Cuts Subway Costs Millions.

His plans for the subway construction made possible economies totaling many millions of dollars under the cost of the plan submitted by other engineers. During the time he was afflicted with growing blindness he testified in the lake level case before Charles Evans Hughes, then master in chancery for the United States Supreme court.

The funeral services are to be private, though the time has not been set, it was announced at the home. Interment will be in Rosehill cemetery.

NEGRO BABY ABANDONED.

A Negro boy about a month old was found abandoned yesterday on the steps of the home of William Webb, a Negro, at 3413 South Dearborn street, and was taken to St. Vincent's orphanage.

GEN. O'RYAN ASKS NEW YORK LEGION TO DEFEAT BONUS

Means Higher Taxes, He Tells Veterans.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Speaking in the crisp voice and with the clipped phrases of a commander, Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, war time commander of New York's 27th division, brought the bonus question into the open for the first time at the state American Legion convention in Brooklyn today and read the Legionnaires a strong lecture on what payment of two billion dollars for a bonus would mean in terms of taxation, unemployment and increased depression.

JOHN F. O'RYAN.

While making it plain that he favored the utmost care for war victims, he told the convention, which is expected to go on record tomorrow for immediate payment of the bonus, that it should conduct all of its deliberations on the principle that nothing should be advocated that is unfair to taxpayers.

The nation already has paid out $2,390,490,414 up to Feb. 1 for veterans, a record that no other government can approach, he said. "And remember the allies, not us, fought for four years. We fought for six months," he added.

"Of all the 4,000,000 men mustered into service," he continued, "only about one-half ever left the United States, and less than one-half of those ever saw battle.

"These facts are relevant, and we of the Legion should have them in mind before we ask the government to spend two billion more."

Before he came to the specific subject of the bonus, the general discussed the subject of taxation, making the point that it is not the rich who suffer by excessive levies, but the poor. Citing the $3,929,198,000 federal budget as an example of the "astounding cost for one year, leaving aside the state and local budgets which must be met by taxation," he urged the legionnaires to take action to force government officials to "stop spending your money."

He was a stockholder in the World's Fair of 1893 and had hoped to witness the exposition of next year. According to Mrs. Schlesinger, her father had been a TRIBUNE subscriber for sixty-three years.

Besides Mrs. Schlesinger, Mr. Bierfeld is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Burt Levy, and two sons, Sidney and Albert Bierfeld.

BEGIN NATIONAL AIR RACES TODAY AT CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., Aug. 26.—[Special.]—The national air races open tomorrow afternoon at Cleveland airport, with daily programs of high speed events and stunt flying. They will close on Labor day, Sept. 5.

Among the 125 entries received to date for all races Chicago and Illinois are well represented. E. M. Laird, who progressed from bank clerking to high speed air racing, is Chicago's outstanding representative. Laird is a designer of racing planes as well. He will fly a plane of his own design, powered by a Ranger six motor.

Ben O. Howard, Chicago air mail pilot, who took the fancy of Chicagoans at the 1930 races in his little white "pylon polisher," is here with a new small Menasco powered racer. Johnny Livingston of Aurora has entered his monocoupe [Warner powered]. He has won more prizes in air racing than any other pilot.

Art Chester and Alvin H. Tehle, both of Joliet, have brought Davis biplanes (LeBlond powered) to the races. Herman Hamer of La Salle is bringing the latest Laird creation, a Warner powered biplane, for which its builder claims a top speed of more than 175 miles an hour. C. L. Clabaugh of Glen View, in William P. Lear's monocoupe [Warner motor], and Art Carnahan of Bloomington, in a monocoach [Wright motor], will finish in the Cord trans-continental handicap sweepstakes race tomorrow afternoon.

HUNT LOSES WAY BUT HOLDS LEAD IN PLANE DERBY

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Although he lost his way and was one of the last to land, Roy Hunt of Norman, Okla., tonight practically had won the Los Angeles to Cleveland air Derby.

With 1,591 points and with the only remaining leg of the race to Cleveland to be run tomorrow, Hunt seemed to have a safe lead though he failed to score a point in the lap from Indianapolis today.

J. C. [Jiggs] Huffman roared into his home town in the lead of the Washington to Cleveland Derby as nearly 13,000 Cincinnatians yelled themselves hoarse. Four minutes behind Huffman was J. D. Crane of New Haven, Conn., while Harold Newman of Moline, Ill., was third, and P. A. Sturtevant of Elmhurst, Ill., was fourth.

Art Carnahan of Bloomington, Ill., paced the western division in the lap, Cessna was a close second and J. S. McDonnell of Cleveland, O., was third.

The leaders by points in the eastern division are: Huffman, 1071.75; Chappy Lennox, New Haven, Conn., 1036.95; Fred Dorset, Augusta, Ga., 828.8125; Helen McCloskey, Pittsburgh, Pa., 647.20, and Crane, 429.85.

Point leaders in the western division: Hunt, 1591; Cessna, 1325.96; Carnahan, 1038; Gladys O'Connell, Long Beach, Cal., 434.675, and J. S. McDonnell, Cleveland, O., 361.7.

PARAGUAY AGAIN ACCEPTS BID FOR PEACE IN CHACO

Note Says Problem Is Drifting to War.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The government of Paraguay, acknowledging a note from neutral American nations proposing arbitration of the Gran Chaco dispute with Bolivia, today reiterated its acceptance of the proposals.

"As a member of the American community," said the reply, "Paraguay feels with especial conviction that the new world must incorporate in its procedure the repudiation of war as an instrument of international politics."

The note said the Chaco problem "is now verging on dangerous strife into which Paraguay is being dragged."

Bolivia Sends Note to League.

GENEVA, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Bolivia sent the league of nations another note today in connection with its dispute with Paraguay over the Gran Chaco. The communication reiterated that Bolivia seeks an outlet through the Chaco to the sea not only as a necessity but as a right.

"Bolivia never upheld the theory that necessity creates the law," said the note. "It is the law which creates and imposes upon a country the right to possess what belongs to it. That is Bolivia's case."

Brazil Bombs Rebels.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Federal airplanes operating against the Sao Paulo rebels today bombarded an airport at Guaratinguata, thirty miles southeast of Cruzeiro, destroying one rebel plane. Belated dispatches announced that the federals engaged in a three hour battle yesterday with rebels who attacked the town of Itabera, driving off the enemy.

Report 15,000 Men Sacrificed.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Dispatches from Santotome today quoted a "well informed person" just arrived from Porto Alegre, Brazil, to the effect that 15,000 men had been sacrificed in the Brazilian civil war.

The informant added that the rebels of Sao Paulo were powerfully entrenched on all fronts. The end of the fight was not in sight, this source said, because both the federals and the rebels had plenty of troops and ample funds.

BANKER HOME; TELLS OF 5 DAY MENTAL LAPSE

Ernsting Brought Back from Michigan.

William Ernsting, missing vice president of the First State bank of Bensenville, returned to his home at 170 Mason avenue, Bensonville, yesterday from Chelsea, Mich., where he was found Thursday night. He was ordered to take a rest by his physician, Dr. Fred Oakes, who said the banker had been a victim of amnesia.

Mr. Ernsting, who had been missing since last Saturday, was returned from Chelsea by automobile. He was accompanied by his wife, a nephew, Eugene Franzen; a brother-in-law, Charles Franzen, and Chief of Police Jack Frost of Bensenville. The party went to Chelsea Thursday night after Ernsting recovered his memory and telephoned his wife.

Tells of Memory Lapse.

Mr. Ernsting told his story in his home. He said he went to the loop Saturday to see Attorney William H. Fisher Jr., at 134 North La Salle street. From Fisher's office he phoned Attorney George P. Burgess, at 130 North Wells street, with whom he had an appointment.

"Burgess was not in," he said. "I then took a ride to Washington park. I remember sitting in a rocking chair and looking at my watch. It was 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. I told myself I should start for home, and then my memory fades.

"The next thing I remember is leaning against some railroad ties and seeing a water tower in the distance. I had a terrific headache. I started for the water tower. I met a small boy and asked him where I was and what day it was. He told me it was Thursday and that I was in Chelsea, Mich.

Evidence of Long Walk.

"I had about $20 when I lost my memory. I found $4 in my pockets in Chelsea. I must have walked a good way because my shoes were worn through and my clothes were dusty. I called my home as soon as I reached a telephone and here I am."

Dr. Oakes ordered Mr. Ernsting to stay at home for several days and advised a vacation as further rest. The town in which the banker recovered his memory is midway between Jackson and Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Ernsting had believed her husband a victim of kidnapers, as he had no financial troubles.

ONTARIO CLEANS UP HIGHWAYS; SIGNS VANISHING

New Law Is Aimed at Old "Eyesores."

BY GEORGE SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26.—Because of hard times, Ontario provincial authorities have deferred for another six month rigorous enforcement of stricter highway sign regulations. But Ontario is still pulling down and ordering down between 75 and 100 highway "eyesores" per week.

The Ontario law is simple, but its effectiveness is indicated in the improvement effected throughout the whole network of provincial concrete highways. The first steps were instituted about seven years ago to regulate the position and number of signboards which blocked the view of the countryside.

How Law Curbs Signs.

Today's stringent law, gradually strengthened over the years, provides that no sign of any kind, no matter how artistic, may be erected on or overhang a highway; no painted barn, carrying advertising, is permitted within eyesight of the highway; no automatic sign may be erected without special sanction within sight of a highway because of the element of danger involved in its diverting the attention of the driver from the roadway.

Neither are signs permitted at or near any angle or sharp curve in a roadway; rusty signs, previously authorized, must be repainted or hauled down; written permission is necessary for the erection of any sign within a quarter mile of the highway; fees are exacted except where an individual is conducting his own business on his own property, and even then the single sign is limited as to size.

Four highway inspectors instead of one are touring different sections of the province daily to see that these regulations are enforced.

Police Aid Drive.

The department is utilizing the services of the provincial police and the authority of the courts to enforce its powers of sign regulation. Refusal on the part of a property owner or advertiser to obey the orders results in a court appearance. Acquiesence is then usually accepted in lieu of fine.

Whereas this comparatively new department of the Ontario government formerly encountered the ill will of the advertisers, the sign advertising concerns are now coöperating 100 per cent.

The farmer's barn, disfigured with perhaps a 20 foot advertising inscription, was at first a big problem. Such barn advertising now is not tolerated, but the department, out of its own funds, had to repaint at least sixty barns.

HUGE NEW YORK SUBWAY LINE IN RECEIVERSHIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—The Interborough Rapid Transit company consented today to an equity receivership. Two receivers, Victor J. Dowling and Thomas E. Murray, were appointed by Presiding Judge Martin T. Manton of the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The receivership, staved off several times during the history of the company, notably in 1922, raised the question whether the action would free the subway division, which always has made money, from the burden of supporting the elevated lines of the Manhattan Railways company, leased in 1909 to the Interborough for a term of 999 years.

"L" Stocks Held by Charities.

Such an action probably would be resisted by the Rockefeller interests, who in the past were successful in avoiding the receivership taken today. The Rockefeller interests donated large Manhattan "L" holdings to various philanthropic institutions.

The capitalization of the Interborough is $248,585,000, with a company investment of $216,143,000, and a city investment of $184,170,000. The city, under the terms of its contract with the company, will be the eventual owner of the property when the contract expires in 1967.

The move into an equity receivership was received with mixed feelings. Bonds of the company went up, principally because the move had been so sharply discounted in the market in advance, but also because of the belief that the company might rid itself of the Manhattan railways burden.

City Officials Waiting.

City officials were disposed to sit back and wait, to see also whether the Manhattan lease was planned to be terminated. Samuel Untermyer, special counsel to the transit commission in unification negotiations for a long time, hailed it as a golden opportunity for the city to put through a unification deal at a "fair price." That was the $400,000,000 offered for the combined properties of the Interborough, Manhattan, and B. M. T. in his last transit unification plan. He hinted that the receivership was not necessary. It is understood to be his belief that the shedding of the Manhattan is the real aim.

Figures available at the transit commission, showing the revenues of the company for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1932, disclosed a net corporate income for the subway division, after all fixed charges had been paid, of $3,536,640.97. On the elevated division the deficit was $4,418,183.90, leaving a system deficit of $831,709.17.

Would Pay for Improvement.

Should the two systems be separated, the Interborough's sole obligation to the Manhattan would be to pay the interest and sinking fund charges on $44,000,000 of the Interborough bonds issued to finance the third tracking of the elevated lines.

The action in federal court was the result of an application by the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company, a creditor, for some $27,000 through Breed, Abbott & Morgan, attorneys. Judge Manton granted the application after James L. Quackenbush, general counsel to the transit company, filed an affidavit declaring that the appointment of receivers in equity was necessary, because the company had $41,500,000 in notes falling due which could not be refunded at present.

Mr. Dowling, formerly presiding justice of the Appellate division of the first department, was named one of the receivers, and Thomas E. Murray, chairman of the board of directors of Thomas E. Murray, Inc., designing and consulting engineers, the other.

Chadbourne, Stanchfield [Levy, of which Mr. Dowling was up to recently a member, were named counsel to the receivers later in the day.

Morgan Group Silent.

The committee headed by J. P. Morgan which recently asked for a deposit of the 7 per cent secured notes, which mature on Sept. 1, had no comment to make on the receivership, but indicated that a statement might be forthcoming in the near future. The committee headed by Charles Hayden of Hayden-Stone indicated that its procedure would be the same.

The complaint sets forth upon information and belief that the Interborough is without funds to meet the following obligations:

"A. Interest for six months on ten year secured convertible 7 per cent gold notes, due Sept. 1, 1932, $1,108,523.

"B. The principal of said ten year gold notes, due and payable Sept. 1, 1932, $31,672,100.

"C. Six months interest on unsecured ten year 6 per cent gold notes, due Oct. 1, 1932, $315,000.

"D. Principal of said 6 per cent notes, $10,500,000.

"F. Rental payments due to same Dec. 1, 1932, $900,460.

"G. Interest and sinking fund due on first and refunding mortgage gold bonds Jan. 1, 1933, more than $4,400,000."

Mayor Walker's Comment.

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—As to the Interborough Rapid Transit company receivership, Mayor Walker, in Albany, said he had hurried plans for transit unification because the receivership was threatened. There is one other subway transportation system in New York, the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit company, operating in three boroughs. The city transit commission has built an additional subway line from 207th street in the Bronx through the west side of Manhattan. The unification movement aimed to combine these three systems. The Interborough Rapid Transit operates on 262 track miles in addition to 112 track miles on its leased elevated lines. Subway travel on a normal business day is about 3,000,000 persons and elevated travel about 1,000,000. Its first forty-two miles of subway lines were built twenty-eight years ago.

Bond Men See Better Days of Trade Here

BY HOWARD WOOD.

While the stock brokers have been suffering alternate chills and fever over the condition of the stock market, hoping that the prices will hold and that the large volume will continue, their contemporaries in the bond business have come to the conclusion that the worst is past and that things are getting along toward normal.

The head of a large loop bank who is convinced that things are definitely on the way to recovery says only those whose noses are glued to the ticker tape believe otherwise.

Tone More Hopeful.

In the bond houses one gets the same reaction these days. Men who have been consistently pessimistic for more than two years are saying the worst of the storm is over.

La Salle street during the last month or six weeks has become almost a different place. Scowls have given place to smiles and even the office boy looks as though he's had his night's rest.

Bankers and bond men have learned the dangers of making predictions too soon and they are chary about forecasting for publication. But nineteen out of twenty will tell you that they believe that the lows have been passed and that gradual improvement seems probable. If recovery has not already begun then there are a lot of wrong guessers in La Salle street.

New Issues Selling Better.

It isn't hard to understand the bond man's optimism. New issues are selling. Some of them have gone "out the window." The Commonwealth Edison flotation set the pace in this part of the country. The success of that financing, followed by the successful flotation of the Peoples Gas and Public Service of Northern Illinois issues—$58,000,000 in all—started the bond business back toward normal. In the last two weeks new offerings have totaled about $50,000,000.

The sale of new bonds has been possible because of the great improvement in the market for issues already outstanding. Here, for example, is what has happened to a few bonds chosen at random from yesterday's quotations:

Bond.	Yesterday's close.	Low 1932.
Armour Co 4½s '39	80	57½
A T & S F adj 4s '95	83	70
B & O cvt 4½s '60	46	15
Goodrich Gs '65	57	34½
Inter Hydro El Gs '44	53¼	19
Natl Steel 5s '56	81	66
N Y C & St L 4½s '78	33½	14½
Rep I & S 5½s '53	64½	29
Sou Pac 4s '49	67	29
Utah P & L 5s '44	83½	60
West Union 5s '38	84	50
Youngstown S & T 5s '70	73	45

Follows Some Forecasters.

For two or three years economists have been asserting that when business recovery began to get under way it would be first recognized by an upturn in bond prices.

The improvement in bonds has not been confined to the New York listed market. It has been pretty general. Houses along La Salle street are even quoting defaulted issues at 50 to 100 per cent higher prices than two months ago.

Good municipals have been moving, too. Municipal bond experts say that buyers are more particular, but that the best grade issues have a ready market. The first thing that the buyer asks these days is, "How are tax collections?" If collections are 80 per cent or better, municipal men say, the bonds command a good market.

United Aircraft Earns 28c a Share in 6 Months

United Aircraft and Transport corporation and its subsidiaries yesterday reported a net income for the first six months of 1932 of $944,306, after depreciation and federal taxes, equivalent to twenty-eight cents per share on 2,084,393 shares of common outstanding. This compares with a net of $1,648,104 during the first half of 1931, or sixty-one cents per share on 2,083,791 shares. United reported a net income of $502,861 for the second quarter of 1932, equal to fifteen cents per share on 2,084,393 shares, as compared to a net of $441,445, or thirteen cents per share on 2,084,319 during the first quarter of 1932, and a net of $841,456 or thirty-one cents per share on 2,083,791 during the second quarter of 1931.

Argentine Ford Plant Now Threatens to Close

[Copyright; 1932; By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 26.—The manager of the Ford Motor company has confirmed reports that they and other American automobile factories are preparing to close down because the restrictions of the exchange commission makes it impossible to remit. The Ford company has material for less than a thousand units and when these are assembled it will suspend operations. It is estimated that 180,000 will be added to the unemployed when all close.

COPPER, LEAD FIRMER; LATTER 3½C, FORMER 5½C

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26—Copper and lead prices showed firm tendencies today with the latter being advanced by the American Smelting and Refining company 10 points to 3.50c a pound.

Inquiries in the domestic market were reported good with no more copper available at 5⅝c a pound for immediate delivery and supplies at 5½c a pound strictly limited.

At the same time, it is reported that bids of 5⅝ cents a pound for delivery early in 1933 have been turned down in one direction.

Firmness was shown in the export section, prices ranging from 5.60½c a pound to 5.75c C. I. F. European ports. Substantial sales were recorded at these levels.

The European situation since the Ottawa conference has been cleared up considerably now that the world market has been split into three spheres through enactment of the empire duty on copper.

There now exists the domestic American market, protected by its tariff wall; the British empire market, also guarded by a duty, and the general world market. Producers now are realigning their organizations to meet this condition.

RAILWAYS MAKE APPEALS TO U. S. TO HELP SELVES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company today asked the interstate commerce commission to authorize it to abandon its 45 mile branch line from Atchison, Kansas, to Rulo, Neb. The line had a deficit of $22,266.

W. S. Bronson, general counsel for the Pittsburgh and West Virginia railroad told the commission suspension board, he "didn't see how" the Pittsburgh and West Virginia "could keep out of the hands of the receivers" if not permitted to reduce its coal rates from the Pittsburgh district to Cleveland, Lorain and Huron, O.

Counsel for the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation said that company normally shipped 200,000 a year to the Cleveland market. Since the new differential became effective Aug. 1, he added, the company has sent no coal to Cleveland.

Lithuania Approves New Kreuger Loan Proposal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 26.—Negotiations in Kovno between the Swedish Match company and the Lithuanian government concerning the Kreuger loan to Lithuania in exchange for the match monopoly have reached a satisfactory conclusion. Kreuger loaned Lithuania $6,000,000, of which up to the time of his death only $4,000,000 was paid over. A new agreement has now been reached whereby the Swedish Match company is excused payment of the remaining $2,000,000, in exchange for which the Swedish Match company agrees to reduce the interest on the $4,000,000 paid over from 6 to 4½ per cent.

German Gold Reserve Up; Business Requires Less

[Copyright; 1932; By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—For the first time since immediately after last year's bank crisis, when the reichsbank collected all the foreign exchange reserves out of the vaults of banks, the reichsbank's coverage reserves have grown slightly in the last week. The 12,000,000 mark increase in gold for the week ending Aug. 23 is the result largely of reduced demands for gold from business. A further reduction in imports and the fact that the exchange control system has begun to function efficiently has helped this situation.

New York, Aug. 26.—A shipment of gold amounting to approximately $1,000,000, consigned by the Banca de la Republica of Montevideo, Uruguay, to the New York Federal Reserve bank, arrived yesterday.

Here and There in Business

The railroad statistics which are being made public from day to day are of two distinct classes. The earnings figures generally are bearish, although some of the more hopeful interpreters even find traces of improvement there. The traffic figures, however, present a more cheerful aspect and lead to the belief that the earnings figures will soon begin to reflect the increased traffic reported by many leading carriers.

How soon the improved sentiment will be translated into improved business is a matter widely discussed in La Salle street these days. The opinion has been advanced that with the vacation season drawing to a close impetus should be given to moderate trade improvement which has already started.

The Chicago banking disturbances in June are now ancient history and in future years that period may be looked on as the low point of confidence in this region. The American Banker this week reports another decline in banking suspensions for the country as a whole. Closings dropped to thirteen from eighteen in the preceding week. Two banks reopened in the week just ended.

Contrary to popular notions, all foreign bond issues have not gone sour in the last few years. A. G. Becker & Co. reports that it has received funds for the payment of the Sept. 1 interest on the Free State of Anhalt externals 7s, due in 1946.

The Lamp, official publication of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has a good word to say about current prospects in the petroleum industry. The recent improvement can be sustained, the publication believes, if the industry will heed the lesson that overproduction spells waste.

Stock brokers and traders are perennial holiday seekers. A petition is now being circulated on the floor of the New York Stock exchange asking that an extra holiday be declared the Saturday preceding Labor day. Brokers are not over sanguine that the governors will grant the petition. After all commissions are commissions and La Salle and Wall streets have experienced some lean days this year.

There is another sign of business activity. Mortimer B. Harris, president of the Harris Brothers company, says that home owners are again in the market for remodeling, modernizing, and repair work on their houses and apartments. Inquiries are increasing for plumbing, heating plants, and other domestic equipment, he reports.

With two days to go only 47 per cent of the St. Louis and San Francisco railway bonds affected by the readjustment plan, have been deposited under the plan. Aug. 29 has been fixed as the limit for depositors.

ASSOCIATED GAS EARNINGS LESS THAN YEAR AGO

New York, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Associated Gas & Electric system, for the 12 months ended July 31, reports operating income totaled $35,082,886, after deducting operating expenses, maintenance, all taxes, etc., against $41,743,421 for the similar previous period.

The system's gross operating revenues amounted to $101,513,600, compared with $105,986,211 for the previous 12 months.

The report points out that sales of electricity continued to be affected to a smaller extent than any of the other services rendered by the system, the revenues from this source aggregating $76,256,121 against $77,841,771 a year ago.

The Engineers Public Service company reports, for the 12 months ended last month, net earnings of $21,577,948 against $22,691,156 for the previous period. Balance for common stock was $2,941,040, equal to $1.54 a share, compared with $3,992,915, or $2.09 a share, for the same period last year.

Trade Reviews Note Gains; Sentiment of Nation Brighter

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—The trade reviews for the week indicate a continued improvement in some retail lines, largely owing to the approach of the school season, while improvement in sentiment has become nationwide, and the sellers' strikes, which have been carried on, may help in the general revival.

Dun's Review, in commenting on general trade, says in part:

"The first flurry of buying for the fall season has drawn largely on retailers' stocks of yard goods for girls' school dresses, shoes, coats, millinery and other apparel accessories.

"The new showings of men's and women's apparel attracted attention, being helped by the comparatively cooler weather in some cities. There has been a gradual increase this month in the sale of dry goods, each week showing an improvement over the record of the week preceding.

Finds Sentiment Better.

"Many helpful adjustments already have been accomplished, and aside from the seasonal upturn the better sentiment of recent weeks should prove constructive in making the gains already under way more uniform and substantial.

"The betterment now has assumed a nation-wide trend, with no particular area predominating in the revival, except that a few districts in the east are lagging somewhat behind the general quickened stride."

"The gratifying strength of the domestic bond market," says the Business Week, "may encourage the United States government to fund one billion of its huge short term borrowings next month. The return flow of gold has relieved the federal reserve of the need to press funds into the market, but the effort to stimulate credit expansion and employment continues to occupy the attention of the administration.

Indicators Still Lag.

"Major business indicators continue to lag behind the rising security markets; slight gains in coal and electric power production and in carloading partly offset the dullness in the steel industry and slack construction activity. Currency circulation remains unchanged, in contrast to the usual seasonal expansion, while reporting banks give no hint of expanding credit."

Poor's Business and Markets bulletin says in part.

"Much publicity has been given to the farmers' strikes, but it is being generally overlooked that sellers' strikes or their virtual equivalent have taken place in at least fourteen leading industrial centers here or abroad in the last year. Some of these strikes already have achieved important results. The fundamental soundness of each effort depends on the extent to which it actually curtails production."

CANADIAN BANKS READY TO LEND TO MOVE WHEAT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 26.—Canadian banks will supply up to 20 million dollars in connection with marketing of Canada's western wheat crop, following arrangements concluded tonight.

Last year's plan having worked out satisfactorily, purpose is to continue same system this year. With larger crop, however, larger amount of money will have to be forthcoming. The exact total will depend upon how fast crop moves. If it is gradual, amount will not be so large.

The banks will advance the money on guarantee of Canadian government, plus waiving by prairie governments of their rights in the pools. The arrangement last year cost the Canadian government nothing because pools operated profitably. Any risk, of course, is confined to any difference between the amount advanced and that which is realized.

There will be the same process of stabilization this year as last. Care will be taken to avoid any conditions likely to cause a crash in prices.

Representatives of wheat pools are not able to estimate specifically advantage of new wheat preference, though they are very emphatic in forecasting that, in many ways, it will be of real value.

CITES $50,000,000 AS BANKER'S PROFIT ON GERMAN BOND SALES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Net profits of American bankers from the sale of German bonds in this country since 1923 were estimated by the Brookings institution today at about $50,000,000.

The estimate, based on a study growing out of the senate's foreign bond investigation last winter, was made from calculations by Dr. Robert R. Kuczynski, until recently a member of the institution's staff.

The research institution estimated the bankers made their profits from the flotation of $1,280,000,000 worth of German bonds, therefore clearing 4 per cent of the amount they paid for the securities.

The par value of German bonds still outstanding in this country was estimated at $994,330,900, which the institution said was "about one-half of the par value of all German publicly offered bonds which are still outstanding."

Bright Spots in Day's Business News

Sharp gains in cotton this week, coupled with price advances in other basic textile commodities, have caused the most widespread buying movement the textile industries have witnessed since the depression began, swamping the selling houses with orders, a survey of these markets in New York revealed yesterday. Commitments were so heavy that numerous cotton and woolen mills were compelled to withdraw quotations on finished goods and place them on an "at value" basis.

Hudson and Essex sales for the first three weeks of August increased 2,000 units or about 300 per cent above the similar period in July it is reported by General Sales Manager Abbott of Hudson Motor.

It is reported that a general advance in all grades of rayon yarn will be announced shortly by leading producers. Producers are said to be unprepared following their summer shutdown.

Last week's total awards of all classes of heavy construction were slightly higher than that of the previous week, the Engineering News-Record reports.

Sales of United States meat packers during July showed the first increase over the previous month since last October and also made a more favorable comparison with 1931 than during earlier months this year.

A prediction that improvement will continue in the oil industry, made by the official publication of Standard Oil of New Jersey, met agreement by leaders at Tulsa, Okla. Control of crude production, reduction in refinery runs, and a 6,000,000 barrel decrease in crude and products stocks since January 1 were regarded as favorable.

Iron and steel prices at Youngstown, O., regarded as of barometric value, are higher. Heavy melting steel No. 1 sold today at $8.50 to $9, a gain of 25 cents for the week.

An order for structural steel amounting to $230,000 has been received by the Worden Allen Co. of Milwaukee for the new Minneapolis post office. It was said it was taken at a loss in order to insure employment for the company's men during the winter.

SEVERAL FIRMS VOTE DIVIDENDS; EXTRA DECLARED

Regular dividends were authorized yesterday by a number of important corporations and an extra dividend was voted by one concern. The special distribution was voted the American Chicle company at the usual rate of 25 cents a share in addition to regular dividend of 50 cents a share.

Gillette Safety Razor voted the regular dividend on common and the American Superpower corporation declared the usual dividends on the preferred. Aluminum Company of America regular preferred was voted and National Standard company declared the usual 30 cents dividend on the common stock. Borg Warner regular preferred payment was declared.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CHIEF IS INSURED FOR $2,500,000 NOW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 26.—George Washington Hill of New York, president of the American Tobacco company, has been revealed as the man to whom James Roosevelt, son of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, sold a $2,500,000 insurance policy. The policy is the largest ever written in New England. James Roosevelt was about to leave town for a trip to Hartford and New York when questioned concerning the policy. He said he could not, ethically, confirm or deny the report. The policy was distributed among a group of midwestern insurance companies, no one corporation desiring to assume the entire risk.

HOW RAILWAYS STRIVE TO MEET THEIR OWN CRISIS

(This is the third of four articles dealing with the decline in commodity prices and volume of trade and the effect on wages during the depression. This article reviews the plight of the railroads. The final article will appear tomorrow.)

BY SCRUTATOR.

The decline in railroad traffic and earnings through 1930 and 1931 forced the carriers to abandon efforts to help employment by extra expenditures for maintenance and improvements. In fact, it became necessary for them to stint on their maintenance charges.

Then, as earnings continued to shrink, the stockholders began to suffer through reduced and suspended dividends.

Finally, when interest charges became endangered, railroad credit lost prestige and railroad bonds, which were long regarded as the safest of American securities, failed to meet the requirements for New York savings bank investment. Such former prosperous roads as the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Illinois Central, and others found the going very rough.

Unions Reject Pay Revision.

During this period farsighted railroad managers had broached the question of wage revision, but their overtures were rejected by the railroad unions. Finally, due largely to pressure from unemployed rail workers, a conference was called in Chicago late in 1931 between the railroad brotherhoods and a committee of railway presidents. After protracted meetings a wage reduction of 10 per cent was agreed on, effective for one year from Feb. 1, 1931.

Since then, however, the financial condition of the railroads has not improved. Moderately increased freight rates were granted by the interstate commerce commission, with the proviso that the additional revenue should be pooled in a fund to be loaned to the weaker roads. But neither this fund nor the 10 per cent cut in wages was sufficient to relieve the carriers from financial crises.

In order to save many of the railroads in this country from receivership it was necessary for the government to extend credit to them to tide over their pressing needs. Thus far loans aggregating nearly a quarter of a billion dollars have been extended to the railroads through the Reconstruction Finance corporation. But even now the railroad managers are asserting that there is no possibility of restoring the 10 per cent wage reduction when the year covered by agreement expires next January. Moreover, they are considering the question of asking for a larger wage reduction for the ensuing year.

Some Wages Repeatedly Cut.

Salaried employes and other unorganized railroad workers have had their pay cut several times. In some cases aggregate reductions now amount to 25 per cent. Only recently several railroads announced that they were putting new cuts into effect applying to their clerical and supervisory forces. The Pennsylvania railroad recently announced that reductions to employes in these classes have amounted to 28 per cent, and the New York Central, in announcing on July 1 a cut of 5 per cent, stated that it was in addition to reductions ranging from 10 to 20 per cent previously applied to clerks and executives.

STAGE BULLISH SHOW HERE IN WALGREEN STOCK

A bullish demonstration reminiscent of the bull market era was staged in the Walgreen company stock on the Chicago exchange yesterday. With aggressive sponsorship the stock moved ahead to 18¼ bringing its net gain for the last two days to 6 points. The appreciation in the stock this week amounts to about 50 per cent.

Sponsors of the rally dropped vague hints of "constructive developments" impending in the company. The exact nature of those impending developments was not clear but the rally was a rousing success.

No dividends are being paid on the common stock. Earnings were equivalent to 78 cents a share on the common in the six months ended March 31 while in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 earnings amounted to $2.95 a share on common.

Cord corporation also attracted speculative attention yesterday reflecting the advance in Auburn stock on the New York market. Bendix and Borg Warner were also slight improvements on moderate volume of trading.

U. S. Gold Stocks Larger; Gain from Mexico, China

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—A gain of $1,551,200 in the gold stocks of the country was reported today by the Federal Reserve bank. At New York $224,200 was received from Mexico, while $1,327,000 arrived in San Francisco from China. Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling rose ⅛c to $3.40⅜, the franc dropped 1-16 point to 3.92½ cents, belgas were up ½ point to 13.90 cents, Swiss francs declined ⅝ point to 19.43½ cents, and guilders were unchanged at 40.25 cents. The Japanese yen lost ½ cent to 28¾ cents.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—Leading shares, which had been trailing behind minus signs all the forenoon, suddenly shot up to new highs for the recovery movement.

Some of them made advances of 3 to 5 points from their early lows as the trading range broadened.

President Hoover's statement that the financial crisis had ended was, from the Wall street viewpoint, the big thing at the opening session of the Washington conference of financial and industrial leaders from the 12 federal reserve districts.

Profit Taking Is Feature.

The Interborough receivership had given the market some qualms in the early dealings, and another flock of warnings from various quarters against undue zeal now that the list had "worked itself into a vulnerable position" kept up a stream of profit taking sales until well after noon.

It was not until toward the beginning of the final hour—in fact, about the time the late editions with their headlines on the Hoover conference were on the street—that the market began to rally. The rally gained headway rapidly, often distancing the ticker. United States Steel spurted from a midmorning low of 43⅜ to 48¼ and then eased to 47¾, leaving it with a net gain of 2⅜. American Telephone, which had sagged to 113⅞, rebounded to 119 and finished the day at 117⅞, up 2⅝. Auburn chalked up a 7 point gain in one of those whirlwind recoveries for which it is noted. American Can changed an early loss for a gain of a point. Numerous other trading favorites scored gains of 1 to 2 points or more for the day. Homestake Mining was up 5 points on its closing sale and Ingersoll Rand 3½.

Steel Share Group Strong.

Steel shares were vigorous and strong as a group, Bethlehem, Republic, Crucible and others vying with the leader in the size of their gains. Fertilizer stocks were particularly strong, with gains of 1 to 3 points, to new highs. Krueger & Toll was again particularly active, accounting for about 5 per cent of the total dealings up to the start of the late afternoon rally.

Interborough common broke about 2 points on the receivership announcement, but recovered about half its decline toward the last.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 26.—A test suit against J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National bank and the National City company over the sale of an issue of bonds of the Alleghany corporation, a Van Sweringen company, was disclosed in the Supreme court today. Justice Miller granted an application by the National City company to extend its time to answer the suit from Aug. 25 to Sept. 19. Counsel for the First National bank also applied for an extension.

The action was brought by Joseph E. Marx Company, Inc., to recover $32,632 on the ground that a loss of this sum was sustained because it is alleged that a prospectus covering the bond issue, signed by the defendants, did not describe correctly the indentures to be entered into, and contained statements asserted to be untrue. Victor House, counsel for the plaintiff, said that the complaint is not ready to be filed.

July Sees Expansion in Meat Packing Sales

July saw the first expansion since October in sales in the meat packing industry, according to the monthly report of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. Sales booked for the month were 4.5 per cent greater than the previous month, although 30 per cent below last year. The expansion was due to the improvement in prices of packing products as the tonnage sold in July was 4 per cent below June and 2.5 per cent below July, 1931.

National Tea Co. Reports Smaller Sales Volume

Consolidated sales of the National Tea company for the eighth period of four weeks ending Aug. 13, 1932, amounted to $4,698,043 as compared with $5,797,030 for the corresponding four weeks of 1931, a decrease of $1,098,982.03, or 18.96%.

New York, Aug. 26.—Railroad bonds recovered sharply in late trading today after morning selling had depressed prices from one to five points.

The late recovery was impressive, illustrating how quickly the market trend may be reversed with the market in its present thin position. Markdowns ranging up to five points were quickly erased after selling volume had diminished considerably.

Chief gains in late trading occurred in the more volatile issues, which had reacted most severely from the peaks reached on Tuesday of this week. Such gains included bonds of Pennsylvania Railroad, Nickel Plate, New York Central and, in fact, virtually the entire list of active carrier liens.

Selling Held Technical.

The recovery confirmed recent expressions of opinion in the street to the effect that the selling of the last few days was entirely technical and that no severe reaction was to be expected until the business situation had been given ample opportunity to prove itself.

Losses in rail bonds occurred early in issues recently most eagerly bid for on the upside. Bonds of B. & O. railroad lost up to 5 points before fresh buying turned the trend. Issues of Frisco were lower on yesterday's announcement that receivership was being sought by minority bondholders.

The reaction spread to the foreign list, including Australians and a few of the South American defaulted loans which had met with some demand yesterday.

Other Issues Drop.

Besides issues of B. & O. and Frisco, such bonds as Rock Island convertible 4½s, Denver and Rio Grande consolidated 4s, Erie refunding 5s, Great Northern 5s, Missouri Pacific 5½s, New York Central convertible debenture 4½s, and Nickel Plate 6s suffered sharp losses in early trading.

New York city traction bonds, chiefly issues of Interboro Rapid Transit, met with heavy selling on announcement today of the receiverships. Prices, however, managed to hold near the level of yesterday's close, B.-M.-T. 6s suffered only a slight loss.

U. S. government bonds were dull, with trading stifled by expectation of early announcement of September financing plans.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

RECEIVER TELLS BROADWAY-BARRY FINANCE STATUS

Committee Urges Deposit of Ure Building Bonds.

A report on the financial situation of the Broadway-Barry Building corporation was made yesterday by the Chicago Title and Trust company. The report covers the period from April 1 to June 30, 1932.

The property owned by the corporation consists of a garage building, leased to one tenant, situated at $111-21 Broadway. A $400,000 bond issue on it was underwritten by the Greenebaum Sons Investment company.

The receiver reports $7,178.18 cash on hand on June 30. Cash on hand at the beginning of the period was $8,796.69, and net receipts were $2,250. Disbursements, mainly payment of general taxes for 1928 and 1930 in full, were $3,868.51.

C. J. Olsen is secretary of the Greenebaum bondholders' protective committee. A decree of sale has been entered in this case, but a date has not yet been set for the foreclosure sale.

Letter on Ure Building.

In a letter to holders of bonds secured by the Ure building, 1749-71 Howard street, members of the bondholders' protective committee yesterday asserted that foreclosure proceedings now pending threaten great loss of principal to the security owners. The Ure building contains the Norshore theater, stores, offices, and apartments.

Bonds deposited under the reorganization plan or insured are said to total 84 per cent of the $1,087,500 outstanding.

"If those bondholders who have not deposited their bonds will do so promptly the reorganization program can be completed and new securities issued," says the statement, which was signed by Porter Fox, chairman; William G. Lodwick, Herbert W. Bartling, and Courtney R. Gleason. "If you fail to deposit your bonds you will have to take your pro rata share of the sale price at a master's sale, which, of course, is a forced sale. Our plan contemplates payment of principal in full."

Mr. Fox states the committee caused the foreclosure bill to be filed in the Circuit court as a means of hastening reorganization, to protect the property and to avoid litigation.

What Plan Provides.

The plan provides for the use of the entire net income of the property for the benefit of the bondholders, exchange par for par of the outstanding 6½ per cent bonds for new bonds maturing Oct. 15. As in other plans for the reorganization of defaulted Greenebaum issues it is proposed to apply all income each year to interest.

The issue defaulted as to principal and interest on Oct. 15, 1931. Gross income for the first half of 1932 was $51,229.21 and operating expenses were $15,237.40, leaving $35,991.81 net income. After reserve for current taxes, estimated at $11,616 for the period, net income available for bond issue is $24,616.81.

The corporation's liability for taxes due and unpaid on the property for 1928, 1929, and 1930 is $67,837.56, exclusive of penalties and interest.

"This, however, is subject to a possible reduction as a result of objections filed," says the bondholders' committee. "The committee and the trustee feel it to be to the best interest of the bondholders to reserve the funds on hand for the payment of some of these taxes. The amount on hand reserved for this purpose is about $50,000. After payment of these back taxes it is planned that interest payments will be resumed in accordance with our plan provided sufficient bonds are deposited to warrant the committee declaring the plan effective."

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders who have relied on action of the stock and cotton markets as the key to the grains are beginning to see more favorable factors in the regular run of grain news. That news is regarded as turning bullish and inducing buying, causing quick rallies after breaks. The sentiment last night was bullish, with active buying of "offers."

Special attention is being given by wheat traders to the steady increase in open interest figures, close to 148,000,000 bus, an increase of more than 8,000,000 bus inside of a week. It is construed by some close observers as indicating steady accumulation of wheat by western and eastern speculators. That also is taken as an indication of the confidence that traders in general have in the future action of the market. The steady advance in security prices is also regarded as an indication of a change in general conditions for the better, and it is suggested that wheat is a purchase on all sharp breaks.

Corn is gaining friends, although there is a large element who are bearish but are influenced to cover their lines frequently when wheat turns strong. Traders who believe in corn are said to be working on the constructive side of the market, although they look for continued liberal receipts. Every bulge appears to attract increased country offers.

Traders are looking for small world shipments in Monday's report and regard them as indicating that the other side is not buying foreign wheats as rapidly as it should, and possibly means that they are likely to be liberal buyers later in the season. World's shipments so far this season are heavily short of last year, being off about 42,000,000 bu.

Large local packers were the principal buyers in yesterday's active market for cattle and hogs.

Additional gains were scored all along the line. Top hogs reached the $5.00 line, the highest since Tuesday of last week. This price stands within 15c of the highest paid for hogs since July 15 and $1.70 or 51 per cent above the low spot last May.

The general average, due to the cleanup made in packing grades, remained unchanged at $4.25, this price being $1.10 or 34 per cent above the low day of the year. Better action in fresh pork at higher wholesale quotations stimulated buying by smaller houses late and only pen holders remained at the close.

Large local packers handled about 50 per cent of yesterday's fresh receipts. The clearance in all classes the last few days has been the best in several weks.

Cattle Also Advance.

Cattle prices forged ahead 15@25c further in one of the liveliest Friday markets seen in many months. The pens were cleared of cattle within two or three hours after the market opened. There were not a great many available to start with, and when order-buyers appeared on the scene it soon became apparent that eastern houses would be unable to satisfy the demands. Large local packers bought all the good cattle in sight. Swift paid $9.85, the extreme top for 1,420 lb steers, a new top for load lots of cattle that heavy.

The same buyer came out with 39 averaging 1,191 lbs at $9.75, the next highest price of the day. Only a few lots were good enough to sell above $8.50, the bulk of steers going at $6.50@8.25. Butcher stock ruled strong to 25c higher. Calves were steady to strong.

Shipper Demand Broad.

Shipping demand for lambs is broadest since last April and much larger than it has been the last few weeks. In five days this week 19,000 head were shipped from Chicago. Receipts were also large and tendency ruled slightly weaker for a short time at the opening yesterday, but when the bulk of lambs started over the scales the price list was mostly in line with the average market of the preceding session.

Tops from the 41 car loads of range lambs sold at $5.85 and below. A scattering of native lambs sorted by city butchers and packers reached $6.35, while the bulk sold at $5.75 and under. Country demand for feeding lambs held up well on a $4.50@5.10 basis. Only fair quality stock sold at the inside figure.

Receipts at Chicago today are estimatted at 200 cattle, 4,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 206 cattle, 3,101 hogs, and 1,186 sheep the previous Saturday, and 431 catle, 5,388 hogs, and 822 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs at Chicago for next Monday are estimated from 23,000 to 32,000. R. B. Ellis marks 23,000, P. Dett 25,000, R. Trulinger 26,000, H. Pattison 27,000, F. Knutzen, J. M. Waters, H. Wolfe, and O. Dwight 28,000, J. Berkery 28,000, F. M. Sherwood 29,000, G. W. Chandler 30,000, W. T. Reneker 31,000, and E. E. Hubbard 32,000.

SMALL BREAK IN LARD

Lard lost recent gains due to profit taking by longs and closed 5@10c lower, the latter on September. Bellies were off 5c with only a few trades. Late advance in corn, stocks, and cotton had no special influence on provision prices. Cash trade was fair. Pork loins were 12@14c for favored weights. Bellies and short ribs were given fair attention at recent prices, $6.75. Regular cash lard was $5.25; loose $5, and leaf $5.12½. Liverpool lard advanced 3@9d and export clearances from the seaboard were 80,380 lbs. Hog prices were strong, top at $5. Receipts were in excess of a week and year ago. Prices follow:
